VOTE SHOWS SLACKERS

Half of Nation Stayed Home

Slight Improvement Over Last Election Laid to Ballot Campaign

Indiana and Kansas Leading List; California Polls 58 Per Cent

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Pretty nearly half of our citizens eligible to exercise the franchise are [illegible]ally vote slackers. Apparently the newly enfranchised women voters are no more to blame for this shocking condition than the men. About 50 per cent of the electorate voted before women were enfranchised, and about [illegible] per cent of the electorate has [illegible] since women were given the ballot.

A slight improvement was noted in the late election. Whereas, [illegible] per cent of the electorate voted in 1920, 52.2 per cent voted in the Presidential election this month. The National Association of Manufacturers thinks this improvement due to the "get out the [illegible]" movement in which it took a leading part.

NINETEEN STATES FALL

A survey shows nineteen of the forty-eight States to have cast a smaller vote this year than in 1920. Most of the States of the [illegible] South are included in the [illegible]. States where a falling-off in the votes is shown are: [illegible], Arizona, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, Ohio, South Carolina, [illegible], Utah and Virginia. In Kentucky and Tennessee the falling-off was most noticeable, 122,- [illegible] in the former State and 134,- [illegible] in the latter.

Indiana and Kansas occupy positions of honor in the table made public by the association showing the vote cast by States, the figures based on unofficial and incomplete returns. In Indiana, it would appear from the unofficial [illegible] per cent of the potential vote came out, and in Kansas, [illegible] per cent. New York shows 66 per cent of the potential vote effective, as compared with 56.7 per cent four years ago.

The lowest percentage in recording is South Carolina. Only 8 per cent of its electors went to the polls. In Georgia and Mississippi, only a little more than 10 per cent voted, which however, marks an improvement over four years ago, when the figure for Mississippi was [illegible] per cent.

The following table is based on

Retire to Their Hotel Rooms, Refusing Audience to Interviewers

EMPALME (Son.) Nov. 25.—Charles Spencer Chaplin, world-famous comedian, and Lita Grey, his leading lady, were united in marriage in this sleepy little village, a suburb of the Mexican seaport town of Guaymas, at daybreak this morning.

Dismounting from the American International Express at Guaymas shortly before 4 o'clock this morning, Chaplin, Miss Grey, Mrs. Lillian Spicer, her mother, and seven other American friends arrived here in three automobiles shortly before dawn and after locating the villa of Judge Antonio Haro aroused the aged justice and persuaded him to preside at their marriage ceremony.

Blissfully unaware of the presence of the king of comedy within their midst, 2000 Mexican laborers stirred uneasily in their blankets as Chaplin and his party sought to arouse the sleeping magistrate. After many minutes of persuasion, Justice Haro consented to appear and members of the marriage party took their places in front of the judicial villa.

TOWN SLUMBERS

The populace slumbered as Judge Haro pronounced Charlie and Lita man and wife. As the unique marriage ceremony was completed, Charlie swept Lita to her feet and while the remainder of Mexico's oddest marriage group remained on their knees for a moment longer, embraced the bride.

Followed by the best wishes of the Mexican justice and several Mexican merchants who had gathered during the brief ceremony, Chaplin and his party went to a quaint Mexican inn where breakfast had been prepared. To the early morning sounds from off the desert, basking in the atmosphere that has spelled love for countless generations of the hot-blooded Latin race, the Chaplin party enjoyed a typical Mexican bridal breakfast and then left for the near-by town of Guaymas.

DODGES CROWDS

Dodging the publicity that would cause, should his identity become known, Chaplin ordered his car to return by way of the side trails and passageways—keeping away from the main thoroughfares—in an effort to elude persons who

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, at Girl Scout Luncheon, Pays Tribute to Friend

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Mrs. Herbert Hoover, president of the Girl Scouts of America, said in an address at a Girl Scout luncheon here today: "Florence Kling Harding was a Girl Scout of the highest order and her personal life was in perfect harmony with the laws of our organization." Mrs. Hoover came to the luncheon from Marion, O., where she attended the funeral of Mrs. Harding, who was honorary vice-president of the Girl Scouts.

It was reported that $251,234 of the $266,666, Manhattan's quota of the Girl Scout campaign fund, had been raised.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., will contribute another $25,000 to the fund, according to an announcement by Mrs. Nicholas F. Brady, treasurer of the organization. Exclusive of this gift, the national total to date is $380,877.

SENATE ROW THREATENED BY PITTMAN

Nevada Senator Still After Spanish Springs Appropriation

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Senator Pittman, Democrat, Nevada, who prevented a vote on the second deficiency bill by a filibuster during the closing hours of the last session, declared today he had not dropped his fight, which was based on the elimination by Senate and House conferees on the measure of an appropriation of $500,000 for the development of the Spanish Springs irrigation project in Nevada.

After a talk today with Chairman Warren of the Appropriation Committee, Senator Pittman said he has not decided definitely what tactics he will pursue to get the appropriation restored, but if the Republicans attempt to kill the appropriation he will employ all of the strategy permitted under parliamentary law to block other legislation.

The appropriation, he asserted, was recommended in the budget report, but despite this, it was cut out and four or five other appropriations which had not been recommended were inserted.

PALS DIE WITH BOOTS ON

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, Nov. 25.—Newt Walker, well-known character of the Kernville district, died today, as had a number of his enemies and friends, "with his boots on." And with him went his former pal, Frank Murdock, old prospector, and asserted ally of the Walkers in the Burton-Walker feud which once caused the little towns of Kernville and Keyesville many thrills.

Only the most meager reports of the double death have been received at the Sheriff's office, and Coroner N. C. House, Undersheriff Charles Smith and Deputy Sheriff Phil Fickert sped to the mountain district, sixty-five miles from here, this afternoon.

Mystery surrounds the deaths of Walker and his former comrade. The body of Walker was found in his cabin, a short distance from Keyesville.

Just outside the cabin, lying in a peaceful little glade which gave no hint of the tragedy it had witnessed, was the body of Murdock.

Two theories have been advanced by the authorities. Which is right may never be known. They are

First, that Walker and Murdock had been in the cabin together. They may have been drinking, the authorities say. There was an argument. An accusal, and perhaps they both "drew" at once.

Both guns spoke, and friend had killed friend. Walker evidently died instantly. Murdock ran out of the cabin, only to fall dead.

That is one of the theories ad-

Agreement Provides Mutual Respect of Nations' Rights in Africa

BY VINCENT SHEEAN
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, Nov. 25.—In the second meeting wiht the chief of the French delegation to the League of Nations and principal functionaries of the Foreign Office today, Premier Herriot reached the conclusion that France should not take any step whatever in bringing the Anglo-Egyptian crisis before the League of Nations.

This decision was based on the Anglo-French accord of 1904, which in a measure binds France's hands as the two nations agreed to respect each other's imperial rights in Africa. Nevertheless, M. Herriot's own party (the Radical Socialists) is in a ferment over the problem, which they declare proves again, as was proven last year in the Corfu affair, that the League of Nations is a useless organization in crises.

The strongest possible pressure is being brought to bear on M. Herriot to present the question to the League Council, but on the advice of permanent functionaries of the Foreign Office he has refused to move. If Egypt can get the question before the League in some other way France will be obliged to insist on fair treatment for the Egyptians, as already movements in sympathy for Egypt are being reported from France's Mohammedan empire.

In Syria, particularly, agitation began yesterday. In a report from Gen. Weygand, in command of the French forces in Syria, it is declared that agitators in that province assert Gen. Sir Lee Stack was murdered by proven enemies of Zaghloul Pasha, and further, Gen. Weygand asserts that France must beware of showing sympathy for England in tangible form.

BRITISH PREPARED FOR ANYTHING IN EGYPT

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

LONDON, Nov. 25.—All reports from Egypt today agree that the population is quiet and Cairo is calm. If it is the calm before the storm, there are innumerable indications that the British are prepared. Several British warships are proceeding to Egyptian waters and troops are being sent to strategic stations in the country and an entire battalion is being moved across the Mediterranean from Malta.

The Second Dorsetshires have left Suez for Port Sudan and a Scottish battalion is transferred from Alexandria to Ismalia. In Cairo, British troops conduct occasional marches through the streets and British correspondents report to their readers back home that this is having "a salutary effect upon the temper of the people."

Tomorrow the citizens of Cairo will be given an opportunity to see a whole brigade of British infantry marching through the streets with fixed bayonets.

ACCORDED WIDE POWERS

Lord Allenby, the British High Commissioner, it is said, has been given rather wide powers to deal with any sudden emergency.

British officials connected with foreign military and naval affairs had several conferences today. Those who called on Austen Chamberlain, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, included the Secretary of War, the First Lord of the Admiralty and the Earl of Cavan, chief of the imperial general staff.

The press of Great Britain is for the most part supporting the government's every demand upon the Egyptians and all action, which has been taken in Egypt by the government. Some of the Liberal papers appear to be of the opinion that the demands are a bit too strong and suggest that the League of Nations ought to be put to work on the situation.

SEE ITALIAN PARALLEL

Parallels between Great Britain's present action in Egypt and Italy's action against Greece last year are drawn by several newspapers. Some of them point out that in the Italian case the British clamored for intervention by the League of Nations, while now the idea of submitting the new situation to the League is in Great Britain received silently or with scoffs.

NAME OF LOS ANGELES IS FORMALLY GIVEN TO ZR-3

Mrs. Coolidge Christens Giant Air Liner Before Large Throng at Field Near Washington

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—A vast gray bulk roaring northward through the darkness, the United States air liner Los Angeles sped tonight to take her appointed station as a commissioned ship of the Navy. Somewhere ahead of her in the blackness fled a half score of homing pigeons carrying word to the Lakehurst station that with full pomp and ceremony, the name of the California city had been bestowed upon the ship by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the nation's President.

With the act the designation ZR-3 she has carried so long passed off the Navy's rolls and the name Los Angeles, signifying the peaceful mission she has been assigned by international agreement, blossomed in its place.

It was almost a perfect day for the christening. By the time the air giant came nosing out of the blue-gray haze to northward, just before 1 o'clock, the sun had broken through the banking clouds of the morning and was sweeping the sky clear moment by moment. The trip south from Lakehurst was made swiftly, and the dirigible found herself with more than two hours of aerial loafing to do before she came down at the naval air station at Anacostia, since the President and Mrs. Coolidge were not due to arrive before [illegible]:45 p.m.

The ship came on toward the station, dipping for a close look as she passed. Only two of her five motors were running, and they were turning lazily to keep her moving. Below, the ground crew was ranked on the field, but there was no more than a handful of then of the thousands who later fought their way out from the city to witness her landing.

SAILS OVER CAPITAL

Swinging slowly westward, the windows of her cabins and control car crowded with peering faces, the airship began a leisurely jaunt about Washington. In the streets below there was a craning of necks and eager shouts as the distant hum of her motors carried down news of her passage.

Up past the great dome of the Capitol the ship sauntered, dipping and rising as though in friendly salute to the figure of freedom that towers above the stately structure. On again over the White House and Washington Monument, dipping and rising, dipping and rising, the ship plowed along through a bath of golden sunlight softened by the autumn haze.

The distant roar of guns at the navy yard, across the narrow river branch from the air station, told that President and Mrs. Coolidge were coming by barge. The word went crackling by radio to Commander J. H. Klein, the skipper of the airship who had brought her down from Lakehurst on her maiden voyage under American command for the christening.

WIND CAUSES DIFFICULTY

A cross-wind from the west had sprung up, blowing directly toward a range of hills that circle the field to the eastward. It made the task of Commander Klein a difficult feat of air navigation. Far to the eastward of the hill rim, the ship swung majestically about to head back toward the field. Her engines were driving her downward against the lifting force of the helium gas that filled the mighty gas bags within the envelope. It was her first trip with this non-inflammable gas. She cleared the trees fringing the hilltop by only a narrow margin and came on with her nose slanting down sharply.

Just beyond the hills an upward surge of air currents gripped her. They swept her swiftly upward and her skipper rang on his power again to make another attempt.

Meanwhile, the President and Mrs. Coolidge had taken places in the official box with Secretary Wilbur, Acting Secretary Davis of the War Department, and scores of high government officers about them. The stands were packed with invited notables and all around the mile-wide circuit of the field were parked motor cars and the thousands of the public, doomed to no more than a distant view.

The wind had more than an edge to it and those in stands and boxes grew chilled as time passed. The

JURY TO TRY COL. FORBES COMPLETED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—With unexpected rapidity, a jury was picked this afternoon to try Col. Charles R. Forbes, former head of the United States Veterans' Bureau, and John W. Thompson, Chicago and St. Louis contractor. The defendants are accused of conspiracy to defraud and of tendering and accepting a bribe.

A principal witness for the government in this trial, which is the first of the Washington scandals to come into a criminal court, will be Mrs. Heber Votaw, a sister of the late President Harding. She once held an executive position in the Veterans' Bureau and is credited by the government with providing information against Forbes. The prosecution's principal reliance is Elias Mortimer, one-time chum of Forbes. It is charged in the indictment that he dealt for Forbes with contractors who were favored in the bidding for construction of government hospitals and that he handed Thompson's check for $5000 to Forbes in the Drake Hotel, June 20, 1922.

Mortimer was in court today and so were Forbes and Thompson. Forbes looked to be regaining his health, which had been reported failing the last few months.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Until recently Death Valley, where a temperature of 134.1 deg. in the shade was registered at Greenland Ranch on July 10, 1913, was considered the hottest place on the earth's surface. According to the quarterly journal of the Royal Meteorological Society, this record has been broken at the Italian settlement of Azizia, in the semidesert region of North Africa, about twenty-five miles south of Tripoli, where a partly sheltered thermometer rose to 136.4 deg.

FOUR SENATE FIGHTS LOOM

Brookhart, Magnus Johnson, Bursum Will be Forced to Defend Seats in Coming Congress

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The Senate of the next Congress will be called upon to decide at least three election contests. A fourth will be added to the list unless the present Senate disposes of the contest against Senator Mayfield, Democrat, Texas, which has been the subject of investigation for nearly two years.

Senator Bursum, Republican, New Mexico, has announced he will contest the election of Sam G. Bratton, Democrat, who was awarded the election by the official count.

Senator Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, will be forced to defend his election, Daniel J. Steck, his Democratic opponent, having announced plants for bringing a contest. An unusual situation has developed in his contest, as several Republican leaders, including Senator Smoot of Utah, have announced their intention of supporting Steck. Out of a total of more than 1,000,000 votes, Brookhart was declared winner by 755 ballots.

Steck claims he would have won if ballots marked with arrows, placed there by overzealous supporters, had not been thrown out.

Friends of Senator Johnson, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota, say he will contest the election of his opponent, Representative Schall, Republican.

Senator Johnson claims Schall made untrue charges against him during the campaign in violation of Minnesota's Corrupt Practices Act.

Senator Ashurst of Arizona, Democratic member of the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections, said the law required that the committee observe the State laws regulating elections in deciding contests. He disagreed with Senator Smoot's statement that the committee had set a precedent for deciding contests by seating Senator King, Democrat, Utah, on the ground that it was the "intent of the voters to vote for King."

Senator Ashurst declared the law of Utah required that the "intent of the voter" should guide the election and not the law.

ROSES FROM LOS ANGELES

Mrs. Coolidge bore a great cluster of roses, the gift of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, as she sat in her place. All about her automobile robes began to appear as the spectators wrapped themselves against the chill.

On the second round, Commander Klein got his ship down close enough to drop two forward landing lines. The bluejackets leaped at them and clung frantically as the tugging monster above dragged along. One line broke far overhead to come whistling down about the ears of the sailors. They went flying with the sudden release of the strain, but their comrades at the other line clung desperately until the ship lifted a score of them off the ground. As they dropped back the big dirigible flung her nose defiantly into the air again and went surging down into the south for another try.

This time the tricky air current got in its work before the airship had made a fair start at its dive for a landing. There was no room between the hills and the river rim to make a gradual drop of it, and with the added upthrust of the "bump" of air, the ship got nowhere near her target, and she plowed off to circle for a fourth attempt.

HELIUM RELEASED

Commander Klein, with a long night journey ahead and no chance to replenish his helium, hesitated to open valves and lower the buoyancy of the ship. Only three of the five motors are as yet equipped with water-recovery devices and with the fuel consumption eating up weight on the long trip, the ZR-3 was rebelliously lively and hard to handle. But on the fourth into-the-wind plunge for a landing the skipper released some of his precious gas and swung his downward rudder to stand the ship almost on her head as she cleared the hill barrier.

It was close enough to drop repaired bow lines and in a moment the ground crew had them fast. Then good Navy beef in trim blue and white did the work and slowly drew the mighty head of the ship earthward until the stern lines could also drop to waiting hands and the ZR-3 shackled by lines that seemed mere spider webs in strength compared to her vast bulk was brought gently to earth.

Bluejackets crowded thickly about the control car and the rear engine gondola to get hand holds and keep the ship steady in the wind. They walked her swiftly along to the appointed place and as she came head first to the waiting stand, a squad of huskies rushed a ribbon-draped stand forward to rest it against the doorway to the control car. The President and Mrs. Coolidge mounted the stand under the shadow of the great hull overhead. A decorated line was passed out and at a signal, Mrs. Coolidge pulled it sharply.

WORDS INAUDIBLE

High up in the bows of the ship a trap door opened. There was a stir and flutter of frightened wings as the message-laden pigeons rushed out to circle and twist in air a moment, then head off for home. The words "I christen thee Los Angeles," were inaudible in the stir and bustle about the ship, but Mrs. Coolidge turned smilingly away, coiling up the ribbon decked cord she had pulled to free her aerial messengers. She took the cord with her as a memento.

Rear-Admiral Hutchinson of the Washington Navy Yard, then read the orders commissioning the newest ship in the Navy. Capt. George W. Steele, Jr., her commander, who was kept by illness from this flight, read his orders and from above him, a slender commissioned pennant was dropped. The Los Angeles was flying her official flags at last.

Meanwhile, President and Mrs. Coolidge had been escorted up a steep ladder to inspect the control car of the ship and to peer about within her vast hull. They spent ten minutes or more aboard and were followed by a throng of distinguished guests, too eager to see this sight to heed the necessity for speed in getting the Los Angeles back to safety in the air before the gathering night closed. All were ushered hastily through finally, and then Rear-Admiral Moffett, Chief of the Navy Air Service, climbed aboard, his two-starred blue flag dropping from the hull to fly on weighted cord just forward of the control car windows.

GROUND CLEARED

Sweeping back the crowd, the marine guard cleared the ground about the ship, and she was swung slowly to head into the last of the sunset, poised for her upward leap into the air. A whistle shrilled through the dusk, motors roared into life, and the bluejackets of the ground crew gave the blow off the ship a fling into the air, then dashed for safety. Astern, the sailors clung to hold down the tail a moment longer, and poise the ship with upward rearing nose, as a spear thrower would poise his weapon for a cast. A new thunder as all five motors leaped to full power; another scream of the whistle, bidding the last men below stand clear, and the Los Angeles went roaring back into the air, fairly jumping up and forward under the titanic thrust of her propellers.

Once well clear of the ground, and hovering again above the city where the dome of the Capitol loomed now through the fading light, bathed in the yellow flood lights that are trained upon it every night, the Los Angeles, with Admiral Moffett's flag flapping bravely to mark his presence aboard, circled slowly to her northward course, flattened out and faded swiftly from sight against a horizon already vague and dark with the coming night.

CITY'S GREETING WIRED MRS. COOLIDGE

Mayor Cryer yesterday sent the following telegram of greeting from this city to Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the President, who yesterday christened the new Navy dirigible Los Angeles:

"In the name of the city administration of Los Angeles and all of its people I send you greeting, because you have so graciously taken the place of sponsor at the christening ceremonies at Bolling Field today. We feel especially honored that the authorities have bestowed the name of our city upon this beautiful unit of the Navy's Air Service. Long may the good ship Los Angeles ride the airways of the world, a messenger of peace and good will, rather than an agency of war and destruction."

The Mayor also sent the following telegram to Secretary of the Navy Wilbur:

"Please accept the assurance of our sincere appreciation in that you have so signally honored your home city. We trust the good ship Los Angeles may serve the nation through a long era of peace and prosperity."

TWO LONG TRIPS FOR AIR LINER

Dirigible Los Angeles to Travel to Panama and to England Next Year

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

LAKEHURST (N. J.) Nov. 25.—Some time during the next year the new Navy dirigible Los Angeles will make separate flights to Panama and England, Rear-Admiral William A. Moffatt, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics of the Navy Department, declared tonight.

Rear-Admiral Moffatt was a passenger aboard the Los Angeles on its return from Washington.

He said the two long flights to be taken during the coming year would prove to the world the usefulness of lighter-than-air craft in transoceanic passenger service.

Every effort will be made to interest America's influential business men in development of the dirigible, the chief of the nation's air service declared, adding that he has already made recommendations that at the first opportunity members of the President's Cabinet, Senators, Congressman and manufacturers be given a ride on the Los Angeles.

Tonight they were guests at a banquet given in their honor.

TWO JAILED BECAUSE OF CAR DEATHS

Motorists Face Charges of Manslaughter; Police Seek Third Driver

Two motorists were lodged in jail last night on charges of manslaughter in connection with the death of two persons in two traffic accidents.

They are August J. Mayer, Jr., 31 years of age, of 8003 Keniston avenue, Hyde Park, and William J. Morris, 33, of 9995 Penrose avenue.

It is charged the former drove away after striking and fatally injuring Mrs. I. W. England, 63, of 129 West Twenty-fourth street, Monday. Morris is accused of being the driver of a car that was wrecked Sunday night, causing the death of a passenger, Charles McCarthy, 19, 11322 San Fernando Road.

Mayer reported to Central Station yesterday and declared he did not know the woman was injured badly until he read in a newspaper that she had died. He was placed under arrest by Detective Lieutenants Condaffer and Hickey. Morris was arrested by Detective Lieutenant Neustetter of the San Fernando Valley Division.

A search was begun yesterday by Detectives Condaffer and Hickey for the hit-and-run motorist who drove away after injuring Al Pinyan, 45, of 201 South Avenue 18, last Thursday. Pinyan died yesterday at the General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Spencer Chaplin

might have heard of the marriage in which the entire nation is interested.

Near the Albin hotel, Chaplin and his party left their machines and entered the establishment through one of the side entrances. Once within the hotel and in the suite that had previously been engaged, Chaplin and his bride refused to see anyone—especially representatives of the press.

Through the great wooden door that closed and remained locked—Chaplin refused to answer any salutations from without. Reporters and photographers—summoned from the four corners of Mexico tried to force their way into the presence of the newly married couple but the door held—and with a few simple exceptions, Chaplin refused to talk.

SEA HONEYMOON

Mrs. Chaplin admitted—still through the door—that they expected to take one of the many boats that slide up and down the coast of Mexico and spend a honeymoon, "shrouded in adorable silence with only deep sea monsters as our guests—and maybe—only maybe, mind you, we might drop off at one of those delightful old Mexican cities on the coast and spend some of our precious honeymoon with wild animals."

Charlie made it very evident to members of the press that they were not to be considered in the light of either "deep-sea monsters" or "wild animals" and also intimated that his idea of "adorable silence" would be forthcoming when he and his bride were safely in his home in Hollywood—surrounded by as many friends as could crowd into his spacious forty-room mansion—across the avenue from Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford—and nestling in the hills about Beverly Hills.

It was after noon before Mr. and Mrs. Chaplin made their appearance at the hotel here and by that time the entire Mexican populace—emotional and tempetuous, aroused over the celebrity in their midst had crowded around the atiquated hostelry. Never in the memory of the oldest inhabitant—not excepting the Yaqui Indian invasions—has the populace been so thoroughly aroused. To a tom tom serenade, multiplied by scores of soft guitars, the crowd surged around the hotel but failed to get a glimpse of the newlyweds.

CHAPLIN'S FLYERS IN LOVE NUMEROUS

Numbered abong the starters in the Charlie Chaplin Matrimonial Derby, won by Lita Grey, beautiful and youthful film star, when she became the wife of the nation's leading comedian in Mexico yesterday were some of the most beautiful and prominent film luminaries.

News of Chaplin's marriage created a mild panic in the film colony yesterday and was thought to have caused more than the usual number of heart beats—or skips—that accompany news of this kind. Chaplin's many courtships—his reported engagements and other "entangling alliances" since he was divorced by Mildred Harris in 1920 have been frequently aired in the newspapers, but his latest step—marriage—closing the doors in the face of several beautiful girls who might have willingly entered the bonds of matrimony with him caused additional gossip.

Shortly after his divorce from Mildred Harris Chaplin and following the death of his infant son, Charlie became infatuated and refused to deny his engagement to May Collins, petite little stage star who later became a screen star with Metro. The Collins case had reached the stage where neither would discuss their relations when along came Claire Windsor—Hollywood's favorite in the marriage stakes. Miss Windsor was said to have supplanted Miss Collins in the sentimental heart of Charlie and when all of their many mutual friends were hoping for a speedy marriage—along came Lila Lee, now the happily married wife of James Oliver Kirkwood, nationally prominent director.

GLAD HE IS MARRIED

Before the advent of Miss Lee in the affections of America's comedy king, Miss Windsor became lost in one of the canyons surrounding Hollywood and Charlie immediately offered a reward of $7000 for her return. Miss Windsor returned, but there is no record of Charlie having paid the reward—nor is there a record of anyone claiming the fund.

"I am so glad Charlie is happily married," Miss Windsor said when informed of his marriage yesterday. "Charlie has always been such a wonderful boy—so full of work and has had so little chance to play. I certainly hope that his new-found happiness may become permanent and that he may be blessed with another son to replace the one he lost several years ago. I will always cherish Mr Chaplin's friendship and will never hesitate to welcome him into my home—and Mrs. Chaplin, too—for anyone Charlie loves—we will all love, too."

While filmdom was still speculating upon the possibilities of a marriage betwen Lila Lee and Charlie, Pola Negri came to the film colony and Charlie at once became enmeshed in the tempestuous avalanche of love. During a hectic courtship and an even more hectic engagement that lasted for nearly a year, Charlie and Pola met, wept, loved—and parted—to meet again until Peggy Joyce came to Los Angeles. Maybe it wasn't Peggy Joyce's fault, but before Pola and the rest of Chaplin's many friends could get their breath—Pola was to Charlie what she had been before she came to this country, and Charlie was to Pola all that he had been before she ever heard of him.

POLA'S EYES TWINKLE

Pola's eyes twinkled when she was informed of Charlie's marriage yesterday. To the uninitiated it seemed that Pola was trying to remember just who Charlie was—but then again the twinkle might have been caused by memories and surely while she would not admit it—Pola must have memories of the one to whom she was engaged for nearly a year.

There was a time when Pola was only too willing to talk about Charlie—but yesterday was not one of the times. Besides refusing to comment upon Charlie's marriage—Pola refused to comment upon Charlie.

It remained for Sidney Chaplin, brother of the comedian, to give the full details of Chaplin's hastened wedding plans. While the rest of the film colony in Hollywood was waiting and speculating, Charlie had already admitted his infatuation for Miss Grey and asked his brother advice regarding an early marriage.

"Charlie came to me several months ago and told me he wanted me to meet truly the sweetest little girl in the world. I met her. She was very sweet and I think adorable and attractive enough to satisfy even the discriminating tastes of Charlie. I found Miss Grey both charming and vivacious and knowing Charlie—and his fits of despondency—can you picture him running all through those forty rooms in his new home alone. Well, say, while I had hoped Charlie would find his true love in pretty little Claire Windsor—when I was convinced that he was really in love with Miss Grey I told him I thought an early marriage was desirable." Sidney Chaplin said

FEARED PUBLICITY

"I wanted Charlie to stay here and get married—have Mary, Doug and the bunch out and have a real wedding, but Charlie has always hated publicity pertaining to his own private life, and he insisted that he could run down to Mexico—get married and return the next day. He pledged me to secrecy and went down early last month. As you know he had to wait and when he came back and told me, I again suggested that he get married here.

"I told him the papers would get hold of it, but he said—after a few days when nothing happened after his marriage application had been published that the Mexican officials were keeping their promise and had not revealed his petition. When he left for Mexico last week the best I could get him to do was to promise to take a camera man with him and have him take some shots of the church—the ceremony, if possible and then—the happy couple afterward.

"I think it is more than a safe bet that he will be back here in Hollywood within the next few days—at the longest."

Douglas Fairbanks, screenland's hero, apologized to his wife, Mary Pickford, across the dinner table last night, and hastened to add his congratulations to the mass speeding to Charlie in Mexico. "The little rascal," Doug said. "Why did he run off to get married? We wanted to have him here with us," the famous Fairbanks smile. "Just tell him Mary and I are delighted and are waiting to welcome him home."

But Charlie is still in Mexico, and his Hollywood friends are planning a homecoming that should make an impression upon the silver screen's most consistent lover, Charles Spencer Chaplin.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—What eight years of courtship couldn't do, cross-word puzzles quickly accomplished, and today the living skeleton, weighing fifty-eight pounds, and the fat lady, weighing 467, got married at the Municipal Building.

Peter Robinson is the happy man, and the fair charmer is—or was—Baby Bunny Smith, in the same show.

It started way back in 1916, when Baby Bunny was living in Bridgeport, Ct., and she was coy and 15 years of age. But her parents said nothing doing, and they went on with their work with Barnum & Bailey.

Love at first sight was too much. Pete kept on wooing and the war came. Baby said she would marry nobody but a soldier hero. Uncle Sam, however, could not see the featherweight.

Pete ate and ate, but two pounds was all he could add.

That ended it again, but only for a while. Then came the cross-word puzzles. Between working hours they sat and mulled over them at their rooming-house. Baby finally couldn't see how she could do them without Pete and they solved their own puzzle by getting married.

NEW MOVE IS ON IN KORETZ CASE

State's Attorney Will Seek More Indictments

Purpose is to Make Possible Fixing Higher Bond

Government Move for First Trial to be Opposed

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Three more indictments will be sought against Leo Koretz, swindler, it was announced today by State's Attorney Robert F. Crowe.

Koretz is now under only one indictment, the charge being that of operating a confidence game. By increasing the number he can be held under high bonds while awaiting trial, the prosecutor said.

A brother, Ferdinand Koretz, is a member of the grand jury and should new true bills against the Bayano River Trust head be sought, the brother probably will be permitted to absent himself from the sittings.

State's Attorney Crowe also indicated today that he would oppose any move upon the government's part to have Koretz tried first in the Federal courts. The United States District Attorney, Edwin A. Olson, has asserted that the government's case is the stronger and would assure a heavier penalty and thereby should be tried first. It is possible under the Federal law for a district judge to issue a writ of habeas corpus for Koretz and thus force the State to turn him over to the government.

WILL OPPOSE SHERIFF

Another move which the prosecutor said he will oppose is the announced intention of the Sheriff to serve a capias on Koretz when he reaches Cook county. Mr. Crowe said that Koretz was his prisoner, and he intended that he should remain so until the State's case was disposed of.

It was ascertained today that Mrs. Koretz, the wife, is not in such difficult financial straits as has been published. Investigators found her living in a bungalow at Winnetka, a North Shore suburb, which had been purchased for $15,000. She was found to be sharing a garage with a neighbor who reported that she owned a "light six" automobile. The investigator also learned that Mrs. Koretz employed a maid servant.

MAY HAVE KORETZ

Mr. Crowe received a telegram from Asst. State's Atty. John Sbarbaro, now in Halifax, indicating that something had occurred there to cause him to leave immediately. No explanation of the move was contained in the message.

The telegram read:

"Urgent that I leave immediately. Made reservation on ocean limited train No. 15. Will arrive Montreal Thursday morning. Will leave Montreal Thursday, 10 a.m., for Chicago. Have Tom O'Malley meet me at Montreal without fail."

Mr. Crowe said that it would be presumed that Sbarbaro was bringing Koretz with him. The "Tom O'Malley" mentioned, is a police sergeant. As he is ill, Sergt. John Murphy will meet Sbarbaro in Montreal instead.

BRITISH ENVOY IN RADIO TEST

Hope of Better Relations Seen by Briton

Urges History be Taught in Public Schools

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The teaching of American history as well as geography in English schools and the acquisition of a greater personal knowledge of the United States "by travel and contact" as a means of strengthening the friendship and good understanding between English-speaking countries, were urged in a prepared address today by Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador, broadcast from station HRC of the Radio Corporation of America, in the tests to establish direct radio communication between this continent and Europe.

"Once we have established in both countries a feeling of absolute confidence, one in another, once we have attained to a certainty that, come what may, nothing ever will be allowed to break the peace between us and once the rest of the world comes to believe this also," Sir Esme said, "then the cause of world peace will indeed have made a giant stride forward toward that final consummation which we all desire."

"But, in order to understand America better," the Ambassador continued, "we should in the first place learn more about her in our schools. I have often heard complaints that England is not fairly presented to the youth of America in American school books, but considering their importance in the world, the United States is not sufficiently studied in our schools. American geography is taught, but American history is scarcely taught at all."

Requiring of each English school boy the reading of a short life of Washington and the problems of his time, a similar life of Lincoln and one of Roosevelt would, in the opinion of the Ambassador, "bring America as she is as vividly as possible before the eyes of our young people."

Declaring that English people have an idea that in America "there are only the towns to see," Sir Esme said that for those who seek rest and country life "there is all over this continent a vast variety of scenery, of climate, of interesting and new flora and fauna, to say nothing of incomparable golf courses."

Southern Pacific Situation Laid Before Labor Board

Members Indicate No Action Will be Taken at Present

Dispute Involved in Question Before Supreme Court

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—The United States Railroad Labor Board today reported receipt of a telegram from J. H. Dyer of San Francisco, general manager of the Southern Pacific Railway, calling its attention to the fact that a strike vote is being taken among the firemen and engineers of the system. The board took no action.

Mr. Dyer's telegram stated that the vote was being taken because the employees had "failed to compel" the management to confer with them about a dispute over wages and rules.

Representatives of the engine brotherhoods here said they were informed that the vote was being taken because the management "had refused to confer" with the employees.

The dispute concerning which the employees proposed to confer already is under the jurisdiction of the board, and spokesmen of the board indicated that therefore it would not be deemed necessary for the board to take special action. The board assumed jurisdiction against the protest of the brotherhood last April, its action affecting the Southern Pacific and nearly all other important lines west of Chicago.

The roads refused to confer thereafter with the employee on the separate properties, maintaining that they had authorized the Western Managers conference committee (Jeffers committee) to represent them in the dispute until its conclusion. The Board held that failure of the employees and the Jeffers committee to agree threatened interruption of commerce; the employees contended that the intervention of the board interfered with the conference between employees and managements. The question is now before the Supreme court.

The employees contended that agreement with the Jeffers committee was impossible because the committee insisted upon the application on all roads of a number of rules affecting them unequally, but that they could agree with the individual roads if permitted to confer with them one by one on local issues.

Representatives of some of the railroads differed.

William M. Jeffers of Omaha, chairman of the committee, said he was unable to answer when asked at a board hearing why the managements had formerly insisted on separate conferences and now insisted on concerted conferences.

SPROULE OUTLINES WAGE NEGOTIATIONS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25.—President William Sproule of the Southern Pacific Company today made public a brief outline of the negotiations which preceded action by leaders of the engineers' and firemen's organizations in calling for a strike vote.

This outline asserts that:

(1.) Southern Pacific officers did confer for six months directly with the enginemen on the demand for increased wages, which started the controversy and exhausted all means to settle the matter by negotiations.

(2.) The movement for increased wages was general on part of the enginemen's organization on all western lines and at the request of the Southern Pacific and the enginemen themselves, the entire question was referred to a committee of railroad general managers representing all western lines affected, which met with representatives of the brotherhoods.

(3.) The enginmen's leaders, by refusing to consider any modification of working rules, made it necessary for the railroads to refer the entire question of both wages and working rules to the Railroad Labor Board, but not until every effort to reach an agreement by negotiation had been made.

(4.) Since the entire question passed into the hands of the general managers' committee and then to the Labor Board, Southern Pacific, with proper respect for the law, has no alternative but to leave the matter in the hands of the Labor Board on which the public has the balance of power.

(5.) The United States Railroad Labor Board is definitely given jurisdiction in such cases and authority to subpoenae witnesses by the National Transportation Act. The enginemen have refused to recognize such subpoena.

(6.) No change in the cost of living has occurred to justify the increases in operating expenses embodied in the brotherhood's wage demands.

(7.) The strike vote is a move by which the labor organization leaders hope to gain public support for the Howell-Barkley bill in Congress, which aims to abolish the Railroad Labor Board in which the public has the balance of power.

LABOR BOARD HELD TARGET IN STRIKE MOVE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The strike votes now being taken by engineers and firemen of the Southern Pacific Railway were characterized today by Julius Kruttschnitt, chairman of the company, as a political move to stir up the country against the Transportation Act and Labor Board.

Having unsuccessfully importuned President William Sproule of the Southern Pacific to take the controversy over wage increases and other matters out of the hands of the Labor Board, Mr. Kruttschnitt said the general committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen under pressure of their grand officers now in San Francisco had decided to poll their members for and against a strike.

"There is considerable opposition to this move on the part of the rank and file of the engineers," the chairman asserted. "Trainmen, yardmen and other employees are not in sympathy with the attitude of the enginemen. Those opposing the strike votes charge that the real purpose is to discredit the Labor Board and promote the passage of the Berkley bill and the move seems to be aimed at accomplishing the purpose of the two organizations to refuse to answer subpoenas and attend hearings of the Labor Board."

METHODISTS TO TEST CHURCH REGENERATION

EVANGELISTIC WORK TO BE CONDUCTED BY LAYMEN AS EXPERIMENT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

COLUMBUS (O.) Nov. 25.—An outline of the program of personal evangelism for Methodist Episcopal churches of the Cincinnati area was given delegates to the Methodist Men's Council in session here, by Bishop T. S. Henderson, Cincinnati, at group meetings today.

Evangelistic work by laymen will regenerate the church and overcome the slump in activities and contributions experienced during the last conference year, Bishop Henderson declared, speaking before each of the three group meetings.

"We have been putting too many second-string men into the game" said the bishop. "The real test of leadership, whether of laymen, pastors or district superintendents, is either to discover leaders or to develop them. Leaders never follow the crowd and it was the crowd that crucified Christ."

Bishop Henderson's program of evangelism covers a period of four months and has the ultimate goal of "building an evangelistic church."

INDICTED IN OLD MURDER

Grand Jury Charges Illinois Business Man With Slaying of Publisher's Son

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

ROCK ISLAND (Ill.) Nov. 25.—Jacob Ramser, Rock Island business man, was named by the Rock Island county grand jury today in an indictment charging murder in connection with the killing two years ago of John Connor Looney, son of John Looney, publisher, during a fight between two underworld factions here.

Ramser was named in charges made by Anthony W. Billburg and George Holsapple, both under conviction for the crime. These charges were brought before the court in the form of an affidavit that not only accused Ramser of being young Looney's murderer, but also accused John J. Potter, John Colligan, publisher and managing editor, respectively, of the Rock Island Argus, and Thomas Haege, a retail clothing merchant, with the actual crime only Ramser was named in the indictment returned late today.

The shooting of young Looney occurred October 6, 1922, in Market Square at Rock Island and climaxed a veritable reign of terror in which nine murders within a few weeks had been committed.

CRIME DISCUSSED

John Looney, publisher of a weekly newspaper, and recognized head of the vice element of Rock Island, was opposed in the vice world there by Anthony Billburg, one of the men who signed the affidavit against Ramser.

Holsapple told of numerous meetings in which Potter, Colligan, Haege and Ramser had taken the leadership, all of which the affidavit stated, were for the purpose of doing away with John Looney, the father of the slain man.

The affidavit actually held Ramser as the man who fired the shots, but had the other three named in the affidavit as having fired during the general shooting.

MANY SHOTS FIRED

Citizens of Rock Island who saw the affray claim that there were more than 200 shots fired. Potter, Colligan and Haege have all three denied that they had anything to do with the case other than that they were members of various civic committees that were at the time trying to rid Rock Island of its crime.

At the trial at which Billburg, Holsapple and two others were convicted Ramser's name was mentioned several times. It was proven, however, to the apparent satisfaction of the court, at that time, that he was not implicated when a number of prominent citizens testified that he was in his jewelry store three blocks away when the shooting began.

John Looney, the father, left Rock Island suddenly when a Federal warrant charging him with transporting a stolen automobile across the State line, was about to be served on him. This was a few weeks after the killing of his son, and he was located about six weeks ago on a ranch in Albuquerque, N. M. He announced two weeks ago that he was coming back to Illinois to stand trial for violation of the stolen automobile charge.

JURY GIVEN HUGE MAIL FRAUD CASE

Most Gigantic Swindling Scheme Charged Against Mortgage Company

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 25.—The case of sixteen officials of the Hawkins Mortgage Company, charged with conspiracy to use the mails in a scheme to defraud, was given to the jury early tonight after Judge Ferdinand A. Geiger of Milwaukee, presiding, had delivered his instructions.

Most of the day's session was taken up with final arguments. Attorneys for twelve of the defendants made their final pleas and argued that evidence introduced had shown their clients innocent of any intent to defraud.

U. S. Dist.-Atty. Homer Elliott closing for the State, declared the defendants were parties to one of the most gigantic swindling schemes ever revealed in local United States District Court and said the evidence had shown each of them to have engaged actively in the fraudulent operations of the Hawkins concern through which investors were mulcted out of several million of dollars.

The trial has been in progress in Federal Court for the last two weeks.

Military Called as Mob Demands Negro From Jail

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEWBERN (N. C.) Nov. 25.—The local National Guard unit was called out here late today on order of Gov. Cameron Morrison to protect the Craven County Jail, which was surrounded by a mob demanding John Godette, negro, who is charged with killing a little girl early in the day.

Battery D, One Hundred and Seventeenth Field Artillery took up its station at the jail shortly after nightfall.

Godette, who was at liberty pending an appeal to the United States Supreme Court from a conviction under the prohibition law, is alleged to have driven an automobile into a group of school children at Croatan, twelve miles from here, this afternoon, fatally injuring Edna Williams, 12 years of age. He was overtaken and arrested some time later.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, Nov. 25.—When May Palmer answered an advertisement for a wife she did it as a joke. Her girl chum dared her to. But the other day a young man called at her home and told her he was the author of the marriage ad. Miss Palmer blushed, for the youth before her was good looking and, incidentally, is comfortably well-to-do.

Before the day had passed Miss Palmer had whispered the necessary yes, and John Coleman of Tilshead, Wiltshire, had purchased an engagement ring. The wedding plans are being rushed.

UNIONISTS AGAIN ELECT GOMPERS

All Other Old Officers Are Retained by Organization

Veteran Leader Urges Fight Against Cuts in Wages

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

EL PASO (Tex.) Nov. 25.—Samuel Gompers, completing sixty-three years of service in the American union labor movement, today was unanimously re-elected president of the American Federation of Labor, a post he has held every year but one since the organization of the federation in 1881.

"There is just one thing that I want to impress upon this convention before we adjourn," he said in accepting re-election, "and through you I hope to impress it upon all who work with us in the American movement.

"Come what may, in industry, American wage-earners will resist to the end any effort to reduce wages.

"The attitude of the American Federation of Labor is that any industry which will not support its workers on the level of American standards of life had best get out of business."

OTHERS RE-ELECTED

Re-elected with Mr. Gompers were eight vice-presidents, secretary and treasurer, all unanimously.

Secretary Frank Morrison will begin his twenty-eighth year in the office next month.

Vice-presidents named in the order of their rank are: James Duncan, Frank Duffy, William Green, T. A. Rickart, Jacob Fischer, Matthew Woll, Martin F. Ryan and James Wilson. Daniel J. Tobine continues in the treasurership.

In a two-hour morning session the convention today reaffirmed the federation's stand for American participation in the World Court of International Justice and asked appointment of a special Congressional joint committee to investigate charges of violence in the general elections in Porto Rico.

Continued co-operation with the labor organizations of Latin-America represented in the Pan-American Federation of Labor was pledged in the report of the committee on international labor relations, approved without debate.

GREETING TO CALLES

An expression of greetings and good wishes to Gen. Calles, Presidena-elect of Mexico, was embodied in the report.

Affiliation of the American Federation with the International Federation of Trade Unions was rejected by the committee report, because of "the abolition of strict autonomy of each affiliated center."

The committee expressed the hope, however, that conditions in the near future would permit affiliation.

More than 200 delegates and officers of the convention will leave here Thursday for Mexico City, the guests of the Mexican Confederation of Labor, to attend the inauguration of Gen. Calles.

The 1925 convention will be in Atlantic City, N. J., at a date in September or October, to be fixed by the executive council.

WESTERN PACIFIC TO MAKE STOCK DIVIDEND

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Western Pacific Railroad stockholders will receive by January next a stock dividend of one share of common and one share of preferred for each six shares of stock now owned, according to bankers familiar with the road's affairs. This is the stock dividend authorized four years ago and which has been deferred because of litigation involving the Denver and Rio Grande. Bankers acquainted with the Western Pacific situation, point out that as each owner of six shares of Western Pacific securities will receive one share of common and one share of preferred, the stock dividend will be worth $114, based on current prices for these stocks.

LIQUOR CONTROL DOES NOT WORK

British Columbia Astounded at Booze Consumption

Every Inhabitant Pays $3.29 Monthly, is Record

Bootleggers Swell Total by Illicit Sales

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VICTORIA (B.C.) Nov. 25.—While British Columbia is spending money on liquor at the rate of about $3 per month for every man, woman and child of its population, according to latest figures, the provincial government has found itself in new difficulties in its sudden attempt to reform the government control system by the appointment of a liquor "dictator."

The new dictator has been appointed at a salary of $1000 a month and instructed to overhaul this province's pioneer liquor system completely, but the old Liquor Control Board, dismissed by the government, has remained in office, protesting stoutly that it has not resigned, as stated by Atty.-Gen. A. M. Manson.

With the new commissioner in charge and the three old commissioners still in office, something like a stalemate has been reached and the provincial Legislature in session now is asking the government, in effect: "Where do we go from here?"

So far the government has made no definite reply except to assert that the old liquor commissioners have resigned "verbally." To this the commissioners have replied that they have not resigned, verbally or in any other way, and apparently they have no intention of doing so. Meanwhile opposition members of the Legislature are planning to move for a complete probe of the liquor administration by a select committee of the house.

Latest figures showing the amount of money spent in this province on liquor through the government stores—and this is apart altogether from the bootleggers' enormous sales—have caused amazement and alarm here. These figures show that every month in Vancouver, the largest city in the Province, $3.29 is spent on liquor for every man, woman and child of the city's population.

In Victoria the monthly per capita expenditure on liquor at government stores is $2.31. How much of this money is spent by visitors, of course, the official figures do not show, but even allowing a generous estimate for thirsty tourists, the local consumption evidently is much heavier than was generally understood. In addition to the liquor sold at government stores an enormous quantity is distributed by the well-organized bootleggers, who flourish all over the Province.

Workman Is Also Back on Job After Plunge in Elevator Shaft

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

TACOMA (Wash.) Nov. 25.—Jack Brown, a workman employed in the construction of a new hotel building here, is back on the job today after falling ten stories down an elevator shaft Saturday. Brown ran a wheel barrow of cement off the elevator and after dropping it, took a step backward. The elevator had started downward and he tumbled off into space. After falling three stories he clutched the cable. With his legs wrapped around it he slid to the ground a few seconds behind the cage.

NEW PEKING CABINET IS ANNOUNCED

Followers of Generals Feng and Wu Pei Fu Get No Place on Council

BY CHARLES DAILEY
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PEKING, Nov. 25.—Tuan Chi Jui heads the new Chinese Cabinet, the personnel of which was announced today. Tang Shao Yi is Foreign Minister. Although it had been announced the Cabinet would not be confined to any one party, none of the followers of Gen. Feng Yu Hsiang or Gen. Wu Pei Fu were selected.

Gen. Wu Kuang Hsin of Mukden was made Minister of War and Gen. Feng's troops were assigned to him. Much interest is manifested in Feng's future attitude. So far his resignation has not been promulgated. Incidentally it was Gen. Feng whose treachery to his erstwhile commander, Gen. Wu Pei Fu, played a large part in putting the Manchurian leader, Chang Tso Lin, into power at Peking.

It is stated that Gen. Feng has invited Gen. Wu Pei Fu asking him to retire and join him in a tour of Europe and America. Gen. Feng asked Gen. Wu to wait for him at Tien-tsin. He suggested the tour so that the atmosphere might be cleared for peace, adding "I can never agree with your martial policy."

Gen. Feng is proceeding to Tien-tsin, but apparently he will not leave China until he judges the temper of Gen. Wu Pei Fu regarding joining Tuan's council. Gen. Feng is still able to command 125,000 troops, while Chang Tso Lin has 120,000 inside the Great Wall of China.

His "Friends" Played Poker Far Too Well

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DENVER, Nov. 25.—Walter Payne, a husky Laramie cowboy, hadn't been in Denver very long until he decided it is an easy place to get acquainted. And it wasn't very long after he reached that conclusion until he became convinced getting chummy with strangers is rather expensive.

According to his complaint to the police, he became acquainted with Leroy Silcox at the postoffice. They adjourned to the McAlpin Hotel, he said, to amuse themselves with a little game of "strip" poker. But in the hotel they met Frank Hargraves, and it was decided to play real poker.

Payne said that after a short session, his new friends advised him he was $50 loser. He couldn't see it that way, so, he alleges, they "ganged" him. He appealed to the police to get his money back.

Hargraves was jailed for investigation and detectives are looking for Silcox.

ASCOT PILOTS SET TO GO

Drivers Wind Up Practice for Thanksgiving Day Race; Rivalry Keen Among Contestants

Following a day of furious practice driving for the Ascot Gold Cup Thanksgiving Day road race, the forty-six pilots who will start in the chance-taking classic at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, turned the road course over to the oiling brigade for the second and final coating of the most effective, dust-laying fluid known to the racing sharks.

The course will be closed until late this afternoon when only those drivers convincing the starter that it is absolutely necessary to use the circuit in order to perform some tuning-up stunts will be permitted to whirl around for a few laps. Many of the drivers will remove their cylinder heads and take a final look at the pistons and bearings. Most of the dare-devils, however, are satisfied with the condition of their mounts and will spread the proverbial blanket over

SCHAEFER GETS OFF IN FRONT

Jake Schaefer, Jr., playing one of the greatest games of his billiard career, won the first block from Champion Willie Hoppe yesterday afternoon at Chick Wright's billiard parlors. The cue stars are playing a match of 3200 points in 400 blocks, afternoon and evening, finishing next Friday night. Schaefer won the lag and chose the white ball.

It required some time for him to get in touch with his inimitable stroke—then the ivories began to click merrily to his will and he ran out the 400 points in thirteen innings.

Hoppe accumulated 219 points, but among those buttons were some rare shots that fairly dazzled the packed house of billiard lovers that witnessed the big struggle.

He made a number of exceptional three-cushion carroms that electrified all present. The table was fast and the balls in perfect shape. The men resume their match this evening at 8 o'clock when they will start on their second 400 block. Schaefer will continue from where he left the balls this afternoon. The score:

NIMRODS GO TO IMPERIAL

CONFERENCE TO SELECT REPRESENTATIVE SQUAD

Irishmen Refuse to Make Choice in Naming Rival; Pasadenans Leave It to Colleges

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SOUTH BEND (Ind.) Nov. 25.—"Any team the Coast officials may pick to meet Notre Dame will be suitable to us," Knute Rockne said tonight when asked regarding the report that Leland Stanford University had been selected to meet his squad at Pasadena New Year's Day. Rockne said Notre Dame officials are awaiting definite word from the Tournament of Roses committee that the negotiations have been completed.

Tournament of Roses officials will not make any final decision as to which Pacific Coast football team shall meet Notre Dame at Pasadena New Year's Day, it was announced here last night by Leslie B. Henry, chairman of the Tournament of Roses football committee.

"If Notre Dame finds it difficult to choose between Stanford University and the University of Southern California," Henry said, after learning Notre Dame officials were awaiting completion of negotiations in Pasadena, "the matter will be left to the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate Conference to decide.

"In no case will the Tournament of Roses committee undertake the final selection of a fitting opponent for the eastern eleven. As the matter stands now it is strictly up to Notre Dame, the University of Southern California and Stanford University."

Mr. Henry last night suggested to Ralph La Porte, president of the Coast Conference, that a telegraphic poll be taken from all members of the conference for the purpose of selecting a representative Coast team.

Bengal Outfielder Now Free to Negotiate for Manager's Job

To show his appreciation for the many years of good work Chet Chadbourne has given the Vernon club since 1917, Ed Maier announced last night through Secretary Howard Lorenz that he had made the veteran Bengal centerfielder a free agent, in order that he might land a manager's position with some club.

Chadbourne, who has consistently been rated as the best flychaser in the Coast League ranks, is one of the best-liked players in the game and his many friends will be pleased to learn of his being made a free agent and being able to land a pilot's berth. The veteran Chad is one of the smartest men in the baseball racket and it is a certainty that he will soon be grabbed by some owner needing a manager.

Oxy Eleven Off on First Lap of Trip

Nineteen football players of Occidental College, runner-up against Pomona College for the 1924 Southern California Intercollegiate football conference championship, headed by Coach Sid Nichols, and accompanied by Graduate Manager Fred McLain and Trainer W. W. Anderson, left here yesterday for San Francisco, where they will sail for Honolulu to meet the University of Hawaii eleven December 6.

Four women were included in the party. They were the wives of McLain, Nichols, Anderson and of a faculty member of the institution.

SANTA BARBARA TO PLAY IN NEW PARK

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA BARBARA, Nov. 25.—The Santa Barbara High School football team, runners-up to the champions of Santa Barbara county, will meet the husky Huntington Park eleven Thanksgiving Day in the new high school stadium here. The stadium, built at a cost of nearly $100,000 is the gift of Frederick Forrest Peabody, head of the Cluett-Peabody Company of Troy, N. Y., and president of the Santa Barbara School Board, to the students of Santa Barbara High School.

Polytechnic and L. A. High will enter their City League championship deciding game tomorrow at the Coliseum with neither eleven a favorite. The two squads appear as evenly matched on the eve of their annual grid clash as the Siamese twins. The dope predicts a hard-fought battle with the breaks, used by all writers to prevent their being shown up, deciding the contest—and the championship.

Both teams have come through their four-game schedule undefeated and with flying honors. The Mechanics and Romans each played and squelched Hollywood and Franklin, but the comparative scores throw the dopesters farther up in the air then ever. Poly trounced Hollywood, 34 to 0, while the Los Angeles High squad downed the Movie City eleven by only 7 to 0. That gives the impression that the Mechanics are four touchdowns better. However, on comparing the results of the Franklin games we find something else again. Los Angeles High defeated the Kiteflyers, 21 to 0, while Poly had a terrible time beating out Sam Tenison's squad, 7 to 0. So the comparative score business doesn't mean anything at all in this case.

JUST EVEN

Taking the offensive strength of the Romans and Mechanics in their four-league games, Voyle Brennen's outfit led with 95 points scored to 71 made by the Romans. That makes Poly the favorite once more. Then taking the

LOMBARDO DRAWS KAPLAN

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Jose Lombardo of Panama and Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Meriden, Ct., will be the principals in the semifinal match in the featherweight elimination to be held at Madison Square Garden December 12. Danny Kramer, Philadelphia left-hander, will meet the winner of this match in the final round of the tournament three weeks later.

This was determined by a draw made today at the offices of the State Athletic Commission in the presence of the managers of the three principals. The commission suggested to the three managers that Bobby Garcia of Camp Holabird, Md., and Mike Dundee of Rock Island, Ill., be matched up in a twelve-round bout prior to the December 12 fight and the winner meet Danny Kramer in another bracket of the semifinal, but the managers unanimously rejected the proposition and the commission announced it would go through with the original schedule.

Mike McTigue Seeks to Take on Berlenbach

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Mike McTigue, according to reliable information, tomorrow will apply for a license to defend his world's light-heavyweight laurels in New York State. He will appear before the commission requesting a new card and permission to box Paul Berlenbach at Madison Square Garden either before or after the holidays.

Messrs. Brower, Muldoon and Farley have insisted right along that the only way Mike can get back in the good graces of Gotham fandom is to fight Gene Tunney. Inasmuch as Tunney refused to defend his American title against Tom Gibbons, the commission no longer is called upon to protect Tunney. Therefore, it is possible that it may agree to allow McTigue to box Berlenbach.

ROMAN LIGHTWEIGHTS DEFEAT BELMONTERS

While their big brothers were engaging Hollywood High yesterday, the L. A. High lightweight basketball team went over to Belmont High and defeated the Hilltoppers by a 15-to-12 score. The Roman babes came from behind in the second half to win after the score had stood 11 to 7 against them at half time. Capt. Jimmy Morford, Livermore and Jillson starred for the victors.

Nominations for Handicap Events at Tia Juana Opening Made

ENTRIES CROWD FEATURE LISTS

Rush to Sign Famous Steeds for Star Events

Stables Still Pouring in at Border City Track

All in Readiness for Turkey Day Turf Program

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TIA JUANA RACE TRACK (Mex.) Nov. 25.—With a rush came the nominations today for the two handicaps, the Hollywood at five and one-half furlongs and the Inaugural at one mile and seventy yards, which will feature the program opening day Thursday. Tonight George W. Schilling, racing secretary, is burning the so-called midnight oil as he wrestles with the intricate problem of giving the nominees the proper weights.

An unusually high class field of distance horses are nominated for the Inaugural Handicap. Headed by the well-known Runstar, there are sixteen others named for this feature and included in the field will be three stable entries.

The famed Swingalong Stable of New York appears to be well rigged with the horses Swingalong and Rival. They are gallopers with references. The International Stable will saddle Postillion and Black Wand as its entry. Sunnyland and Be Frank will carry the colors of the Bronx Stable, owned by George F. Fuller of San Francisco. As for thoroughbreds who will battle it out without a stable companion there are Rock Heather, All Over, Tis Seth, Royal Visitor, Firm Friend, Tangerine, Irish Buzzer, Eminent, Gano and Plucky.

SEEK WEIGHTS

In the Hollywood Handicap owners of twenty-nine runners have asked for weights. Of course all will not start, but the field for this should number at least a dozen. If there is an outstanding horse among the nominees opinion appears to favor Dr Clark. With Runstar he will be the San Diego Stable entry, this establishment being owned by Baron Long. The Miramonte Stock Farm pins its faith to Brimstone, Freebooter and Music Box. J. W. Marshbank will have Snookeie Bradley and Barn Dollar.

Rudolph Spreckels has asked for weights for Publisher and Combustor, the Swingalong Stable will try with Swingalong and Rival. Batsman and Time Exposure are from the Pueblo Stable. Postillion and Bright Idea come from the International Stable. The Greenbriar Stabe has nominated Scissors with Buddy Ryan. The Bronx Stable names Couer de Lion and Paula Shay. Other thoroughbreds, who are nominated to run singly in the Hollywood Handicap are Right On Time, Easter Bells, Tracer, Nayarit, Runolathe, Firm Friend, False Face, Belle of Elizabethtown, Knighthood and Doc Horn.

MAY SPLIT PURSE

Weights will be announced tomorrow morning and the horsemen will have until 11 a.m. to accept or decline.

Judging from the great number of horses ready to race at this time, there is likely to be so many entries for one of the purse races that it will be split and thus eight in place of seven races will be offered for the first day.

The San Diego California Club, a civic organization of San Diego, moved in on the job today and has opened a bureau, which has a big list of accommodations for visitors. All will be taken care of, it is announced.

Each train today brought increased travel and the Coast Highway was well filled with motor cars. The eastern branch of the Nevada Stock Farm Stable, which is owned by George W. Wingfield of Reno arrived today from the East in charge of Trainer Preston Burch. The star of the lot is General Thatcher, a stake runner of long established ability.

The weather continued fine today and a damp opening would seem to be an impossibility. The track will be in tip-top shape and in fact careful inspection shows that all details of the stage setting are ready for the 1924-25 opening.

Pasadena Bows to Dynamiter Pennyweights

Glendale's 110-pounders are keeping step with the varsity, so far, having won their way into the semifinal round of play in the Southern California championship yesterday, by handing the Pasadena whispers the short end of a 14-to-6 score.

The Dynamiter pennyweights made their tallies in the first and fourth cantos, respectively. Each time a series of end runs and passes put the ball within scoring distance, and then Killinger, the plunging full, would smash through the line for scores. Lovell added the extra point each time.

Pasadena's lone tally came in the third period, when a punt went out on Glendale's 16-yard line. The Millionaires pushed their way to the goal, and Smith went over for a tally. Thompson failed to convert. The line-ups:

MATA TO FACE LANCHO

Phil Mata and Young Lancho completed a lot of hard work yesterday for their bout tonight at the Pasadena Armory, which will top off an interesting card arranged by Matchmaker Pop Hanlon. Mata and Lancho fought to a fast draw a few weeks ago, and each is out for a decisive victory tonight.

The Armory fights are usually held on Thursdays, but the occurrence of Thanksgiving resulted in the advancement of the weekly program.

Young McDowell and Billy Kalman have rematched for the semi-wind-up. McDowell is irking under the disgrace of having been knocked out by Kalman recently with what McDowell claims was a lucky punch. He will have an opportunity to prove his point tonight.

The special event will bring together Mickey O'Brien and Johnny McCoy, while Jimmy Porter and Young Polo scrap in the feature preliminary. The card also includes two other bouts.

The usual drivers' meeting was held last night at the Ascot Speedway clubhouse. The race officials explained the rules of the race to the speed boys and listened attentively to suggestions from several pilots who gave constructive pointers about the conditioning of the track, guarding the sharp turns and the flagging system which will be employed. The six drivers who were added to the qualifying list through the sportsmanship of the "fortunate forty," express their appreciation of the courtesy shown them, but all expressed their determination to ignore reciprocation once the race is started.

Two factions developed during the meeting, one crowd of drivers in the stock, and semistock car division banding together against the pilots who will tool the specially constructed racing jobs. The rivalry between the two branches of contestants is very keen. It developed during an argument that Cliff Bergere, entrant of his eight-in-a-row Speedway-type Duesenberg, is to mount another pilot on his whirl-around chariot and will drive a stock model straight-eight Duesenberg, the entry of Harrigan & Cleveland in the race. Bergere declared in most emphatic terms that he believes a stock or near-stock car will grab off the first prize and that a large majority of the money positions will go to cars entered by manufacturers and dealers. Arthur Chevrolet, builder of strictly special racing motors; Frank Lockhart, who has deserted his little No. 27 track car for a speedway Duesie; Les Allen, who will drive one of the Pike's Peak winning Lexingtons; Noel Bullock and Gus Schrader all strung along with Chevrolet in the soapbox sweepstakes.

Ascot officials announced last night the selection of John Bowers, motion-picture actor and sportsman, to serve as referee of the classic. Bowers's entry of a Duesenberg stock car was eliminated during the trials last Sunday when a blown tire caused the car to leave the course, and being without a spare tire, the driver lost his chance to qualify through the slow trip back to the pits.

With the elimination of Bowers as an entrant in the race his selection as referee followed.

The race will be run under the international rules, under which the American Grand Prize event was always contested. The automobile clubs of Great Britain, France and Italy promulgate the conditions. All supplies, except a tire change, must be taken on at the pits. A row of pits running nearly one-half of the speedway proper has been constructed.

Mechanic Gym Squad Upsets Artisan Crew

The Polytechnic gym club, coached by John Burke, turned in a 33-to-23 victory over the Manual Arts apparatus apes in a dual meet staged yesterday in the Mechanic gymnasium. The meet was decided by the last event, the rope climb, in which the Poly men captured all three places.

Tommy Norman starred for the Mechanics, scoring thirteen points, with firsts in the horizontal bar and Roman rings and a second in the rope climb. Flanagan featured for the Artisans with firsts in the long horse and parallel bar events.

Summary:

Horizontal bar—Norman (P.) first, Rose (M.) second, Glascock (P.) third.
Roman rings—Norman (P.) first, Glascock (P.) second, Taylor (M.) third.

Long horse—Flanagan (M.) first, Smith (M.) second, Dagge (M.) third.

HOLLYWOOD FIVE WINS

Coach Bill Paige's Casaba Men Again Down L. A. High Basketball Team

Hollywood High's fast basketball team defeated L. A. High by a 19-to-17 score on the Wilshire courts yesterday. The teams were tied, 15 to 15, at the close of the fourth quarter, but in the extra period the Foothillers shot two field goals to L. A.'s one and copped the contest. This is the second time the two quintets have met. Coach Bill Paige's chargers having defeated the Romans by a 30-to-21 score a week ago.

Fawcett, diminutive Hollywood forward, was the big hero of yesterday's struggle, scoring ten points all told. Breer, Sunseri and Kussman did most of the offensive work for the Blue and White boys. Capt. Al Cramer starred on the L. A. side of the defense.

In the first half, Hollywood was unable to score a field goal. L. A. leading by an 8-to-5 score when they came on for the third period. Both teams scored three points in the third quarter and Hollywood went strong to count seven points and tie the score in the fourth. The line-ups:

OBSERVATIONS

BY THE INNOCENT BYSTANDER
BILL HENRY

It looks a good deal now as though Stanford had been selected to meet Notre Dame at Pasadena on New Year's Day. At the time of writing these lines the unofficial statements had not been confirmed by the Pasadena officials, but the authenticity of the reports had not been questioned. Of course the more rabid U.S.C. adherents are terribly upset over the selection of their hated enemy and see in this action all kinds of motives which don't enter into the selection at all.

If Stanford is chosen it will have been selected, first, because it is the most representative team available. Stanford has an absolutely clean slate of no defeats and only one tie—it is the best record on the Coast. Secondly, the choice is proper because the team is composed largely of Southern California boys and it has not been seen in action down here. A lot of people want to see Stanford. Third, the choice is proper since there is no chance of further complications, Stanford's season being over. Had U.S.C. been chosen there would be the possibility of a Trojan defeat at the hands of Syracuse on December 6.

After listening earnestly to several dozen Trojan enthusiasts we find that, summed up, their claim to the game is based on the fact that this is a Southern California game, and they are a Southern California team; therefore, they ought to play it. It is similarly based on the debatable point that U.S.C. could beat Stanford if they played. Personally, we'd be satisfied to see either of them play Notre Dame, but if Pasadena is trying to locate the most representative western team available there is no choice but Stanford.

We look forward with considerable interest to the proposed January 1 games held in other parts of the country. California, as is well known, will play Pennsylvania at Berkeley and the University of Washington is threatening to play somebody or other up at Seattle. This is not the first time that other sections of the country have tried their hands at this January 1 stuff, and we're wondering how they'll make out.

San Diego has made several attempts, all of which suffered from lack of attendance, but the first one was saved by rain insurance. Then there was Stanford, which put on a battle between the Cardinals and the Pittsburg Panthers at Palo Alto a couple of days before New Year's two years ago. Rain for ten days previous to the game ruined it. This year California will probably draw well against Pennsylvania.

The grand old mania for all-conference, all-everything else football teams is now sweeping over the land with "experts" busily engaged in naming men whom they have never seen on teams of one kind or another. Of course, such teams do a certain amount of honor to many deserving athletes who are worthy of more distinction than they usually get in their own home institution, but as a general rule they are the bunk.

Usually there is an epidemic of good fullbacks or something like that and so the expert picks out three of them and says that of course none of them ever played quarterback, but they undoubtedly could play quarter better than anybody who played the position all season, so he names them on his teams. If the experts would pick men in the positions they played and pick them because of their qualifications for that particular position it wouldn't be so bad.

COLIMA TAKES EASY VERDICT

Portland shiek, and Sailor Navarro, the human jumping-jack, who trounced Benny Blair the week before. It was the best battle of the evening. The judges ruled that Grandetta had won on points, but the decision was greeted with an avalanche of boos.

FIGHT DRAW

Sailor Joyce, a tall, lanky Navy battler, wielded his rangy tattooed arms to such good effect that he was able to earn a draw with Paul Duarte in the fourth spot.

In the third bout of the evening Joe Layman and Sailor Fernandez battled in a great slugging bee, with the former carrying off the decision. Both boxers stood toe-to-toe and let everything fly for the full four rounds. The house was in an uproar during the greater part of the scrap.

TRAMBITAS TAKES ON DUDLEY AT ASSEMBLY

Alex Trambitas and Young Dudley of San Francisco, are carded for the main event at the Assembly Athletic Club fight show tonight. Both are good men and are working hard in preparation for the battle. Trambitas is a slight favorite because of longer experience, but Dudley figures to give him a tough run.

really appreciated for his wonderful fielding because he makes all catches appear so easy. C had can snag liners without extending himself, which speedy youngsters would have to run at top speed to get to and then make it look so difficult that they are immediately made heroes by the fans. One reason for Chadbourne's great fly-chasing ability is that he knows just where to play for the batters and knows exactly where the ball is going as soon as it hits the bat.

The veteran Tiger outfielder will leave for the East tomorrow to attend the national minor-league convention at Hartford, where he will have an opportunity to take his pick of several offers.

Colton Eleven Captures From Corona Outfit

The Colton High eleven advanced a notch in the play-off for the Southern California prep football championship by trouncing the Corona gridders, 21 to 6, in an elimination game played yesterday on the Ontario field.

Colton had the edge all the way, pushing their adversaries all over the gridiron. The score at half time favored Colton 18 to 6. Corona made its only score in the second period.

DIAZ MATCHED WITH KID PAYO AT LYCEUM

Benny Diaz and Kid Payo, the two popular Mexican 118-pounders who have fought more draws together than any other two fighters in the country, will take up their feud where they left off several weeks ago in the Lyceum Athletic Club ring Saturday night. A packed house is predicted, as these two sockers never fail to give the the fans four rounds of action.

The semi-wind-up fight sees Joe Villa Flores and Champ Monroe, a pair of 128-pounders, in action. The Filipino, Flores, is a fast glove-swinger, but he will have a tough time beating a knockout puncher the caliber of Monroe. Benny Dawson, a mighty clever boy, and Young Joe Rivers, a fighter from a way back, are paired off in the special event. Other bouts:

Billy Shannon vs. Art Lincoln, 130 pounds.

Frank Melcar vs. Bud Kelly, 130 pounds.

Kid Henry vs. Young Hogan, 108 pounds.

VENICE HIGH LADS FORWARD ENTRIES

Entries from the Venice High School in the annual Southern California prep midwinter tennis tournament at Fullerton have been announced by Coach C. S. Weismann as Steve Genter and Thomas Wilson, winners of the Bay League boys' doubles championship in 1923.

Genter and Wilson form a formidable pair for prep competition and are expected to prove hard to defeat this season. The Venice net sharks will be pitted in the singles events of the Fullerton tournament, which begins on the 28th inst.

Bay League net play does not start until well after the first of the year. Weismann plans inviting numerous Southland high school net squads to compete with the Gondoliers on the new Canal City courts.

MIDGET SQUADS TANGLE

While the dope bucket has been filled up with all sorts of ingredients regarding the Los Angeles-Poly High city champ fracas, which is the "piece de resistance" that will be served up to football fans at the Coliseum tomorrow, little or nothing has been said of the lightweight battle between the two schools, which will be dished out as an appetizer, and in which the title for the Babe championship is involved.

The Blue and White Midgets who at present top the percentage column are given a slight edge on the contest, and if they win another loving cup will be theirs to put in the cabinet. On the other hand, should the Mechanics punch out the higher score, which would not be at all unusual, they will have to split the silver with Manual Arts 130-pound aggregation, whose percentage is only slightly lower than that of Los Angeles High, at present.

Mrs. Hammond Ties Hillcrest Course Record

Flintridge	12½	Brentwood	6
Hollywood	11½	California	5
San Gabriel	8½	Hillcrest	3½

Yesterday's Results

Midwick, 9; Brentwood, 0.
Los Angeles, 6½; Hillcrest, 2½.
Hollywood, 8½; San Gabriel, ½.
Flintridge, 5; Annandale, 4.
Wilshire, 5½; California, 3½.

Midwick's splendid women golfers retained their lead in the team match standings of the women's auxiliary, S.C.G.A., yesterday when they vanquished Brentwood's representatives in the second round of play. Los Angeles and Flintridge jumped into a tie for second place by virtue of victories over Hillcrest and Annandale, while Hollywood remains very much in the running after trimming San Gabriel's representatives.

Perhaps the outstanding individual performance of the day was the record of Mrs. H. D. Hammond of the Los Angeles Country Club, who helped her team win by equaling the course record of 87 for the Hillcrest links. Mrs. Hammond, who was playing with Mrs. John Worley against Miss Marion Adler and Mrs. Herman Politz, won three points for the Beverly club. Mrs. Politz fell during the early part of the match and sprained her wrist, Miss Adler being forced to bear the brunt of the L.A.C.C. attack alone. Mrs. Curt Rosenthal also scored well, having a card of 93, while Mrs. Harry Grossman, her partner, was hitting her shots well. The pair won 2½ points in behalf of Hillcrest from Mrs. Weber and Mrs. Voorhees. Mrs. H. Saenger and Mrs. Sid Grossman bowed to Mrs. G. M. Midgley and Mrs. C. K. Moore, who scored 3 points.

Midwick made a clean sweep of the matches with Brentwood, and remained at the top of the list. Miss Margaret Cameron and Mrs. Dorothy Hill won three points from Mrs. J. R. Baer, who played alone, her partner not appearing. Mrs. Hubbard and Miss Kegley defeated Mrs. Cochrane and Mrs. Bel by three points, and Mrs. Pitner and Miss Bush won three points from Mrs. Byers and Mrs. Daniels.

Hollywood did almost as well against San Gabriel, winning 8½ points against ½ for the visitors. Miss Ann Webster and Miss Ruth Killian won 2½ points from Mrs. John Clark and Mrs. C. W. Cook. Mrs. F. F. Stanton and Mrs. A. E. D. Trabue added 3 points in their match with Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Shepherd, and Mrs. A. C. Lillie and Mrs. W. P. Lohman won 3 points from Mrs. Dan Laubersheimer and Mrs. R. P. Hillman.

At California Mrs. Ted Haas and Mrs. T. H. Pike of Wilshire won the feature match from Mrs. P. Noon and Mrs. Green, 2 points to 1. Mrs. Lifur and Mrs. Nelson scored 2½ against ½ for Mrs. Belden and Mrs. Bennett in behalf of California, but Mrs. H. C. Humer and Mrs. Glen Duncan won by 3 points from Mrs. Converse and Mrs. Reid to decide the victory.

POLY-ROMANS IN BIG GAME

defensive record of the rivals the Romans once more even the score. Twenty-one points have been made against the Mechanics, while the Romans kept their goal line uncrossed in the Franklin. Hollywood and Manual tilts only to blow up against Roosevelt, a comparatively weak eleven, scoring three touchdowns against them. However, a fumble and an intercepted pass were responsible for two of the Roughrider scores. Thus Los Angeles High has the best defense and Poly the best offense which brings up that old gag about what would happen when an irresistible force meets an immovable object.

Neither outfit has a decided weight advantage, but the Mechanics might have a slight edge in the matter of speedy backs. With Bill Ford out of the Poly line-up though, the Mechanic speed advantage is nullified. Al Weliein remains the only Mechanic speed merchant, but Louie Almada, or perhaps Tommy Middleton, L. A. High backs, are far from slow.

Both have shown a fair passing attack and ability to smash the line. About any way you look at it the teams are evenly matched, which would seem to indicate that a tie would result tomorrow. However, ever since Poly and L. A. High have been playing American football—they started in 1915—not one single game has ended in a deadlock.

A preliminary game between the lightweight squads of the two rivals will be played at 12:15, while the big game starts at 2:30.

Tickets are on sale at local sporting goods houses and at the schools. The price is only 50 cents, a Thanksgiving Day football bargain. Get in line.

STAGE BIG FESTIVAL AT SANTA BARBARA

Baseball, polo and movies—that's the program arranged for the Thanksgiving Day celebration at Santa Barbara, according to a report made here yesterday. The San Luis All-Star baseball team meets the Santa Barbara All-Stars at the baseball park at 1:30. The San Anitas Indians will send a polo and a baseball team to the tourney. Motion pictures will be taken of all the sports.

BUMPER TALKS

Step in Early, Folks

Ever since Chief Heath and his big brother have been making life miserable for the speeders the folks who don't speed have been flocking in to our service department in droves to have their speedometers tested for accuracy. Lots of things can happen to make your speedometer reading inaccurate. Change from one tire to another is one. Wearing down of the tread on your tires is another. Lots of folk who have changed over from standard tires to the rubber doughnut balloons haven't the slightest idea what such a change can do to the speedometer reading. Remember, it's the innocent bystander that gets shot. You might not think you are overstepping the speed limit and yet get caught. Drive in today—but come in early. There's sure to be a crowd.

California Gridders Facing Another Great Year

Berkeley Students Planning on a "Wonder Team"

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BERKELEY, Nov. 25.—California next year will have a football machine every bit the equal of, and perhaps superior to, the famous "wonder teams" of 1921 and 1922. This is not mere speculation, but a prediction based on positive facts.

Losing but three men of this year's eleven, and with a wealth of material coming up from the ranks of the freshmen, it is highly probable that Andy Smith will produce a machine that will walk rough-shod over every other team in the conference, especially when it is considered that the other aggregations, including Stanford and Washington, lose by graduation most of the players that made them formidable teams this season.

GREAT BACKFIELD

Smith will have the greatest backfield ever seen on the Pacific Coast next year. Capt.-elect Tut Imlay, the best safety man on the field and the most elusive open-field runner seen in these parts in many years, and his running-mate, Jimmy Dixon, triple threat man, will make a most formidable combination. The Dixon to Imlay pass has been a great ground-gainer, and these two men work better together than any two backs Andy has ever had. At fullback Smith will have three hard-hitting line-plungers in Al Young, [illegible] Griffin and Earl Jabs. Griffin proved his worth in the Stanford game. Scoop Carlson will call signals with Mills, who is a great drop-kicker, and Tait as his understudies. Then Bill Blewett, best punt-kicker on the Coast, will be back in uniform. Myron Brown, [illegible] Sheffall and Clymer will all be ready for action. Brick Marcus, the sensational half of the freshman squad, will be eligible for varsity competition. This is the greatest collection of backfield material seen in Berkeley for a long time, and with the superb coaching of Andy Smith should show to good advantage.

On the line Snookey Mell, Lowell [illegible], Thatcher and Huber, regular ends, will be back, and Dougherty of the frosh will put up a fight for a job. Harvey of the frosh may take White's place, although Sargent will fight hard. Cook has the other tackle berth. Carey, Niswander, Cooper and Thomas of the frosh line-up for guards, with Baze and Bernard competing for the honor of filling the shoes of Babe Horrell at center. Both are very good, but nowhere near the equal of Babe.

With this great array of players, Smith ought to be able to produce the greatest team ever seen on the Coast. The time he has taken to make football players out of them this year will be spent in perfecting their play next season.

DID WONDERS

Smith has done wonders with the present team. In September he had three veterans and a bunch of green material. California was not even considered for conference honors, but was rated to lose at least three games. Andy developed in his men a fighting spirit, taught them football, and as a result the Blue and Gold team completed a record of five years without a defeat, and finished in a tie for the championship. All this was done against teams with their stars of the preceding season back, and which were supposed to have the power to walk all over the green Californians.

Under the leadership of the new captain the Bears should work harmoniously next season. Imlay has been the outstanding star this year, and is game and a fighter. He is well liked by all the men.

It looks as if in failing to beat the Bears this year the other Coast teams lost their first and last opportunity to do so for several years to come.

MAROON'S BATTLE FOR GLORY WITNESSED BY 245,000 FANS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—More than 245,000 football fans witnessed the University of Chicago eleven in its eight-game flight to the Western Conference championship, setting a new season attendance record for the Maroons. The previous high mark was in 1923 when 222,280 saw Amos Alonzo Stagg's players in action.

KAIBAB FOREST IS OPEN FOR HUNTERS

Word has been received at the B. H. Dyas Company from Cedar City, Utah, telling of the opening of the Kaibab forest to deer hunters, three deer being allowed each hunter. Sportsmen will be required to get a license at $5 a head. No date for the closing of this special deer season has been set, but it is thought it will close on December 10.

Advice from the Gilbreath was also received at Dyas's telling of hundreds of ducks and geese coming in from the north. The Gilbreath Club is near Wasco and is a place where hunters can shoot for a small fee a day. Tickets can be secured at the Dyas log cabin bureau.

POMONA GOLFERS BEGIN PLAY SHORTLY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

POMONA COLLEGE (Claremont) Nov. 25.—Pomona College golfers open their season with a challenge list tournament on the Indian Hill's course from December 1 to 4. Twelve men have signed for the tournament and twenty more will probably be ready to tee off on December 1. Final play in the tourney will be held from December 5 to 18.

San Diegans Off for Game With Fresno

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 25.—State College's undefeated eleven left today for Fresno to combat the State gridders of that city in a game Thanksgiving Day, on the outcome of which will depend the State title.

The locals' strong backfield quartet, consisting of Rafa, Dilley, Russo and Deal, will be intact for the crucial game, and much is expected of them. The contest, according to word here, is considered as Fresno's big game, and preparations are being made accordingly.

San Diego High School's team, which suffered its first defeat of the year at the hands of Orange High at Santa Ana Saturday, will entertain the University of California Los Angeles frosh here Thursday.

MANY QUINTETS WISH TO MEET MERCURYMEN

Southern California's climate must be getting popular, or maybe it's the movie queens at Hollywood that attract, anyway Charlie Keppen of the Los Angeles Athletic Club has been getting bids for a basketball game with the club five, from aggregations all over the western part of the United States.

The Oregon Aggies state they would like to come south, the San Diego Rowing Club wants to come north and meet the club men, Santa Clara college has put in a bid for a game, and the latest addition to the list is a challenge issued to the Mercury Five by Olson's Terrible Swedes, of Koffeyville, Kan., who, if they are as fierce as they sound, would probably tear the club men limb from limb.

Keppen says that if the club has open dates, they will invite these aggregations here.

MANY SQUASHED IN MERCURY SQUASH PLAY

The Los Angeles Athletic Club's squash tournament is causing an unusual amount of interest among club members, onlookers getting quite a kick out of the game which is a cross between tennis, handball, and what have you.

In yesterday's play Cox defeated Ferguson, thereby winning his way into the third round of play, while Cook and Mahoney will decide which is the more fitted to enter the above-mentioned round tomorrow, and Hunt will meet Nawiter Saturday.

POMONA LOSES VETERANS

Grid Prospects for 1925 Gloomy as Seven Regulars Leave Sagehen Fold

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

POMONA COLLEGE, CLAREMONT, Nov. 25.—With the closing of Pomona College football season yesterday, Claremont grid fans are anxiously casting their eyes over the batch of men who will make up Coach Eugene Nixon's varsity next year.

At first glance Pomona should be much weaker in every department of the game next fall after losing such veterans as Merritt, Clark, and Bell in the backfield, and Baynham, Vernon, Worden, and Draper in the line. However, the soph-freshmen struggle, won yesterday by the freshmen by a 14-to-0 score, showed that there will be plenty of material for Nixon to work on next fall.

A ray of hope has appeared on the horizon for Nixon concerning the 1925 Sagehen backfield. A well-grounded rumor has it that Joe Peterson, one of the hardest hitting men Nixon ever had on a varsity, will return next semester and will be eligible for competition next fall. Peterson accompanied the Sagehens to Honolulu in 1922.

Several other men besides Peterson will be trying hard for the backfield quartet. McCully will be back and should fill the fullback berth which he has held all this year. Neher, a sophomore, who played in practically every game this season, has a smashing attack, and stands an excellent chance to win a position. "Brick" Smith, a heavy chap who starred against the freshmen yesterday, is another man with a bright future, while Crosby, Von Aspe and Mantidi, will be candidates for halfback berths. Ray Duke, one of the lightest, but best men, on this year's first-year string, looks like one of Nixon's sure bets in the backfield. He is clever, fast, and has a mean hip shift. Another freshman will fill the shoes of Earl Merritt, this year's varsity quarter. Harold Merritt can punt, pass and run equally well.

Lang and Burger, who played the two guard positions this year will be back next fall, with several men from the frosh string worthy of a line job. Tackles jobs will probably rest between Hall, Leavitt, and Hasmalhalch, three heavy chaps who have played a great game as subs this year. Munson and Archbald are other prospects for the tackles. Roblee, veteran center of this season's varsity will be back next fall with Green of the frosh team ready to step into his shoes at any time. Cowan, Kettell and Phelps will be out for the two end positions with several other aspirants including Natland and Anderson, two crack ends, who played a whale of a game with the freshman this year.

The U.S.S. Idaho - U.S.S. Pennsylvania grid fracas, which is expected to decide the title of the Battleship Divisions, will be played at Trona Field on the afternoon of December 7, instead of December 6, as originally scheduled. The change was made, it was announced yesterday by Lieutenant-Commander E. D. Washburn, fleet athletic officer, that officers and men of the fleet might see the U.S.C. Syracuse game at the local Coliseum on the 6th. The U.S.S. Procyon - Destroyer Squadrons game has also been shifted to next Sunday afternoon, rather than Saturday. The winner of this tilt will meet the Battleship Division champions for the All-Fleet title on December 13.

Officers of the fleet will hear the play-by-play results of the annual Army-Navy tilt a few seconds after they are enacted at the Biltmore Stadium next Saturday, over a Western Union loop that Commander Washburn has had strung into the fleet gymnasium at Trona Field.

The lads from the U.S.S. Pennsylvania are backing Jack Ruffner and his crew to cop the annual one-mile dinghy race to be staged in the Outer Harbor Saturday morning. Lanky Richardson will handle the stroke oar for the Pennsy dinghy this season, with Ruffner himself at the tiller. The balance of the crew will be made up by Eaton, second stroke, Fuchs, second bow, and Bretthauer, last year's veteran, in the bow.

The Keystoners, however, and all other crews in the fleet will have one tough time of it heading off the long-winded lads from the Arizona. The oar-wielders from the "At-Em" ship already have this season grabbed 155 points in rowing, as compared to 151 points for the rest of the fleet combined.

Prince Charley Lawbaugh, coach of the champion U.S.S. Idaho football squad, put his men through a thorough workout at Trona Field yesterday, the first stiff practice the team has had since arriving from Puget Sound ten days ago to enter the fleet finals. The Idaho eleven meets the U.S.S. Tennessee squad at Trona Field next Saturday afternoon in the second round of the three-game series for the Battleship Divisions title.

Ensign Louis Edwards, the coach of the U.S.S. New Mexico basket tossers, has given the squad the word to trim the U.S.S. Colorado five in their first fleet game at the Trona Field gymnasium this evening. The Colorado five, unfortunately, expects to do something of the sort to Edwards's boys. It will be the season's start for both teams.

POMONA STUDENTS TAKE UP MITT ART

POMONA COLLEGE, CLAREMONT, Nov. 25.—Boxing is finding a place in the sports sponsored by Pomona college with two classes in the fistic art held each week. Over thirty men have signed up for the sport.

Soccer Teams Line Up Game for Tomorrow

Local soccer fans will have an opportunity to make comparisons between the city soccer league and the Long Beach and District loop when two representative teams meet at the Loyola soccer park tomorrow afternoon. The challenge issued by Long Beach has been accepted by the local body, and the team that will uphold the honors of the city league will be selected from the following players: MacKenzie and Southeron (goal;) Thompson, Tunicliffe and Duncan (backs;) Maynard, Booth, Marsden (halfbacks;) Lahey, Whittingham, Close, Winckel Elder and Adamson (forwards.) Witsche, the new Scots flash, may appear in the line-up.

The chosen team, while not the strongest selection that could have been made, is at least representative of the league. Every team is represented.

Long Beach is expected to send up a strong aggregation. There is said to be a keen desire on the part of the Seasiders to make a success of their invasion, and they can be counted on to play hard. The kick-off will be at 2:30 p.m.

COACH GENE NIXON IN QUEST OF DUCK

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

POMONA COLLEGE, CLAREMONT, Nov. 25.—Pomona College, again in possession of the conference football championship, Coach Nixon expects to forget all football worries of this fall by enjoying a duck hunt some where near San Diego. Nixon may leave on the trip either tomorrow or Thursday.

MANY PLAY-OFF GAMES BILLED

Sweetwater Tackles Orange Eleven Tomorrow

Compton Grid Crew Battles Pomona Same Day

Van Nuys and Santa Maria Tangle Saturday

After this week's play-off games the dope as to the probable winner of the Southern California interscholastic grid championship will be boiled down to four contenders. Five play-off tilts in the unlimited class are scheduled for this week, two taking place tomorrow, two Saturday and one already having been played yesterday.

Two class B, lightweight division games, and one class C, 112-pound division tilt have also been billed by the C.I.F., according to Harry Moore, who is the chairman of the play-off committee. In the class C clash Santa Ana faces Whittier on the Fullerton gridiron this afternoon. The class B games take place tomorrow with Anaheim journeying to Pasadena to take on the Bulldog bantams and Huntington Park facing Glendale on the Dynamiters' field. Huntington Park has won the lightweight title for the last three years, but the Dynamiters hope to end the reign of "Pop" Squires's lads. Anaheim and Pasadena appear evenly matched and a good tilt should result.

In the heavyweight ranks the Compton-Pomona game, which is to be played tomorrow at Pomona, is holding a large section of the spotlight. Pomona won the Citrus Belt title and last week eliminated El Centro in a play-off tussle, all of which indicates that they have something of a club. Compton won its first Bay League grid title this season and the eleven is certain to make a good showing in the play-off.

Sweetwater and Orange also tangle Thanksgiving Day on the Orange gridiron. Orange eliminated San Diego last week and is being made a strong favorite for title honors by many fans.

On Saturday Van Nuys and Santa Maria mingle on the Santa Marians' athletic field, while Glendale plays the winner of the Colton-Corona struggle which took place yesterday.

LIGHTWEIGHTS REMATCHED

Johnny Adams Eager to Put Skids Under Tommy Carter in Main Event at Hollywood Friday Night

The boxing following of the Hollywood American Legion stadium is about evenly divided as to whom is going to win the main event Friday night. Johnny Adams, former Pacific Coast lightweight champion, is going to try to put the skids under Tommy Carter, the present champ and the boy who gave Adams a boxing lesson at the stadium about a month ago.

While Adams has hundreds of admirers, Carter has his followers, and they are more than anxious to lay a few friendly wagers that Tommy will not only retain his title, but that he will stop Adams inside of the four rounds. Carter, they say, usually beats his opponents worse the second time they meet than on the first meeting.

Carter is a busy boy rounding into condition. The last time he boxed at the stadium he faced Dick Hoppe. It looked as though Carter was a little stale on this occasion, so with two weeks' rest he should be at his best.

Adams hasn't boxed since he met Carter. He took his defeat to heart and when he left for home he stated that until he was rematched with Carter he couldn't be convinced that he was beaten by a better boy. Eddie Eears, who handles Carter, states that Adams is made to order for his charge.

The main event is just one of many bouts that will be thrillers. Mike Dempsey just boxed Bert Colima. Friday he faces Racehorse Roberts and this bout for a semi-wind-up is a whale of a fracas. Racehorse Roberts makes them all battle. There are no dull moments in the ring with Roberts. He travels at such a fast clip during the entire four rounds that he has been nicknamed Racehorse.

The bout that is apt to eclipse them all is the special event. K. O. Kelly, with five straight kayos, the last against Young Bello at the stadium, in one of the most sensational battles seen at the stadium, faces Young Papke.

Next to the special event comes Billy Hart and Joe Oaks. Billy Hart is another kid who has won a place in the hearts of the Hollywood boxing fraternity. This bout is going to be of the sensational order.

The preliminaries are better than usual with sockers doing the milling. Other bouts:

GIANTS PLAY TURKEY DAY WITH MERCHANTS

The big black boys from St. Louis, known as the Colored Giants will furnish the Pasadena Merchants with some entertainment, other than the usual Turkey tomorrow when the rival nines sock the old horsehide at each other at Goodyear Park.

Ross will face Ross on the mound. Both are touted as clever heavers, and the game may result in a pitcher's dual.

ESPEE'S MEXICO LINK HALF DONE

Nayarit Mountain Job to be Completed by 1926

New Through Route Assured to Capital City

Hundred-Mile Stretch of Road to Cost $13,000,000

TEPIC (Nayarit, Mex.) Nov. 25. That construction work on the missing link of the Southern Pacific Railroad of Mexico between Tepic and La Quemada is 55 per cent completed, and that the spring of 1926 will see the line in operation to Guadalajara and Mexico City, is the statement of E. B. Sloan, chief engineer of the system.

The section of uncompleted line upon which the Southern Pacific of Mexico is concentrating is only approximately 100 miles in length, but so heavy is the construction needed to traverse this mountainous stretch of Nayarit and Jalisco that more than $13,000,000 is the estimated cost of finishing this comparatively short remaining stretch. When completed, fast passenger trains can be operated directly from Los Angeles via Nogales to Guadalajara and Mexico City with a considerable saving in time.

H. B. Titcomb, president of the Southern Pacific Railroad of Mexico, recently brought to successful conclusion negotiations with the National Railways of Mexico whereby Mr. Titcomb was granted permission to operate trains of his company over the National lines from La Quemada to Guadalajara and Mexico City. The successful conclusion of these negotiations will hasten the actual date of routing through passenger service over the West Coast route, as construction of lines duplicating those of the National Railroads will not be necessary.

The construction of this mountainous section necessary to complete the lines of this company is directly under the supervision of Chief Engineer E. B. Sloan, a veteran West Coast railroad man, while the Utah Construction Company of San Francisco is the contracting firm in charge of actual building.

On account of the numerous tunnels, two of which will be 2900 feet in length, heavy open cuts and numerous high bridges and culverts, this project is regarded as one of the most difficult railroad building enterprises ever undertaken on the American continent. That it can be carried through on schedule time reflects a great credit upon engineers and contractors, and upon general conditions existing throughout this portion of Mexico. Many thousands of Mexican laborers are employed upon the project, and a greater prosperity is being enjoyed by the residents of this section than has been known for many years.

Although construction work is proceeding simultaneously at many points along the 100-mile gap, and from both the Tepic and La Quemada sides, yet completed railroad construction to date almost has reached the town of Compastello, Nayarit, near which place may now be found the actual point of steel.

According to a recent announcement of President H. B. Titcomb, through passenger service to Compostello, Nayarit, will be inaugurated at a very early date, probably shortly after the beginning of the new year.

RATTLESNAKES' FOE EXPOSED AS ROBBER

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHOENIX, Nov. 25.—The roadrunner, or chapparal cock, is a bird that has enjoyed protection in Arizona due to the fanciful story of old that it kills rattlesnakes by building around them a corral of cholla cactus burrs. The snake is supposed to sting himself to death after his skin is filled with the cholla spines, or in rage after he has found no way out. The tale is declared a myth, and in its stead is offered the charge that the bird, a species of cuckoo, is a robber of quail eggs and a destroyer of young quail.

In the same connection, flockmasters are demanding the destruction of the golden eagle, which is declared to be killing antelope fawns in Northern Arizona, and to be carrying off young lambs as well as the young of mountain sheep.

The porcupine, generally considered inoffensive, now is declared a destroyer of the forest, government tests showing that he delights in the girdling of young pine shoots.

On the other hand, a strong movement has been started for protection of Arizona bears, slaughtered almost to the point of extinction. They are declared inoffensive, especially the little black fellows, and declaration is made that the tales of cattle killing by bear usually have been founded on the fact that a bear has been found feeding on the carcass of animals that had been slain by mountain lions.

DRUG ADDICT'S PLEA WINS HIM LENIENCY

PHILADELPHIA TELLS COURT OF FIGHT WAGED FOR FREEDOM

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—Harry Hindler, 47 years of age, Seventeenth street near Green, touched a soft spot in the heart of Magistrate Holland. He was brought before the magistrate on the charge of being a drug addict. Hindler was arrested after roomers in the house said he had been under the influence of a drug and caused a disturbance.

Clad in a thin overcoat and unshaven, Hindler told Magistrate Holland he had not used narcotics until recently, and had been waging a desperate battle against the grip of the habit.

"It has been a terrible fight," said the prisoner. "Night and day, your Honor, I have fought the craving. If you will only give me one more chance—let me win this fight myself, if only for the sake of my wife and children."

Tears streamed down his cheeks. Magistrate Holland pointed out he was then under $1000 bail for a similar offense a month ago.

"Twenty-five days is not enough," said Hindler. "It is a life-long battle."

Dr. Charles E. Bricker, police surgeon, told the court it would require two years for Hindler to conquer the habit.

CHINESE WOULD BAN FOREIGN RELIGIONS

CLAIM DISCONTENT DUE TO WORK OF AMERICAN MISSIONARIES

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SHANGHAI, Nov. 25.—The China educational conference representing the leading Chinese educators from fourteen provinces, at the recent national convention in the town of Kaifong, passed resolutions demanding that all teaching of religion by missionaries in China be stopped.

The action, which has stirred missionary interests to the foundations, consists of four main resolutions and eleven recommendations which state in effect that education is the exclusive function of the Chinese government, and charge the missionaries with failure to observe the government regulations.

The recommendations charge by implication that missionary education in China is largely responsible for political disorders, and say that the administrators of the mission schools are either preachers of religion or occupy their positions for the purpose of inculcating foreign ideas and that education is not their real aim.

Angelino Gallo, 3, 1828 McClellan street, died in St. Agnes's Hospital, where she was taken with her mother and baby brother Saturday night. The mother's hands were burned beating out the flames when the children's dresses caught fire from a stove.

STEEL LEADS IN MARKET RALLY

Rise Carries Price to Highest Point Since 1919

Fifty New Records Are Set in Day's Activities

Stock Trading Pace Shows Signs of Slackening

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The pace of trading in stocks gave signs of slackening today but the market was galvanized into a fresh burst of activity just before the close when U. S. Steel common led a brisk rally in leading industrial and railroad shares. Price averages of both groups eclipsed their previous 1924 high records, with the general average of all stocks going to the highest levels in years. Total sales fell slightly below 2,000,000 shares.

Fifty new high records were established during the day's trading. Heavy selling of American Can, which followed official denials that a stock dividend was under consideration, at one time caused general liquidation. These reactionary tendencies were overcome, however, by the heavy flow of buying orders which poured into the market in the last hour.

RISE IN STEEL

A 2-point rise in U. S. Steel carried the price of that stock to 117⅝, the highest point reached since 1919. Buying apparently was based on growing confidence in the industry's outlook, which was voiced later in the day by Chairman Gary of the United States Steel Corporation.

Reporting a large and increasing demand for iron and steel products, Mr. Gary said that orders promised soon to exceed capacity.

The report on freight traffic for the second week in November, showing loadings in excess of a million cars, was one of the most constructive developments of the day.

The fact that the usual seasonal decline, due at this time, appeared to be less pronounced than last year, brought renewed buying of the rail shares, demand centering in the investment issues. Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Lehigh Valley led the advance in this group, attaining new high prices on gains of more than 2 points each.

FOOD AND LEATHER

Good demonstrations of group strength were given by the food and leather issues.

Commodity prices were lower. Wheat broke 2 1-8 to 3 1-4 cents a bushel as exporters began to resell previous purchases and new Argentine wheat was offered abroad at concessions from prevailing prices here. Favorable weather contributed to a decline of 1 3-8 to 2 5-8 cents a bushel in corn prices. A decline of 1-4 to ½ cent a pound in cotton was attributed to speculative selling.

ENLISTMENT IN NATIONAL GUARD GAINS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Through "unwavering zeal of the personnel" the National Guard component of the United States Army scored a 15 per cent increase in strength during the 1924 fiscal year, Maj.-Gen. George C. Rickards, chief of the Militia Bureau, informed Secretary Weeks today in his annual report. The aggregate strength of the guard June 30, 1924, was 176,322, he said, due to recognition of new units by the Federal government, the increase therefore being "a legitimate and permanent expansion."

While Gen. Rickards saw no hope that the established strength requirement of 250,000 men could be reached during the present year, he was confident that important strides could be made if Congress continued its sympathetic support.

During the year there had been marked decrease in calls made by States upon National Guard troops to preserve order or give aid in great disaster, Gen. Rickards reported.

"In each instance, however, when troops have been so employed," he said, "the manner of the performance has been favorably commented upon with notable absence of criticism."

Washington is Sunk; Details Are Withheld

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NORFOLK (Va.) Nov. 25.—The United States superdreadnaught Washington, doomed to destruction by the Washington Arms Conference, was sunk off the Virginia Coast today following a terrific pounding by the powerful guns of the U.S.S. Texas as well as torpedoes and mines.

The sinking of the Washington has been cloaked with secrecy and it is not known what means were used to sink the partly finished hull of the warship. Officers at the naval base here would not discuss the subject beyond that the Washington had been sunk this morning. A full report, it is said, will be made to the Navy Department by officers of the U.S.S. Texas which is now on her way into port.

MAN ARRESTED ON SAN DIEGO CHARGE

W. D. Lawrence, 330 South Berendo street, was arrested by Deputy Sheriffs King and Collins yesterday at the request of San Diego authorities. He was released in justice court later in the day on $10 000 bail. Lawrence had been charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, it was stated, but the case had been taken off calendar when he offered to make good the losses charged against him. Orders for his arrest yesterday were issued by San Diego authorities, it was said.

INDICTS PAPER IN TAX CASE

Jury Charges New York Herald-Tribune Publishers With Unlawful Publication of Lists

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The New York Tribune, Inc., publishers of the Herald-Tribune, one of the last newspapers in the city to publish lists of income-tax returns after they had been officially opened to examination by the Bureau of Internal Revenue a month ago, today was made defendant in an indictment charging unlawful printing and publishing of the returns.

The indictment, in which there are three counts, was returned in Federal court where it was obtained by Col. Hayward, United States District Attorney, at the request of U. S. Atty.-Gen. Stone. No individuals are mentioned in it.

The indictment is solely to force a test case, according to Asst. U. S. Atty. John E. Joyce, who presented the case to the jury. An early trial will be sought.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 25. — A Federal grand jury here today returned indictments against Walter S. Dickey, owner and publisher of the Kansas City Journal and the Kansas City Post, and against Ralph Ellis, general managing editor of both the Dickey papers. The men were each indicted on six counts alleging unlawful publication of income tax returns. Dickey and Ellis will probably appear tomorrow morning for an arraignment, after which they will press for an early trial.

Plans Laid by Australia for Fleet Welcome

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SYDNEY, Nov. 25.—Tentative plans already have been prepared for the reception of the American fleet here next year. Lavish entertainment of the officers and men is contemplated as the Australians hope to surpass the hospitality accorded the fleet in 1908. Prime Minister Bruce and the other Ministers are taking a keen interest in the proposed visit. When the government receives an official notification it will appoint a special entertainment committee to arrange functions. Australia already has made up its mind that the visit of the American vessels is no ordinary occasion and is acting accordingly.

Under the terms of the will of Mrs. Bensberg, according to the suit, her son, Ferdinand was created a trustee to take charge of all her property and at the end of ten years it was to be distributed. Ferdinand has made no such distribution and refuses to make any, the suit avers. The defendants are Ferdinand Bensberg and his daughters, Betsy, who are at present living in California.

COURT FIXES ON BASIS FOR INJURY DAMAGES

Damages for injuries are estimated upon one's ability to work had the injury not occurred and should not be based upon previous wages the injured man received, was the substance of an opinion of Justice Houser of the Second District Court of Appeal, Division One, yesterday affirming a judgment of $3947 awarded to Howard E. Holmes against the California Crushed Fruit Company by Superior Court. Holmes's leg was broken and his hand injured. The fruit company brought the appeal on the grounds that as Holmes had worked but about two-thirds of the time previous to the accident, the award was too much.

CHANGE LIKELY IN BANKRUPTCY

Recommendations Are Made by Judicial Conference

Rules Amendments to Meet Abuses Purpose

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Important amendments to the bankruptcy and equity rules of the Federal courts throughout the country to meet abuses which have developed recently, especially in bankruptcy proceedings, are expected to come from the Supreme Court on the basis of recommendations by the judicial conference of senior circuit judges in session here, which has found the subject one of the most pressing of those demanding its attention.

Chief Justice Taft, as chairman of the conference, today transmitted to the Supreme Court the recommendations of the conference which were adopted after full consultation with every circuit and district judge, committees representing the American Bar and the National Credit Men's associations, and with representatives of both organizations. The court, which has complete authority to act in the matter, has taken the proposals under consideration, and is expected to announce its conclusions without delay.

One of the proposed changes to the bankruptcy rules would add a provision requiring petitioners in involuntary bankruptcy proceedings, whose claims rest upon an assignment or transfer from some other person, to annex to one of the petitions filed all instruments of assignment or transfer and an affidavit stating the consideration paid for the assignment of the claims, declaring that the person making the affidavit is the legal owner and entitled to all the benefits and that the claims were not purchased for the purpose of instituting bankruptcy proceedings upon them.

AMENDMENT TO RULES

An amendment to General Order XIII of the bankruptcy rules would provide that no receiver, or his attorney, should solicit any proof of debt, power of attorney or other authority to act for or represent any creditor for any purpose in connection with the administration of an estate in bankruptcy or the acceptance or rejection of any settlement offered by a bankrupt.

A new general order was proposed requiring that a receiver or marshal appointed by the court under the Bankruptcy Act to take possession of the assets of a bankrupt prior to the appointment of or election of a trustee shall be deemed to be a mere custodian within the meaning of Section 48 of the act unless his duties and compensation are specifically extended by order of court upon proper cause shown.

Another general order would provide that before entering an order confirming settlement, the court shall require all persons who may have waived dividends or fees to set forth in writing and under oath all agreements made with respect to them, whether the bankrupt, his attorney or any other person and also would require an affidavit by the bankrupt that he has not directly or indirectly paid or promised any consideration to any attorney, trustee, receiver, creditor or other person in connection with the proceedings except those set forth in the affidavit, or in the offer of settlement.

ANOTHER PROPOSAL

A third new general order proposed would require all attorneys, accountants, auctioneers, appraisers, receivers and trustees requesting allowances from bankrupt estates for services rendered, to file with the referee a petition under oath giving an itemized statement of the services rendered and the amount claimed. It also would require the statement to show the partial allowances, if any, already made, the petition to be heard and determined and allowances made at the final meeting. The new order would provide that the referee should send to the trustees, creditors and every known person in interest, a written or printed notice at least ten days before the meeting is held, stating the time and place for the meeting, and the allowances sought by the various petitioners. Partial allowances but only for the actual outlay in the discharge of the services rendered could be made by the court before such final meeting under the amendment proposed.

By a fouth new general order the bankruptcy court would be given power to deny the allowance of any fee to the attorney for petitioning creditors, or the reimbursement of advances, whenever it appeared that the proceedings were instituted in connivance or collution with the bankrupt, or were not instituted in good faith.

FINAL SUGGESTION

The final recommendation of the conference with respect to bankruptcy orders would have another general order issued providing that in no district in which there is a city having at the last Federal census a population of 500,000 or more, shall an attorney for a receiver or a trustee be appointed except upon the order of the court, and then only upon the petition of the receiver, or the trustee setting forth the name of the counsel whom he wishes to employ, the reasons for the selection of that person and showing the necessity of employing any attorney or counsel. It would require submission with the petition of an affidavit of the person recommended showing that he is not employed by and is not connected with the bankrupt or any interests adverse to the receivers or the creditors.

Amendments to the equity rules would change Rule 10 to provide that in suits for the foreclosure of mortgages or the enforcement of other liens, a decree may be rendered for any balance found to be due, whether the plaintiff is the owner of the debt or a trustee or agent for the holder of the bonds or indebtedness secured by the mortgage, or lien, due over and above the proceeds of the sale and execution may issue for collection as provided in Rule 8 when the decree is solely for the payment of money. If upon such execution, any money is collected in an action in which the plaintiff is trustee or agent for the holder of the indebtedness, the amended rule would require the money thus collected to be paid to the trustee or agent, who shall pay it over pro rata to the owner or owners of the indebtedness.

The conference suggested that equity Rule 30 be amended to provide that in the determination of a counter claim in which affirmative relief is asked, when complete relief cannot be granted without the presence of parties other than the plaintiffs and defendants, the court must order them to be made parties if they are subject to its jurisdiction.

MANN ACT SUSPECT IS TAKEN INTO CUSTODY

Rollie Lusk, 24 years of age, a painter, was arrested yesterday by Department of Justice agents and charged with having transported Mrs. Grace Brigance, 21, a waitress, from Dallas, Tex., to Los Angeles. Lusk will probably be arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Long today, it was announced by Agent-in-Charge Colvin. Mrs. Brigance, who is pretty, has a 3-year-old child, and is said to have deserted her husband when she left Dallas about ten days ago.

Where to dine Thanksgiving

Ye Olde Time Feaste for the day of Thanksgiving

History reminds us of the quaint, old-fashioned Thanksgiving Day that was originated in New England in 1621; now an annual festival day.

The choicest of foods were harvested and stored away months ahead for this festival. Wild Turkeys, the most prized game birds, were caught and fattened for the occasion, and finally all members of families gathered together for one day of rejoicing.

We have made the same old-fashioned preparation for your feast this year. Bring the family down for a real Olde Time Feaste—to share in our Thanksgiving offering, of the best that there is in the land.

"I'm Going to Have That $1000 Cash!"

Thousands of people are saying it—and meaning it, too. For them the idle wishing, longing, put-off-until-tomorrow days are over. They're acting. They know just how they are going to get their thousand dollars and exactly when it will be theirs.

They are not putting a little money in the bank today and taking it out tomorrow. They are not skimping themselves or doing without the pleasures of life. They are not working any harder than their neighbors, but they are in the successful savers class for keeps!

These people are going to enjoy travel, higher education, profitable investment. They are going to have homes of their own and good automobiles.

They are following the right system of saving money—they are buying $1000.00 cash on easy payments. When they have their first thousand dollars they are going to keep right on building their fortunes, for they will have formed the habit of systematic saving, which is the very foundation of success.

CROCODILE IS VICIOUS GAME

Reptile Hunting Dangerous Sport in Panama

Isthmus Also Paradise for Trout Fisherman

Wildcat That Can Leap Like Kangaroo is Novelty

BY ALMA WHITAKER

PANAMA, Nov. 6.—Crocodile hunting is a favorite and exciting sport in the republic of Panama. You see, the republic abounds with rivers and lakes, full of mean and lively crocodiles.

And as these crocodiles will make sorties on land and eat the legs off young calves, horribly mutilate colts, and even attack larger cattle, sportsmen are really doing the country a service—and there is no closed season for crocodiles. The prime hunting spots are their spawning grounds in the quiet shallows of the mighty rivers.

The men ride horseback to the chosen destination, and then dismount and stalk their prey. They have to wear stout leather leggings to negotiate the jungle growths, and keep a sharp lookout for snakes.

The female of the species is more deadly than the male. She will open those mighty jaws of hers in a frenzy of fury and attack anything in sight. And it takes more than one shot in her few vulnerable spots to settle mother.

HUGE RABBITS

Papa crocodile is a lazy devil and not nearly so deadly in rushing to the defense of his offspring, but he can put up a mean fight when his own hide is in danger.

A milder sport is trout fishing, and the rivers and lakes are rich in trout. Never an unprofitable week-end fishing on the isthmus.

Then there are wild buck, which make mighty good venison, and a huge species of rabbit, which often weighs over sixty pounds, and is very plentiful.

More rare and precious are the wildcats, which look like young leopards and have mighty hind legs, something like a kangaroo, with which they can spring enormous distances.

One sportsman brought a baby wildcat in alive and introduced him to me. To do that one positively must kill the mother—not while she lives can her young be captured.

WILDCAT PETS

This baby was five days old, had the loveliest skin, with fine leopard markings. It crawled about sinuously, with its stomach almost touching the ground. It seemed so timid and gentle, it was difficult to believe that they can grow into terrifying warriors, fearless and merciless. When one wants to keep one alive the tendons of these mighty hind legs have to be cut, otherwise they can spring over anything. Cutting these tendons also affects their dispositions, like Achilles's heel, they seem powerless when those are dealt with. After that they can, with patience, be domesticated. Several American women were coveting this one for a pet.

Bird life is well protected here, but one may kill all the turkey buzzards one likes. These flock in great numbers and often attack live cattle, and have no delicacy about waiting until a body, human or otherwise, is completely dead before settling down to a meal. All the same, of course, they are valuable scavengers.

Officers Find Rum Hidden by American Flag

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

TACOMA (Wash.) Nov. 25.—Use of the national colors by moonshiners to conceal or preserve their wares was discovered yesterday by members of the city dry squad in a hotel raid.

Confiscating five trunks of moonshine and arresting Frank Antoinetti, they investigated the rear of the building and found an American flag draped ceremoniously over something that resembled a coffin. The dry squad raised the edge of the flag and found it sheltered wooden kegs of five-gallon capacity.

SOVIET TO REITERATE DEMAND TO BRITAIN

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

MOSCOW, Nov. 25.—In its reply to the recent British note, the soviet government, it is understood, probably will reiterate its demand that the authenticity of the famous Zinovieff letter shall be passed upon by an arbitration commission. Regarding Great Britain's rejection of the Anglo-Russian treaty, the soviet reply is expected to state that all Russia can do is express regret that the opportunity is lost to establish through this medium cordial diplomatic and commercial relations between the two countries.

The nineteenth annual session of the International Brotherhood Welfare Association, organized and fostered by Dr. James Eads Howe of Los Angeles, known as "the millionaire hobo," was called to order here today. The convention program includes, among other things, education and organization; the duty of the community to the unemployed; old-age pensions; vagrancy and industrial laws, and employment in agriculture abuses.

PLANS NEW STATION AT MAZATLAN

Southern Pacific Will Build Modern Depot and Wharf on West Coast

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MAZATLAN (Sinaloa, Mex.) Nov. 25.—A high-class new railway station and terminal will be among the early improvements of Mazatlan, according to H. B. Titcomb, president of the Southern Pacific Railroad of Mexico. Already property has been bought for this purpose and the ground is being cleared of its former buildings preparatory to the erection of this modern new station and the installation of up-to-the-minute terminal facilities.

The new location of the Mazatlan station will be about a mile nearer the city. It adjoins tidewater, being on the banks of the estuary, or inner harbor, of Mazatlan. With the completion of harbor improvements planned for Mazatlan the new location will be able to land both freight and passengers directly along wharfside. At present lighters are necessary to carry passengers and freight to and from vessels, which are obliged to anchor some distance off shore.

The plans for the station, according to President Titcomb, already have been completed and sent to Mexico City for approval. Pending the return of these plans actual commencement of construction is being deferred. When completed the station will be one of the finest on the entire West Coast of Mexico, and in keeping with the future development of Mazatlan.

At Culiacan, capital of Sinaloa, President Titcomb stated that another modern station also would be built immediately to care for the rapidly increasing needs of that inland city. This is the center of one of the greatest areas of irrigated and fertile lands to be found in the entire republic of Mexico.

Significance of Election Pointed Out by Butler

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—William Butler, United States Senator-designate, in his first address since appointment, today read a prepared statement at the City Club on the significance of the election of President Coolidge.

He said the election meant the end of bloc legislation that had demonstrated the impossibility of effecting a labor party in American politics, and that it had proved the futility of attempting to bring conservative and radical votes to the same party by putting a conservative and a radical on the same ticket.

Voyagers Lose Christmas Day Crossing Line

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) Nov. 25.—Passengers sailing from here December 19 for the Orient on the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Russia will lose Christmas Day.

According to custom a day is dropped when a ship going west crosses the 180th meridian. Unfortunately for the passengers on this particular ship that day will be Christmas Day.

In computing telegraphic service time on the east bound line it is sometimes confusing to have a telegram arrive here dated apparently twenty-four hours before time.

ALL IRELAND MOURNS AT BIER OF PRIMATE

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

ARMAGH (Ireland) Nov. 25.—This was a city of mourning today, the occasion being the funeral of Cardinal Michael Logue, primate of all Ireland. Despite a heavy rain thousands came here to attend the obsequies. Virtually all of Ireland was represented, the mourners coming from Dublin, Belfast, Derry and other outlying points. [BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Thirty-eight awards to American claimants were announced today by the mixed claims commission, set up to adjust war claims with Germany. The demands of 167 other claimants were dismissed. The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was the largest gainer by the action of the commission, receiving $6,250,000 on one count and $30,000 on another.

DEFEATED CANDIDATE, WIFE REACH ENGLAND

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PLYMOUTH (Eng.) Nov. 25.—The steamer Paris arrived here tonight. John W. Davis, Democratic candidate in the recent Presidential election in the United States, and Mrs. Davis were on board, but they proceeded with the ship to Havre, whence they will go to the Mediterranean. Whether Mr. and Mrs. Davis will visit England later is uncertain.

"We are in search of sunny skies," Mr. Davis said.

SOVIET TO INSURE SHIPS

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The Arcon Limited, soviet agents for the All-Russia trade department, have secured control of the Trafalgar Insurance Company, a British firm, in order to provide insurance for its own ships, following the example of many large shipping companies. The new company will be called the Union Foreign Trade Insurance Company, Ltd.

DYE MARKET CONTROL SOUGHT BY GERMANY

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—Germany has hopes of monopolizing the Japanese dye marget by shoving American competition into the background when the present German-Japanese trade negotiations are concluded. Negotiations opened yesterday after a successful preliminary conversation was concluded. The Japanese Ambassador and Dr. Knipping, former head of the Far East division of the German Foreign Office, are at the head of the committee. The negotiations were carrid on with the 1911 trade treaty as a basis which contains a "most favored nation" clause. The treaty will automatically lift the present Japanese embargo on German dyes.

LIBEL SUIT WON BY SENAGALESE DEPUTY

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

PARIS, Nov. 25.—The libel suit brought by M. Diagne, the Senagalese deputy, against the newspaper, Les Continents, ended today with a victory for the plaintiff. The manager of the paper was condemned to six months' imprisonment, but sentence was suspended. He was also ordered to pay M. Diagne 2000 francs damages. The deputy had sued the paper because the latter had asserted that he, when serving as high commissioner for the recruiting of black troops during the war, had received a certain sum for each soldier enlisted in Senegal.

WOMAN CONVICTED OF SETTING FIRE TO HOME

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SYRACUSE (N. Y.) Nov. 25.—Miss Frances Stabb, arrested last July charged with setting fire to her home, today was convicted of first-degree arson. The offense carried a maximum penalty of forty years' imprisonment. Leniency was recommended by the jury. Miss Stabb was found bound and gagged in her home when firemen answered an alarm. She told a sensational story of being attacked by burglars who ransacked the house. The prosecution charged that she confessed to setting fire to the building and binding herself to obtain insurance.

POSTAL SALARY BILL REVIEWED

Senator Edge Will Bring Measure Up Again

Hopes to Pass Bill Over President's Veto

Confident of Enactment by Vote of House

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Senator Edge, Republican, New Jersey, author of the postal salary increase bill which was vetoed by President Coolidge, plans to bring the measure before Congress at the approaching session in an effort to get it passed over the Executive's veto.

Some of the administration leaders are known to favor redrafting the bill to conform to President Coolidge's wishes and putting it through as a compromise measure. The New Jersey Senator is understood to be opposed to such a step and it is expected he will demand a show down on the bill early in the short session.

The measure would give an annual salary increase of approximately $300 each to the 300,000 employees in the postal field service and calls for an appropriation of $62,000,000. The bill passed the Senate at the last session by a vote of 73 to 3, with twenty not voting. If these lines were held, it would be repassed easily over the President's veto, but the results of the last election, and other considerations, it is pointed out, might cause some Senators to shift their position.

Senators supporting the bill say they are confident that if the President's veto should be overridden in the Senate, it would receive the necessary two-thirds vote in the House for its enactment.

The veto measure of the President was received by the Senate near the close of the last session and was laid on the table. Senator Edge expected to bring it up for a vote at the earliest opportunity.

ITALIAN TROOPS EVEN OLD SCORE IN TRIPOLI

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

ROME, Nov. 25.—News reached here today of an Italian success in Tripoli Sunday, when an Italian column marching against the rebels entered the town of Sirte and hoisted the Italian flag over the fortress which was evacuated in 1915. On the same evening a column reached Casr Buhadi, and attacked the encampment of Ibrahm Shetni, son of Ramadan Subhli, who caused the retreat of the Italians in 1915. Ibrahm escaped only with difficulty. Fifty of the rebels were killed and 400 rifles, many machine guns, one piece of artillery, stores, ammunition and the chief's banner were captured.

"Los Angeles", el Dirigible Más Grande del Mundo, fué ya Bautizado

WASHINGTON, Noviembre 25.—El nombre de la gran metropoli occidental, "Los Angeles", ha sustituido al nombre de fábrica, "ZR-3", al quedar solemnemente bautizado, hoy, el más grande dirigible del mundo, por la Señora Calvin Coolidge. Por medio de imponentes ceremonias, se tributaron honores a la ciudad de Sudcalifornia, cuyo nombre lleva desde hoy la enorme nave aérea que cruzó ultimamente el Grande Oceano, en su viaje de Alemania a los Estados Unidos.

El Presidente Coolidge estuvo presente en el acto oficial, acompañado de los miembros de su gabinete y de los representantes diplomáticos de las naciones amigas. Al terminar las ceremonias, la reina de los aires se elevó sobre la capital americana, majestuosamente, y emprendió su rápido vuelo hacia su hangar de Lakehurst, N. J.

Al imponerse el nombre de "Los Angeles" al gran dirigible americano, y al ser explicado al público el origen de este nombre, que lleva la métropoli de California, el público experimentó la benéfica sensación que pudiera recibir con un mensaje de paz y buena voluntad, simbolizando la idea de los exploradores hispanos que llamaron "Ciudad de Los Angeles" a la colonia establecida por ellos, a la vera de las playas del Pacífico.

Uno de los números del programa, para bautizar el dirigible, fue el envió de 50 palomas mensajeras, destinadas a llevar a distintos puntos de la costa, ciertos mensajes en los que el Secretario de Marina refiere, en lenguaje bíblico, el acontecimiento que en ese momento se celebraba en Washington. Al momento en que la Señora Coolidge puso en libertad a las palomas viajeras, se lanzaron al espacio muchos globos que, en momento dado, vinieron a formar en el espacio el nombre "Los Angeles", en el que se reflejaron los dorados rayos del sol poniente.

Se Construirá una Gran Estación en Mazatlán, Méjico

MAZATLAN (Sinaloa, Méjico) Noviembre 25.—Una de las mejoras mas importantes que se esperan muy pronto en este puerto, será la construcción de una Estación terminal de primera clase, conforme lo ha anunciado el Señor H. B Titcomb, presidente del Ferrocarril Sudpacífico de Méjico. Ya se han comprado los terrenos donde será edificada la Estación y se ha dado principio a limpiarlos y arreglarlos, habiéndose quitado los edificios que existian en los referidos terrenos. Según noticias, pronto darán principio los trabajos de construcción de una Estación moderna y con todas las comodidades apetecibles.

La nueva Estación estará localizada como a una milla de la población; queda cerca de una bahía interior o estero, lo que se conceptúa muy ventajoso para el movimiento de mercancías. Cuando las obras proyectadas en el puerto sean ejecutadas, la nueva Estación puede recibir carga y pasajeros directamente de los barcos que atraquen a sus muelles. A la fecha, por falta de fondo en la bahía, los barcos tienen que atracar a alguna distancia de la costa y tanto los pasajeros como las mercancías deben ser transportados en lanchas, hasta la playa.

El presidente Titcomb ha manifestado que están ya terminados los planos para el nuevo edificio que se proyecta, y una copia de ellos ha sido enviada a la Ciudad de Méjico, solicitando que sea aprobada por las autoridades. Los trabajos de construcción darán principio en cuanto se reciban dichos planos aprobados. Cuando sea concluida la Estación, será sin duda la mejor de toda la costa occidental de Méjico y su importancia estará a la altura del gran desarrollo que se espera para Mazatlán, en un futuro no lejano.

También ha informado el presidente Titcomb que en Culiacán, capital del Estado de Sinaloa, será construida otra Estación ferrocarrilera, respondiendo a la necesidad que de ella se siente en aquella progresista población. Culiacán es el centro de una de las mas importantes zonas agrícolas, bajo riego, que tiene Méjico y la fertilidad de las tierras comarcanas es notoria.

Al terminar el decimoquinto día de su campaña, el ejército de 12,000 voluntarios que se alistaron para trabajar por conseguir subscripciones para el fondo del "Cofre de la Comunidad", dará por terminada su tarea y disolverá sus filas, en la junta que va a tener hoy en su Cuartel General, ubicado en el número 911 de la Grand avenue.

Según informaciones obtenidas hasta ayer, las subscripciones montaban a $2,373,881, lo que revela que solo un 6 por ciento de la cantidad total está faltando para que el cofre tenga la suma que debe usarse en remediar las necesidades de la comunidad.

Mas de 200 telegramas han sido enviados a algunas de las personas cuyos nombres se notó que faltaban en las listas de suscripciones, y las respuestas han sido satisfactorias, pues muchos han ofrecido contribuir para el objeto, y de entre ellos, han sido de notarse cuatro mensajes que ofrecieron una contribución de $1000 cada uno.

El número total de suscripciones, a la fecha, es de 179,289 y se calcula que al cerrarse la campaña no habrá menos de 185.000 suscriptores, lo cual da muy alta idea de los sentimientos filantrópicos de las personas residentes en Los Angeles y de la gran labor que han hecho los propagandistas.

El importe entregado ya a la Junta del "Cofre de la Comunidad" alcanza la suma de $1,000,000, lo cual revela que el 40 per ciento de los suscriptores han pagado ya, y por lo mismo los gastos de cobro seran reducidos de una manera muy importante.

DENVER, Nov. 25.—A company of the Denver fire department with a derrick succeded in extricating, after five hours of strenuous work, a team of horses that had fallen into an old sewer near Montview Boulevard and Dahlia streets.

The sewer was so deep the animals could not get out, and when Summerville, with the help of several other men, failed to rescue the team, the Fire Department was notified and a company was sent to the scene. The horses were not seriously injured.

CONFIDENCE IS VOTED HERRIOT

Policy on Red Demonstration Stirs French Chamber

Interpellation by Member Causes Violent Scene

Premier States Government Will Fight Communism

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

PARIS, Nov. 25.—The Chamber of Deputies today gave the government a vote of confidence, 318 to [illegible] on an interpellation by Deputy [illegible] Taittinger regarding incidents which occurred during the [illegible] across Paris by Communists [illegible] the Jaures ceremonies Sunday.

The interpellation brought about a violent scene in the House and after a lengthy debate, Premier Herriot declared that an adverse vote would mean that the House had lost confidence in the government.

M. Taittinger denounced Sunday's proceedings as a "revolution-[illegible]."

He said that Gen. Nollet, Minister of War, had been compelled [illegible] in order to escape the revolutionary manifestation and that [illegible] by were forced to salute the [illegible] flag. When he declared that the danger had been increased by the presence of the international underworld, the extreme left called upon him to speak of the international upper world and Billiet cheques. This was a reference to Senator Billiet, who as president of the Association of Economic Interests, is accused by the left of handling a heavy election fund in the recent election. M. Taittinger immediately charged the [illegible] of the present government with receiving money from [illegible] association and, responding to [illegible] cries for names, said that a certain list of the Rhone department, in which M. Herriot's name figured, had received a subvention from his association.

Premier Herriot explained that the incident had to do with the [illegible] elections, not 1924, as the deputy wished it to appear. The [illegible] at that time, M. Herriot continued, might have been considered as pursuing an honorable object, and Senator Billiet had [illegible] to gain an advantage by [illegible] popularity.

[illegible] for further names prevented M. Taittinger from proceeding with his speech, but the deputy declared that he would give [illegible] only before a commission of inquiry. Becoming exasperated at the clamor for names, the banging of desk lids and the [illegible] of fists, M. Taittinger [illegible] the speaker's stand.

The tumult was such that Vice-President [illegible] was reaching [illegible] to suspend the sitting when M. Herriot rose to make [illegible] observations on Sunday's [illegible]. To his mind the [illegible] disorder had been greatly exaggerated. Gen. Nollet had [illegible]. "Nollet," he asserted, "is [illegible] of feeling." The government had only respected the [illegible] law which tolerates the [illegible] bearing inscriptions.

NAVAL OFFICIAL URGES PORT SURVEY SERVICE FOR OTHER COUNTRIES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—A recommendation that Congress authorize the naval hydrographic office to make surveys for foreign governments which do not maintain similar facilities was contained in the annual report today of Capt. F. B. Bassett, the hydrographer.

Several requests of this nature are on file, he said, and the accurate charting of foreign ports would be of material value in the operation of American shipping. In each case, the foreign government has offered to pay the cost of the work.

Organization of branch offices at Los Angeles and in Honolulu also was recommended by Capt. Bassett.

NEVADA BURIED CITY NAMED

ST. THOMAS (Nev.) Nov. 25.—Nevada's buried city has been named Pueblo Grande by Gov. Scrugham and party, who have just completed a three-day survey of the ruins and caves of the old settlement. M. R. It is reported that mackerel in quantities and some halibut are being caught from boats off nearly all the beaches now. The unusually warm weather is giv[illegible] as the cause for the fish staying north so late in the season.

GALE BUFFETS HUGE LINER

Boat Fights Way to New York with Lounge Wrecked by Waves and Wind

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—After plowing through fifty-foot waves and encountering a seventy-mile gale, the N. G. I. liner Duilio arrived at her West Fifty-seventh-street pier today, with her port rails broken and her second-class lounge wrecked.

The thirty of the 1137 passengers who suffered minor lacerations and contusions appeared to have recovered from their injuries as they disembarked this morning.

Commenting on the storm, Francesco Schiaffino, master of the vessel, said that at 11:30 o'clock last Sunday morning a strong east-by-southeast gale sprang up and within an hour it was blowing at a seventy-mile-an-hour clip.

"During the course of the day fifty-foot waves were encountered. While there were numbers of waves exceeding fifty feet in height, we made everything fast and instructed all passengers to stay below. But many of them ventured on deck and were tossed off their feet," he said.

"At midnight last Sunday I was about to change my course to avoid the fury of the storm, when the wind changed from east-by-southeast to south. One hour before, at 11 p.m., Sunday, the ship was rolling to an angle of 23 degrees. It was then that the second cabin lounge aft was flooded with water."

The passengers who suffered injury were in the second and third class. Apparently there were no serious contusions or lacerations as all the passengers disembarked and no one reported serious injury to the ship's surgeon.

CURE BY PROXY NO GOOD

Detroit Man Takes Wine for His Wife's Stomach's Sake, but Must Pay His Own Fine

DETROIT, Nov. 25.—That wine has its virtues as a tonic for weak stomachs probably the most ardent prohibitionists would not deny. On the other hand, it cannot be successfully denied that its loses something of its tonic properties (for the sufferer, that is) when taken by proxy.

The is sufficiently proved by the novel, if somewhat costly, experiment by Harry Phillips, 39 years of age, 3145 Conrad avenue, Highland Park, a foreman in the River Rouge plant of the Ford Motor Company, who explained it in detail to Fred L. Keller, Highland Park justice of the peace, Monday.

It is not Mr. Phillips, but his wife, who has the weak stomach. Mrs. Phillips, her husband said, has suffered so long from digestive disturbances that lately she has scarcely been able to retain any food. So when a friend suggested wine as a tonic and even provided a bottle of it, Mr. Phillips could do no less than take it.

He took two or maybe three glasses. This had no apparent beneficial effect on Mrs. Phillips, but it made Mr. Phillips feel fine. He felt so fine, indeed, that he scarcely noticed it when, driving out Woodward avenue Sunday evening, he crashed into another automobile at Manchester avenue.

Justice Keller fined him $100 and $5 costs or thirty days in jail, and suggested that hereafter he should permit Mrs. Phillips to take her own tonics. Phillips admitted this was sound advice, whether from a medical or a practical point of view.

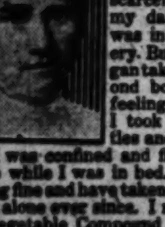
BEFORE TWINS WERE BORN

Was Very Miserable. Felt Lots Better After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound



Wyocena, Wis.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my twins were born because my sister used it and recommended it to me. I was so I could scarcely go about my daily work I was in such misery. But after I began taking the second bottle I was feeling lots better. I took three bottles and a half before I was confined and finished the bottle while I was in bed. I got up feeling fine and have taken care of the twins alone ever since. I recommend the Vegetable Compound highly and will sing its praises in the future."—Mrs. Ina Gerritz, Wyocena, Wis.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many mothers are left in a weakened and run-down condition after childbirth, and for such mothers the care of the baby is well-nigh impossible. Not only is it hard for the mother, but the child itself will indirectly suffer.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother both before and after childbirth. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and can be taken in safety by nursing mothers.

AWAIT TEST OF BLOOD STAINS

"Furnace Death" Detectives to Get Expert's Report

Rev. Sheatsley and Children Expected Home Today

Friend Says Victim Seemed of Normal Mind

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

COLUMBUS (O.) Nov. 25.—Investigators seeking a solution of the Bexley furnace mystery, tonight awaited a report from Chemist C. F. Long and Dr. H. M. Brundage, a pathologist, which is expected to show whether brownish crimson stains discovered yesterday on a number of articles in the Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church personage, where the partly cremated body of Mrs. Addie Sheatsley, 50 years of age, was found in the furnace, the 17th inst., are splotches of human blood.

Rev. C. V. Sheatsley, husband of the victim, at Paris, O., where he and his four children are visiting relatives, announced that the stains were "probably rabbit blood." He explained that he shot four rabbits two days before the tragedy and that they were dressed in the parsonage basement.

FRIEND INTERVIEWED

Mr. Sheatsley and his children, Milton, 20 years of age, Clarence, 16, Elizabeth, 14, and Alice, 10, are expected to return here tomorrow.

Prosecutor King and Detective Harry Carson today went to Lithopolis, where they interviewed Mrs. Gladys Redelfs, who the prosecutor believes, was the last friend of the family to see the victim alive. Mrs. Redelfs, wife of the pastor of the Lutheran Church at Lithopolis, eighteen miles southeast of Columbus, told the investigators, they said, that Mrs. Sheatsley appeared to be in a normal state of mind the day of her visit. Two weeks previously she had visited the home and had sold Mrs. Sheatsley some Christmas cards. Her last visit was for the purpose of delivering them.

Decision as to whether the body of Mrs. Sheatsley should be exhumed, Mr. King said tonight, would be determined by the result of the analysis of the stains. If they prove to be human blood, he indicated the body will be exhumed so that Dr. Brundage may examine the skull.

Edwin M. Abbott, the undertaker who removed the body from the furnace and prepared it for burial, told Prosecutor King that the skull was cracked, but that he was unable to say that it was the result of the intense heat or other causes.

The LAW behind the BANK

CALIFORNIA'S BANK ACT is considered one of the best State Bank Laws in existence. It provides at the same time a maximum usefulness coupled with a maximum protection for the depositor.

The policy of the Security Bank is not merely to keep "within the law" but to go beyond the law in every measure of usefulness and protection to our patrons.

The Security Bank conforms also to the requirements for membership in the Federal Reserve System and its depositors may employ in fullest measure the protection and the facilities of that organization.

A law behind the Bank, a Bank better than the law.

Farm Bureau Offers Prizes to Students

Knights of Pythias Announce Annual Parties

VISALIA, Nov. 25.—Plans will soon be announced by the Tulare County Farm Bureau of an essay contest to be launched in schools of the county. A different outline will be followed this year with the county divided into sections. Subject of the essay will be "The Farm Bureau and Its Uses," and it will be open to members of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades of rural schools in Tulare county.

In addition to the grand prize, given to the boy or girl with the best essay in the county, school awards consisting of cash prizes will be given. The grand prize is a trip to Davis Agricultural School. The essay work will also count as credit toward composition at school. County Superintendent of Schools J. E. Buckman has sent letters to arouse interest.

PRESENT VALUABLE BOOKS

VISALIA, Nov. 25.—The student body of Visalia Union High School is the proud owner of a set of seven volumes of records of the World War, presented by Commander E. M. Howard of Visalia post, No. 15, American Legion, on behalf of his organization. These books will be used for special reference in the high school library and were donated to the student body in a special ceremony at assembly.

The seven books are elegantly bound with a seal of each of the seven countries represented on the face of the leather covering. They contain a complete record of the causes and results of the great war participated in by seven countries of the world, both sides being presented in historical data. Articles are written by Gen. Von Ludendorf and the Kaiser, giving the German side of the question. The Ally viewpoint is also given and the data are said to be authentic in every detail, being prepared by Charles F. Horne as editor. He was head of the Horne Commission appointed by the late President Wilson to gather complete and authentic details on the war and its causes.

An address was also made by Capt. S. N. Dancey, Americanization officer of the American Legion.

KNIGHTS GIVE PARTIES

PORTERVILLE, Nov. 25.—Porterville Knights of Pythias will celebrate their fortieth Thanksgiving here with an annual ball in keeping with established custom. This affair will be staged at the Second-street pavilion with music by McCourt's orchestra. The committee on arrangements includes Webb Loyd, W. W. Brown, B. C. Petticrew, Charles T. Falling and Dr. G. W. Heley.

Plans are also under way for entertainment of lodge members and their families at a special Christmas party. A feature of this event will be a monster Christmas tree from which Santa Claus will dispense gifts for all the kiddies. Earl A. Hodgson, W. W. Brown and R. L. Stewart have charge of arrangements.

ANNOUNCE FLOWER SHOW

EXETER, Nov. 25.—The postponed chrysanthemum show, or Harvest Home Festival, of the Exeter Woman's Club, will be held during the second week of December. First plans called for staging this event on Armistice Day, but the American Legion celebration was of such a nature that members of the club thought best to postpone their show until later.

RED CROSS ELECTS

OROSI, Nov. 25.—At the annual meeting of Orosi chapter of the Red Cross the following officers were elected for the coming year: Chairman, Mrs. O. D. Freeman; vice-chairman, Mrs. E. Daniels; secretary, Mrs. A. D. Wrought; treasurer Mrs. G. G. Breckinridge; directors, Mrs. O. D. Freeman, Mrs. A. D. Wrought, James Maloney, O. C. Gooding, H. A. Collins and Mrs. E. J. Evans.

FEAR FATAL ACCIDENT TO NAVY FLYER

Officials Are Baffled by Mystery Disappearance of Rigger and Companion

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 25.—Disappearance of Harry A. Mitchell, aviation chief rigger, first class, stationed at the naval air station on North Island, and a companion, believed to be Fred A. Miner of Sherman, Cal., after the two had gone off in Mitchell's plane Sunday is being energetically investigated by naval air station authorities. Nothing has been seen or heard of Mitchell and Miner for three days.

Naval air station officials expressed the opinion that Mitchell's plane either made a forced landing in some isolated spot or that the plane crashed with probably fatal results to its occupants.

Mitchell when not on duty at the aviation field operated a private plane at Chula Vista flying field. Sunday he was seen to take off with a passenger. The aviator was due to report for duty at the government station yesterday morning and when he failed to appear an investigation was startled. Today enough facts were brought to light to indicate another mystery of the air lanes may be added to the several already written on the pages of local aviation history.

Persons near the Chula Vista field Sunday said today that Mitchell's passenger had driven to the grounds in a sedan car. This car stood unnoticed all day yesterday, and today after it was serched the name of Fred Miner of Sherman, Cal., was found on the registration card.

Mitchell's habits, according to his superior officers, were consistently steady and the fact that he failed to report for duty yesterday is taken to mean that he must have met with an accident. Mitchell and Miner, as far as it could be ascertained today, literally vanished in the air after leaving Chula Vista flying field Sunday.

DAILY MARKET LETTER OF THE NEW YORK COMMERCIAL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—As anticipated, the dried fruit market advanced as a result of steady buying. The Sun-Maid Raisin situation is in wholesome shape with prices firm and demands for current and future shipments bearing out former predictions of a stronger market. It was freely stated by those familiar with the business that there is no great likelihood of the usual after-the-holidays depression. England has been a purchaser of California raisins this year in a large way, and with the association men in Europe pushing sales in all directions and ready buyers, the conditions are exceedingly good for continued activity throughout the winter.

CANNED GOODS

Canned foods market is solid in all particulars and the future prospects are encouraging. Scattering parcels of No. 10 New York State whole Refugee beans were sold and quickly absorbed. Fancy beans of all sizes, both whole and sliced, were in fair demand for deferred shipment, with offerings slight. The other items on the list were practically dead.

There was no indication of any weakness in California peaches although the market in the local field is quiet. The wholesale houses, holding stocks of pie peaches for the baking trade, are not anxious to sell except at a high price, and then only in small quantities.

Salmon of all grades dragged along slowly with occasional orders to fill out short stocks. Buyers rather look for a decided movement in salmon after the first of January, but see no prospect for live business until then.

SUGAR STRONG

The underlying strength of raw sugar as governed by the Cuban situation was determined by further sales to local refiners at the full asking price of 4 1-4 cents. The sales comprised 18,000 bags Cubas for prompt shipment, 600 tons of Philippine, now due at 6.03 duty free, equivalent to 4 1-4 cents cost and freight, 2270 tons Perus, due this week at 3 13-16 cents c.i.f. also equivalent to 4 1-4 cents Cuban basis, and 15,000 bags Cubas for shipment this week at 4 1-4 cents cost and freight.

The announcement was made some time ago that all full duty sugar had already been absorbed, but it is noticeable that whenever the price reaches an attractive level a little more comes out.

The firmer position of raws added to improved demand was all that was needed to bring on further advances in refined sugar. The National, Warner, Pennsylvania, Arbuckle and McCahan marked their prices up 10 points to the basis of 7.50.

Futures opened steady at 2 points advance for December and other months unchanged to 1 point down. The market was strengthened by reports of torrential rains in Cuba. Prices closed at unchanged to 3 points advance. The final prices were: January, 3.49; March, 3.14; Mary, 3.2[illegible] July, 3.29; September, 3.38, and December 4.17.

COFFEE TURNS UP

After opening weak coffee began to react soon after the call on unofficial advices that the Brazilian government would impose an additional export tax of 1 cent a pound on coffee after January 1. As a result, the market on active trading, finally closed at a net advance of 40 to 75 points. The final prices were January, 18.60; March, 17.80; May, 17.00; June, 16.75; July, 16.60; September, 16.10; November, 15.90, and December, 15.75.

Cabled advices from London intimated at advance of ½d per pound on Indian teas. The quantity offered at the sale was somewhat larger than usual of late, but the market met with strong support, resulting in the advance. There appears to be no signs of weakening in any of the primary markets, either of fermented, semi fermented or green teas.

RICE AND BEANS

Rough rice in the South is still held at high prices, though the general movement of the cleaned goods has slowed down after the first rush to replenish depleted stocks. There has been more inquiry for export, but there has been very little actual business reported. Blue Rose is quoted for prompt shipment at 6 7-8 cents and choice at 5 3-8 cents, and for first half December at 6 cents and 5 3-4 cents, respectively.

The demand for beans appears to be entirely confined to standard varieties. The arrivals of new crop are not increasing. Marrows are quiet and held at 11 1-4 cents, but for free sale 11 cents is top.

The butter market opened strong in tone on fresh butter and with limited offerings, and a sharp advance in Chicago prices, jumped fully 1 cent a pound. Call sales were 100 tubs extras at 46 cents and 100 tubs of held extras at 40 cents.

While the receipts of eggs are running light, so far as western brown eggs are concerned, eggs are piling up very fast in first hands and are just about steady. California shippers have been rushing stocks here by express, but buyers are not disposed to take lines of size. Storage eggs are on the waiting list.

COPPER AT 14

The profit-taking by speculators has run its course and 14 cents a pound for electrolytic is again the market. At least, there were none quoting under this level and sales at the price for December and January delivery were reported. London cables standard spot as advancing 2s 6d to £63 10s, futures, 5s to £64 13s 6d, and electrolytic 5s, with spot closing at £67 15s and futures £68 5s.

Lead is still quotable at from 8.65 to 9 cents, New York, and 8.40 to 8.80 cents a pound St. Louis. London spot advanced 5s to £40, but futures declined 2s 6d to £37 2s 6d.

Zinc advanced another 2½ points today, closing at 6.85 cents, St. Louis, and 7.20 cents, New York. London spot advanced 6d to £34 16s 6d, but futures were unchanged at £34 15s.

OIL MARKET

Published reports that the Gulf Refining and others had advanced the tank-wagon price of gasoline a cent to 16 cents, New York, are incorrect. The price is still 15 cents. It was also incorrectly published in Wall street that the Standard Company of New York had raised the price of V. M. and P. Naptha. The price is unchanged at 14 cents.

Chicago advices state that new navy gasoline in Group 3 territory, Midcontinent district, is 8½ cents wholesale, an advance of ¼ cent. This represents an advance of ½ cent in a little more than a week. Higher quality gasolines are firmer at from 9½ to 10½ cents with supply light. Fuel oil is also firmer at $1.07½ to $1.12½ a barrel in Group 3, which is an advance of 2½ cents in the past few days.

Bonds continued to maintain a firmer tone in active trading. For a time the entire treasury group was fractionally above the previous close, but reactions followed in some of the issues. The speculative rails continued active, the leadership being accorded to St. Paul issues, which were offered freely, but were taken at prices only fractionally under the highest levels for the day. Seaboard descriptions were also active. The new French 7's were active again and all transactions were completed at prices above the syndicate's offering price of 94. The foreign group was otherwise not active.

NEW POLYTECHNIC CLASS

A class in the preparation and serving of suppers will be conducted at Polytechnic Evening High School, room 108, Tuesday and Thursday from 5 to 7 oclock.

A class in the construction of bungalow models, complete in every detail, will be given Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Instruction in the use of the steel square and stair building will be continued. To explain the details of the 1924 income tax law, a class will be held at the high school Tuesday and Thursday under the direction of Carl Opp, a certified public accountant. Registrations will be taken in room 205.

STAGE SET FOR SHRINE YULE BALL

Every feature of the program was completed yesterday for the big charity ball to be given tonight by Al Malaikah Shrine Temple at the new Ambassador Auditorium, Ambassador Hotel grounds. The committee in charge of the event requests that the guests enter the auditorium from the Eighth street side to facilitate the handling of the crowds.

The largest crowd in the history of these annual events given by the local Shrine members is expected to be in attendance tonight to help raise the 1924 fund for Christmas relief and to provide a huge Christmas tree for the distribution on the night of December 23 of thousands of gifts to Los Angeles children.

Motley H. Flint, executive vice-president of the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank, is chairman of the relief committee which will handle the donations among the poor families of the city, and James W. Jump is chairman of the Christmas tree part.

According to Noble Flint more than $20,000 was spent during the last Christmas season in this city for Shrine charity. Investigators are now working among the poor families of Los Angeles and making reports of cases requiring donations of clothing.

More than 10,000 persons can be accommodated tonight at the Ambassador Auditorium, it was stated by the management. It also was pointed out that 5000 can dance simultaneously on the new ballroom floor.

Grains Decline Under Lack of Strong Buying

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Resumption of liquidation in December wheat gave the market a heavy undertone a great part of the day, and with a lack of aggressive buying, prices declined sharply and closed with net losses of 2⅜@3⅝c, with December at 1.52⅝@1.52⅞, May at 1.60⅜@1.60⅝ and July at 1.41⅛@1.41¼. Corn acted tired and closed 1⅝@2c lower, with December at 1.12⅞@1.12¾, May at 1.18⅞@1.19 and July at 1.20⅛@1.20. Oats were off ⅜@⅝c and rye 2⅝@3⅛c.

Claims that recent frosts in Southern Argentina did more damage than expected, and of further rains in Australia led to some buying at times, but otherwise the news was rather bearish. Stop-loss orders were finally uncovered in wheat and the market declined rapidly on the last thirty minutes of trading. Speculative interest has fallen off somewhat.

There were 300,000 bushels of wheat bought back from European importers by the seaboard during the day, which attracted some attention, as fresh sales were only 250,000 bushels. Cables reported offerings of new Argentina wheat for December shipment at about equal to what was asked for domestic No. 2 hard. Basis at the gulf, however, was firmer, with but little grain coming out. Cash houses continue to buy December and sell May around 7⅞@8c difference. Long wheat was on the market a good part of the day, and at the low point May showed 3⅝ cents under the high of Monday.

Liverpool disappointed the bulls by closing ⅛@⅜d lower on wheat. Technically the market was in no position to withstand any material increase in selling, as shorts generally covered on Monday's bulge, and many of the local elements were long overnight.

Longs were on the selling side of corn, and with only fair support, and the break in wheat the decline was easily attained. The December-May spread was about unchanged, with December at 6⅜ cents discount. The basis on spot was firmer, however, with No. 4 grades 5@5½c under the future, compared with 7 cents the previous day. Country offerings were decidedly light, and receipts of 146 cars were not burdensome.

Sentiment in corn was somewhat mixed, with a disposition shown in some quarters to keep off the bull side for the time being.

A little export business is being done at the seaboard in oats and sales of 50,000 bushels were reported for the day. It would not surprise some traders if the foreign demand became brisk later in the season. Futures were dull and easier with corn.

A good class of buying developed in rye on the break, and the undertone was fairly firm despite the selling by longs. Weakness in wheat was the main depressing influence. No export business was claimed at the seaboard.

LOS ANGELES MARKET

CATTLE: Today's fresh receipts, estimated at 400, were late in arriving. However, holdovers were liberal, estimated around 1200. Prices were uneven, the inbetween grades composing the bulk being generally 25c to 50c lower for the week, with spots showing even more loss. A fair demand exists for strictly good cows and steers at steady prices, this being evidenced by the way the few loads of good cows and heifers that arrived late were bought. Medium to good 1000-pound northern steers topped at 7.40, while the bulk of steers for slaughter purposes averaging 900 to 1050 pounds cleared from 6.00 to 6.85. Common kinds sold downward to 4.50, with a few on the canner order going over as low as 3.00. Several small lots of steers for feeder purposes cleared from 4.00 to 5.25, with a few upward to 6.00.

Two loads of fat cows averaging 1045 to 1060 pounds topped for the day at 5.75, while two loads of heifers averaging 882 pounds cleared for 5.50. Inbetween kinds, mostly holdovers, cleared largely from 3.25 to 4.75, a few going over for 5.00. Canners and cutters were weak, most going over from 1.75 to 3.10. Bulls were scarce and ruled about steady, most bolognas clearing from 3.00 to 3.75, with a few on the beef order upward to 4.00.

CALVES: Today's offerings of calves were mostly overweights and common and medium kinds, of which there has been an over-supply in the recent runs. Prices were uneven, mostly around 25c lower, the bulk of 220 to 330-pound calves clearing from 5.00 to 5.75, with only handpicked lots above the latter price. Weightier kinds and "bobs" sold downward to 3.00.

HOGS: Better than 2000 hogs were offered on today's market, approximately 2000 of which were held over from yesterday. Packers held back and only a few loads sold on the morning session, one load of choice 171-pound eastern grain feds topping at 10.25, while mixed and nearby butchers sold downward to 9.25. The closing rounds finds good and choice butchers unevenly 50c to 75c lower than yesterday's close, the bulk of desirable weights clearing from 9.50 to 9.85. However, only a partial clearance was effected. Packing sows were 15c to 25c lower, most going over from 8.50 to 8.75.

CITY VISITED BY FEDERAL ROAD CHIEFS

Greater Development of Park Highways Hinted by Bureau Director

High officials of the United States Bureau of Public Roads were Los Angeles guests yesterday and during their brief sojourn here were taken on a sightseeing tour in motor cars by representatives of the Automobile Club of Southern California. The party had been in attendance at the annual convention of State Highway Engineers in San Francisco and motored down the Coast route on a sightseeing trip before returning to Washington.

In the party were Thomas McDonald, director of the United States Bureau of Public Roads; Capt. P. St. Julien Wilson, chief engineer; Dr. L. I. Hughes, deputy chief engineer; T. Warranell, chief of the fiscal division; A. T. Goldbeck, chief of the division of tests; J. S. Bright, regional engineer for the West Coast division; E. O. Hathaway, district engineer of St. Paul; Mrs. Hathaway, and Miss C. L. Fuller, secretary to the director.

While Mr. McDonald was noncommittal relative to State highway development in California, he said he felt that doubtless the government will take cognizance of the increased travel to national monuments and national parks and that the government's part of road development to these interesting backgrounds will be prosecuted vigorously.

Reports for 1924 indicate that the national playgrounds were visited by 1,670,908 persons, compared with 1,493,712 in 1923. Travel by train to the parks showed a decrease, but there was a marked increase in motor travel, indicating the growing and pressing need for highway improvement. The party left for Washington in the afternoon expressing their appreciation of the courtesy extended them in Los Angeles.

At-Your-Door Grocery Idea is Investigated

A hearing was held yesterday by the State Corporation Department to investigate the feasibility of the proposed operations of At-Your-Door-Groceries, Inc., who have applied for permission to issue $1,000,000 worth of stock for the purpose of putting grocery stores on wheels.

The company proposes to equip forty-two trucks with staple articles and circulate through local neighborhoods. An initial outlay of $100,000 is suggested.

One officer of the company, called as a witness by Deputy Corporation Commissioner Armstrong, testified that he was formerly connected with a tent and awning company.

It developed at the hearing, however, that the present officers are regarded as only temporary.

J. A. Daley, prominent chain grocery store man, while highly recommending two men from his organization, who have been retained by the new company, declared the proposed plan is not feasible.

BAY CITY GETS BANK MEETING

Western, Louisiana and Texas Bankers to Convene

Auto and Truck Production is Lower in October

Elliott & Horne Co. Deliver Highway Bonds

Delegates from savings banks in eleven States of the West, and from Texas and Louisiana in addition, will convene in San Francisco on February 19 and 20, in the largest bank convention of 1925, it was announced yesterday by W. B. Morehouse, vice-president of the Security Bank, who is a member of the executive committee of the savings-bank division of the American Bankers' Association. Over 1000 bankers are expected to attend, of which Los Angeles will send about twenty-five.

The meeting will be under the direction of Alvin P. Howard, president of the savings-bank division. He is also vice-president of the Hibernia Bank and Trust Company of New Orleans, and will bring a representative delegation from his city and State. Details of the convention are in the hands of P. A. Pfluger, assistant vice-president of the Humbolt Bank of San Francisco.

One of the features of the gathering will be a speakers' contest between the various chapters of the American Institute of Banking in the thirteen States. Each chapter will hold elimination contests to select representatives, and the winner in the finals will be suitably rewarded by the San Francisco bankers. The contest is sponsored by E. B. Krick, national president of the American Institute of Banking.

The plan of holding regional meetings of the savings-bank division of the American Bankers' Association was inaugurated last year by Charles A. Deppe, vice-president of the Union Trust Company of Cincinnati, then president of the savings-bank division. The first meeting in the West was held in Los Angeles early this year, to which delegates in large numbers attended.

Stride Falters

The Department of Commerce in announcing October production of automobiles and trucks, reveals that during the early 1924 months there was an increase in output, but that October and the several months preceding it suffered considerable of a decline. Statistics were based on figures received from 205 manufacturers, ninety-nine of which produced passenger cars and 135 made trucks, twenty-nine making both cars and trucks. Data for the earlier months include figures from seventeen additional manufacturers now out of business, while October statistics did not include thirteen small firms whose reports were not available.

Elliott & Horne Company also are offering $32,000 Fresno county road district improvement bonds for paving in the College Park tract just outside of the city limits of Fresno and adjoining the residence section of the city north of the State college. These bonds are secured by a direct lien on all the taxable property within the district; are exempt from all taxes, both State and Federal, and yield 5½ per cent.

New Firm Opens

One of the newest bond and investment firms to start business in Los Angeles is that of Joosten & Ruth, which has opened offices at 920-922 Bank of Italy Building. It will handle public utility, industrial and municipal bonds, as well as preferred stocks of an established nature.

This firm is composed of J. M. W. Joosten and W. J. Ruth. Mr. Joosten was formerly engaged in distribution of bonds and high-grade securities in San Francisco, and for several years past has been in the same line in Los Angeles. Mr. Ruth was for several years in New York City in the bond business, and for some time past has been in financial work in this city.

WATER RESOURCES VAST

Plans to Harness California's Waste Supply Insure Eventual Industrial Rewards; East Worried

BY EARLE E. CROWE

Some concern over the available undeveloped supply of water for hydroelectric purposes was expressed by the Federal Power Commission a few days ago in its annual report for the year ended June 30, 1924. The commission estimated in its survey that 72 per cent of water resources are west of the Mississippi while 79 per cent of requirements are east of the river. In the eleven Northeastern States where the nation's industries are largely grouped the total water supply is less than one-third of the demand.

Here is where California ultimately will dictate terms. Cheap power is assuming more and more importance in industry and is gradually becoming the lodestone of manufacturers seeking new fields favored with natural advantages. The interconnected power system will minimize the disadvantages of the eastern manufacturer to some extent but even in this scheme California is destined to play a major part.

WATER LOSS HEAVY

In this State the problem is not so much one of shortage of water supply but of the elimination of waste. It is more nearly related to the determined efforts of Herbert Hoover to curtail the waste in industry by the adoption of methods of standardization. President Coolidge took a hand along this line when he recently told the National Conference on Utilization of Forest Products that "the time is at hand when our country is actually confronted with a timber shortage." He advised growing "our wood from the soil like any other crop."

What California faces in this connection, and a glimpse of the potential wealth in hydroelectric energy and agricultural production are found packed in an extensive report to the legislature in 1923 on "Water Resources of California, compiled by the Department of Public Works. Here are some of the channels in which the gold dollars are annually escaping into the sea:

An annual average water production of 73,500,000 acre-feet flows down the California rivers, the maximum yield of which is two and three-quarters the average and the minimum but three-eighths as much. The total run-off in successive seasons fluctuates between these limits, one seven times the other.

As an average over the whole State, the greatest daily flow exceeds 500 times the least. On an average of four times a century flood waters roar down from the mountains to the sea in four days, aggregate of which is equivalent to the entire production of every drainage basin in the State for the seasons of least flow.

FLOOD WASTE IMPORTANT

During only one of these days, the total flow would be ample to supply an urban population of 70,000,000 with domestic water for a year, or to irrigate 4,000,000 acres of agricultural land through an entire season; or to generate 100,000 horsepower continously for twelve months when dropping through a height of 100 feet.

The maximum yield possible from the entire water-producing area of the State is 58,300,000 acre-feet annually, or 80 per cent of the mean seasonal run-off. To obtain this yield would require a total capacity in storage works of 184,906,000 acre-feet.

If evenly distributed the entire amount of California's waters for an average year would cover the 23,000,000 acres of tillable land to a depth of 3 1-4 feet. The necessary application to the soil is only two feet annually.

In the Sacramento Valley are 5,500,000 acres of agricultural lands watered by a flow from the mountains sufficient to submerge the lands to an average depth of four and one-half feet.

Arable land in the second of the great valleys, the San Joaquin, totals 8,250,000 acres, while the water supply is only large enough to cover the land to a depth of one and one-third feet. From the Santa Barbara Channel to the Mexican border is a drainage area containing about 3,000,000 tillable acres with water enough for only a depth of one foot.

Four-fifths of the agricultural lands may be watered, or about 18,000,000 acres. This amount is three times larger than the irrigated lands in California in 1919, and greater than the entire water area in the western States in the same year.

SMALL AMOUNT UTILIZED

About one-fourth of all waters that can ultimately be made available through storage within the borders of the state were in use in 1920 for domestic and industrial supply, irrigation, power generation and mining.

This last paragraph illustrates the task before the State of California if the natural advantages in water resources are to be capitalized to the fullest extent. The State engineers seek to correct the disparity in the supply of some of the basins by construction of a huge canal system. The main canal would bring the surplus from the Sacramento River Valley to the San Joaquin in a canal 200 miles long.

But before this project is accomplished the available waters now going to waste in the respective watersheds are visualized by the engineers impounded behind vast concrete dams to store a supply for the generation of electrical energy and for the irrigation of farms. When this program of conservation and foresight is completed, California, it is safe to say, will have assumed its crown of destiny as the capitol of the western empire in all its affluence.

PRICE RANGE NARROW ON COTTON EXCHANGE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Spot cotton closed 25 points net lower at 24.35.

Price movements were narrow and irregular on the cotton exchange here today. Business continued dull. After an opening 6 points higher to 3 points lower, trade interests bought in a small way and there was also scattered local covering. The list moved up some 25 points early, but pre-holiday evening-up resulted in a reactionary tendency in the afternoon and the list lost all its early gain and fell back for a moderate loss. Final prices were 24 to 39 points net lower.

TURKEYS LOWER THAN IN 1923

Thanksgiving turkeys are costing Angelenos approximately 5 cents a pound less than last year, due apparently to the poorer average grade on the market. One retail house is selling No. 1 birds at 42 cents a pound, and wholesale prices are ranging from 37 to 40 cents.

The market is firm on fancy stock and there is considerable weakness being exhibited by No. 2 fowl. Prices quoted are from 1 to 2 cents below what was anticipated, with indications that there will be a large number of the mediocre birds left over.

Good turkeys are scarce and little effort is being made to merchandise other grades. In anticipation of disappointment over the crop, prices early were kept down by producers.

OUTPUT OF SILK FACTORY TAKEN

Golden State Mills Receive Assurances of Support

First Machinery Consignment Reaches Hermosa Beach

Operations Expected to Begin by First of Next Year

Verbal assurances that the initial production of the Golden State Silk Mills, Inc., owning a plant at Hermosa Beach, will be taken by the department and dry goods stores of Los Angeles and the metropolitan area have been received by E. J. Young, president of the silk mills which is the only one of its kind west of the Mississippi River.

Arrival of the first consignment of the primary order of 300 looms for the Southern California silk factory was heralded Monday at Hermosa Beach by sirens and automobile horn blowing. Considerable interest has been displayed in the project by the beach town citizens because of the pay roll of 275 persons which ultimately is to be put into effect, according to plans.

Mr. Young yesterday announced that the remainder of the looms, motors, dyeing and throwing machines ordered for the plant will be in place before the end of next month and production on a good-sized scale will be started by next year. At present, workmen at the factory are finishing preparations for the machinery. Both of the large twin buildings have just been pronounced complete and the last unit of hardwood floors on which the machinery will rest was made ready last week.

The Golden State Silk Mills, Inc., officers state, marks the start of a new era in Southern California textile circles. The company will have an investment in plants and stocks of approximately $500,000, which also includes a fund to be set aside for working capital. Its capitalization is $1,000,000.

OFFICERS ENROLLED

Determination of mill founders to establish in this district a plant such as they have built and are equipping was based, according to Mr. Young, upon the tremendous virgin field for broad silks, and upon the great advantages of general manufacturing in Southern California.

The recent Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce silk survey of the territory first was analyzed by engineers of the company, and to these facts were added those developed with specific attention to phases applicable to aims of the Hermosa Beach mill men.

The facts considered of greatest importance by the silk industrialists were:

IMPORTS LARGE

In 1922 this country imported $388,000,000 worth of raw silk, which was manufactured into products valued at $583,000,000.

The value of the market of which Los Angeles logically is the center, approximates $100,000,000 a year.

Statistics show that 95.5 per cent of the raw silk imported into the United States comes from the Orient. Up to the present all of the manufacturing has been done in the East. The raw silk is landed at Pacific Coast ports and shipped at a very heavy expense to the Atlantic States. The manufactured product for the Pacific Coast market is then shipped back at still greater expense.

About 135,000 operatives are employed in eastern silk mills at a combined yearly wage of $110,000,000.

Raw silk can be landed direct at Los Angeles Harbor from the Orient, saving the high express and insurance charges and interest on the capital invested for the time necessary for transportation, as well as eliminating the fast freight or express charges for reshipping the manufactured product here from the East.

The climate of Southern California is particularly adapted to the manufacture of silk, making unnecessary the expensive machinery that is required in the East to regulate the temperature.

ABUNDANT LABOR

An abundant supply of labor, including many trained silk workers, entirely English-speaking and practically all American born, is available here, and because of the mild equable climate, this labor is at least 10 per cent more efficient than in the East.

Southern California uses more silk per capita than any other section of the United States, and there is an immense market right at hand, which can be supplied at a minimum of expense by a local mill.

From the savings here noted, it is calculated that silk can be manufactured in Los Angeles at a saving of 16 per cent over eastern mills. In other words, a silk mill in Los Angeles could sell its product on the New York market and yet make more profit than an eastern mill. In the Pacific Coast market practically all of this 16 per cent will be added to the profits of the local mill.

In addition, climatic conditions in Southern California permit the wearing of silks all the year 'round. The people of Southern California use more silk per capita than those of any other section.

To meet this demand the city has many large factories making silk garments, such as dresses, waists, shirts and lingerie.

MARKET TO HOLD PACE IS OPINION

Railroad Prospects Held Most Favorable in Last Twenty Years

Moody's Weekly Review of Financial Conditions in its current issue reports in part:

"Expectation of a so-called normal reaction is becoming more general, but in view of the great business improvement now under way it is a doubtful question whether any large immediate reaction would literally be normal.

"Not since the days of William McKinley has the railroad stock outlook appeared quite as satisfactory as it does now. For twenty years we have suffered almost continuously from governmental unfriendliness to railroads.

"Now, however, even passenger rates, which were unremunerative for four decades, have become remunerative; there is a more reasonable margin of profit in the freight business; net earnings are making new high records; capital is cheap, and large improvement programs are under way.

"Renewed strength in the copper metal may foreshadow further expansion in the business of the electric companies. These are the largest consumers of copper, and their earnings from radio manufacturing should make new high records next year."

Protection Through Analysis—

An analysis shows if an excess has been placed in common or preferred stocks—in one company—in some particular industry—in one locality—or if the bonds fail to include sufficient long or short maturity dates.

The limit for each class and type of security varies according to the investment position of the individual.

BOND QUOTATIONS

Steady Prices

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Bond prices held firm today, although profit-taking interrupted advances in selected issues which had been the features of recent trading sessions. Speculative activity again seemed to find freer play in the stock market with the result that movements in the bond trading generally were narrow and insignificant.

The sharp rise in St. Paul bonds yesterday appeared to have discounted the road's exceptionally favorable earnings statement for October, which was made public today. Considerable activity was displayed in this list today but realizing sales held prices down.

Heavy buying of Pierce Arrow 8s, which jumped 3 5-8 points to a 1924 peak at 91 7-8 was one of the features of trading in the industrial list. Market Street Railway 7s advancing 2 3-8 to a new top price at 99 7-8, lead an upward movement in traction bonds.

Following are yesterday's high, low and closing prices of bonds on the New York Stock Exchange, and the total sales of each bond. This market is over Associated Press wires and to expedite transmission the closing is omitted when it is the same as the low, and both low and close are omitted when they are the same as the high.

NEW YORK CURB

Union Oil Jumps

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The main price movement in today's curb market was upward, although a few weak spots developed during the day. Oils were mixed, but mostly higher, Standard Oil of Ohio standing out with an extreme gain of 14 points, five of which were lost before the close. Prairie Oil and Gas and Vacuum each closed more than a point higher. Union Oil moved up over 4 points.

Heavy buying of Goodyear Tire and Rubber, which moved up 1⅛ points to a new top at 23⅝, featured the industrial list.

Thermiodyne Radio touched a new top at 13⅝ on reports that the company was to enlarge its manufacturing capacity, and most of the other active radios lost ground.

The new preferred stock of the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad advanced more than 3 points to 28.

DEAN OF RAIL HEADS TO RESIGN

Samuel Rea, President of Pennsylvania Railroad, Will End Half Century of Service Next Year; Executive Best-Beloved of Transportation Chiefs

Any employee of the great Pennsylvania system would know instantly what was meant by the first laudatory expression, Barnard Powers writes in The Magazine of Wall Street, and any railroad man would know the answer from the second phrase, if not from the first.

Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, will be 70 years of age next September. When Mr. Rea hands over the reins of control next year to W. W. Atterbury, he will have completed approximately half a century of service to the Pennsylvania. The record is almost unique. He has probably seen more of railroading from the inside and from a broader perspective than any man alive today. He has held the lowest as well as the highest position in the Pennsylvania.

His habits are simple and his hobbies few. He loves music and is a patron of the Philadelphia opera. For years he has collected antique English silver, and even the cupboard of his private car is entirely furnished with antique silverware. He is well-to-do but not rich. His salary is about $75,000 per annum, and last year he paid an income tax of $33,000. He has been more interested in his work than the profits therefrom. For the rest he loves to motor through the rolling hills of Pennsylvania, chop wood, smoke a pipe and read good books.

A better understanding of the men at the head of big affairs leads to a better understanding of the many and intricate problems with which they are confronted. Samuel Rea is essentially a builder. His great life interest has been the orderly and logical growth of the great railroad system of which he is president and which he will shortly leave.

Market "deals," security manipulation, pool operations and the like hold no interest for him. Between him and the former school of so-called "railroad men," but more properly called "railroad wreckers," there is a difference as great as that which obtains between daylight and dark. He belongs to the new school, and the better school, of corporate leaders.

Better Demand is Forecast by Steel Chairman

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—"Demand for iron and steel products is large, and increasing, and promises to be up to and perhaps in excess of manufacturing capacity," Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, said today in discussing the business situation.

"Prices have been too low. It is hoped that they will be high enough to allow all of the producers some profits, as published figures show many have been operating at a loss."

Chairman Gary stated that he also was glad that employers had not reduced wages during the past six months, "although they would have been justified in so doing."

"I am hoping," he added, "that the market for everything that is sold will not advance too rapidly, nor to figures that are unreasonably high. It will be better for all business lines and for the country at large if we can have a steady, progressive and reasonable volume of business at fair rates."

Mr. Hopkins Says It Increased 1300%

AND Mr. Hopkins ought to know. He's been at it a good many years—and he's had a chance to figure it all out every year since he's been at it.

There isn't much chance for him to make an error—for—if he did—you would hear a mighty wail from taxpayers all over the city. Mr. Hopkins is the man who makes the assessments.

If all the properties in Los Angeles—good, bad and indifferent—increased 1300% in the past ten years—then the general average annual increase has been 130%—on ALL kinds of property.

Using this as a basis—doesn't it seem reasonable to believe that SOME PROPERTY increased MORE than others?

Well-located sites on growing lanes of traffic—for instance—wouldn't they be MORE VALUABLE than lots in some isolated section?

If such properties were analyzed—wouldn't they show a GREATER INCREASE than 130% a year?

That's exactly what we think, too.

And that's why we EXPECT to make MORE than 130% a year on the money we have invested in the Realty Owners Trust.

And, 130% a year isn't to be sneezed at, either!

Maybe you'd like to look over some of the facts and figures we have gathered together about our new form of SAFE INVESTMENT. If so—the COUPON below will bring 'em. There's no obligation. If our plan doesn't suit you—no harm done.

Five Reasons Why
The Edwards & Wildey Building

First (Closed) Mortgage Leasehold Serial 7% Gold Bonds, due 1927-1939. Exempt from California Personal Property Tax.

1. These bonds represent only approximately 50% of the estimated cost of the building, which will be a modern thirteen-story Class "A" store and office structure.
2. This low ratio of indebtedness will be rapidly decreased through sinking fund operations.
3. Estimated net income available for interest and sinking fund is over four times the maximum annual interest charges and twice the largest yearly interest and principal requirements.
4. The property is located at the southwest corner of Sixth Street and Grand Avenue, in a thoroughly established business area, within 1000 feet of the Pacific Mutual Building, J. W. Robinson's Department Store, Biltmore Hotel and the Union Oil Building.
5. Ownership and management are in the hands of the Edwards & Wildey Company, one of the best established and most successful construction companies in Los Angeles.

BOSTON WOOL MARKET

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—The wool market continues strong. Foreign wool in particular seems to be firmer, both in the primary and domestic market. The Sydney sales, with an offering of 25,000 bales, will close tomorrow. The market there is reported strong. America and the continent are the principal operators. Fifteen thousand bales were scheduled to be offered at the sale today at Perth.

OIL NEWS

BY HOWARD C. KEGLEY

Production in the Dominguez field took another jump of between 4500 and 5000 barrels yesterday, with the completion of two new wells, one by the Shell Company, its second of the week, and the other by the Marland Oil Company.

The Shell Company brought in its Reyes No. 13 at a depth of about 4050 feet, with an actual production of 1633 barrels in thirteen hours, or at the rate of 3020 barrels a day. The cut was reported at 5 per cent, which is expected to clear up and increase the gravity, which is 30.5 degrees. Reyes No. 13 is an offset to the Associated Oil Company's De-Francis No. 2.

The Marland Oil Company's Dominguez No. 3 was placed on production yesterday with an initial output estimated by Marland officials at about 1800 barrels a day. Depth of the well is at 4294 feet, the water string being set at 4091 feet. At first the product was allowed to flow into the sump until late yesterday afternoon, when it cleared up and was turned into the tanks. No estimate of the cut or gravity was reported. Dominguez No. 3 is on the north line of the Marland's lease in the southeastern part of the field, and is an offset to the Associated's DeFrancis lease.

The Shell Company's Manuel No. 3, which came in, on Monday made an actual flow into the tanks of 4108 barrels in the first twenty-four hours of production, according to official reports. This is the first well on the Shell's new Manuel lease, and is one of the best yet completed in the Dominguez field.

Get New Well

The Union Oil Company added another producer to its string in the Rosecrans field yesterday, bringing in its Howard Park No. 2, with an initial production of about 360 barrels a day. The well was drilled to 4700 feet, and set its water string at 4684 feet. During the first twenty-hour gauge the well made 301 barrels, or at the rate of approximately 360 barrels a day. Howard Park No. 2 is located in the central area of the Rosecrans field, north of the Bankline Oil Company's Gordon No. 1.

Three Wells Completed

LONG BEACH, Nov. 24.—Two new flowing wells and one new pumper were added to the Signal Hill field during the week-end, reports from the field yesterday showed. Total new production from the wells was estimated at 1100 barrels a day.

The new producers are the Mutual No. 3, completed at 3363 feet in the territory north of Burnett street and west of Walnut. The well is reported as yielding 500 barrels of 27 gravity oil.

Blanton No. 1, rigging pump after well had failed to flow from the 4614-foot level. Eight and one-quarter-inch pipe is cemented at 4040 feet.

Get Oil Showing

The Trust No. 2 well of the Union Oil Company in the central part of the Rosecrans field picked up an oil sand at 4700 feet yesterday, according to official reports. Cores taken at this point showed good oil sand, it is said. This well is an offset to E. J. Miley's Athens No. 2, and the Bankline Oil Company's Gordon.

Casing Set

Using 1000 pounds of pressure to force 150 sacks of cement behind the casing, the Union Oil Company yesterday finished setting pipe at 5775 feet in its Trust No. 1 well, according to official reports. Two hundred sacks of cement were used in the job, most of which was successfully forced under the shoe, and back of the casing, giving a good chance for a successful water shutoff. Officials of the Union Oil Company are optimistic over the prospects of getting a shutoff in Trust No. 1, which will remove the principal obstacle in the way of making the well a successful producer.

Flow Increasing

Production in the Superior Oil Company's Maxwell No. 3 in the Rosecrans field registered a steady increase during the first twenty-four hours, according to official reports. The well actually flowed 2100 barrels of 41 degrees gravity oil into the tanks during the first day, and was making 105 barrels an hour, or 2500 barrels a day, when the final gauge was taken, it is said.

Near Completion

The Superior Oil Company expects to complete its Torrance No. 55 in the Torrance field within the next few days, according to official reports. This well suffered a singular accident last week, when the elevator broke and dropped 3316 feet of eleven-inch casing 213 feet to the bottom of the hole. The drillers expected a badly junked hole as a result, but went in and screwed on the rest of the eleven-inch casing, cemented, and got an approval on the casing test. Accidents of this sort rarely fail to have serious results, according to drillers.

Drill New Wildcat

Another wildcat well is to be drilled four miles southwest of Ducor, according to Mowry Bates of Los Angeles, who is reported authority for the statement that the Hub Oil Company, one of the leading producers of Southern California, is to begin drilling near here at once.

Location for the reported new well is in the northwest quarter of Section 13, T. 24, R. 27 east, M. D. B. & M., on property owned by P. C. Bryce.

A standard rig will be used with an eighty-six-foot derrick and the company proposes to drill to a depth of 3000 feet, according to report.

SPIRITED RALLY LED BY STEEL

New Highs Struck by Rails and Industrials

Investment Demand Strong in Carriers

Leather Shares Helped by Trade Improvement

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Stock prices rallied briskly just before the close of today's stock market under the leadership of United States Steel common, which advanced 2 points to 117⅝, the highest price in five years. Both the rail and industrial averages broke through their previous 1924 high levels. The volume of trading fell moderately, total sales being 1,896,800 shares.

Early price movements showed considerable irregularity. Bullish demonstrations in the sugars and specialties, which featured the first hour, halted when heavy liquidation developed in American Can on publication of an official denial of reports that a stock dividend was contemplated. Can, which has sold as high as 153, broke to 147¾ and then rallied to 150, where it was off ¼ on the day.

Fifty issues attained new peak prices for the year in the session. One of the most interesting developments was a revival of a strong investment demand for the high-grade rails, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Lehigh Valley jumping to new top prices on gains of approximately 2½ points each. The demand for the rails was stimulated by the splendid showing being made in the October earnings statements and the publication of statistics showing more than a million cars loaded with freight in the second week of November.

The demand for steel shares was inspired by reports of an increased inquiry for iron and steel products and a rising price trend, Ludlum, Inland and Sloss-Sheffield steels, and Iron Products all selling at their best prices of the year.

Strong spots in the specialty list included Universal Pipe and Radiator common and preferred, Associated Dry Goods, Barnet Leather, Brown Shoe, Commercial Solvents A, Cushman Bakery, Fisher Body, Nash Motors and Texas Gulf Sulphur, all up 4 to 6 points on the day.

Recent increases in the price of leather stimulated the demand for those stocks, American Hide and Leather preferred and Central Leather common and preferred moving up to new high ground.

Call money held at 2½ per cent throughout the session. The time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with no change in rates.

Foreign exchange rates were slightly easier. Demand sterling ruled just above $4.62½ and French francs were quoted around 5.26½. Other changes were largely of a nominal nature.

CRUDE RUBBER MARKET

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The crude rubber market ruled exceptionally firm throughout today's trading, with the larger importers reported as heavy buyers in this market. A fair factory interest was manifest and it seems to be the consensus of dealers that while the market may have its reactions, the ultimate position of rubber at the end of January next year will be considerably higher than has been to date. Roger S. Hardy & Co. reports that the following buyers' prices obtained at the close: Ribbed smoked sheets, spot, 34½; November, December, 34½; January, February, March, 34¾; first latex crepe, spot, 34½; November, December, 34½; January, February, March, 34¾; No. 2 amber, November, December, 34; clean thin brown, November, December, 31; No. 1 rolled brown, November, December at 28½; upriver fine, November, 29½; upriver coarse, November, 24; selected railroad [illegible], spot, 22.

MARKET REVIEW

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—A market so uneventful as today's in the movement of all speculative markets was itself fairly good proof that speculative excitement had definitely waned. It was bound to do so, because even a highly speculative market never continues its rise indefinitely, unless under the influence of wholly new and highly stimulating developments in the general news or of complete infatuation on the part of Wall street and the speculating public. Neither circumstance has existed during the last week or more; it therefore followed necessarily that the momentum of the genuine buying orders which were placed in the market immediately after election would in due course spend its force. Apparently it has done so.

If the stock exchange gradually cuts down to unimportant fluctuations with a volume of business not much more than in normal active times, the fears of many watchers of the recent violent upward movements will doubtless be allayed. Such apprehensions for the immediate future were based on a seeming assumption that the financial public had gone wild; that we should shortly have 3,000,000-share days piled upon 2,000,000 and that the rise of stocks would be unchecked but that never happens at the beginning even of the largest bull market, and it requires peculiar circumstances, which are readily discerned, to bring it about any time.

There certainly has been a spectacular rise on the stock exchange. Probably most people, guessing offhand, would put the advance since election day at a higher percentage than has been actually achieved, for it is the individual runaway stocks of the extremely speculative sort from whose action the mind is apt to generalize. Still, the advance in the average of typical selected shares—about 8 per cent since the opening of November, and some 24 per cent from the low point of the April reaction—is a very considerable enhancement. The criticism that underlying conditions have not changed since a month ago is itself rather empty, since the November advance represented partly buying orders which might have been placed a month ago but for political doubts, and partly purchases made in execution of future industrial revival. If such revival does come, then current ideas of stock-market prices will have to be revised. But we shall have to wait for evidence of that; trade revival is notoriously slower to show its hand than stock-market recovery.

Transactions on the stock exchange today again fell below 2,000,000 shares, this being the first week since the movement got fairly under way in which that could be said of two consecutive five-hour days. Activity was again very largely of professional origin and, except for three or four railway shares, the day's conspicuous advances were largely confined to shares of the less important sort.

Since we have now passed the date when autumn movement of freight on the railways always reaches its culminating point, the weekly carloading statements now serve only to measure the slowness or rapidity of the decrease.

Today's report, covering the second week of November, was in this respect interesting. Although its loadings were less by 72,678 cars than at the season's maximum of the second week of October, they were larger by 33,734 cars than in the corresponding November week of any preceding year. This was in fact the first time in our railway history that more than 1,000,000 cars were loaded after the first week of November.

DENIES AIR PLANS WILL BE CHANGED

Postal Official Asserts Department Still Leans to Salt Lake Route

Contrary to press dispatches published here Saturday, to the effect that Los Angeles is to be served in the future by an Air Mail route from Seattle to San Diego connecting with the trans-continental route at San Francisco, is the telegram received late yesterday from Col. Paul Henderson, second assistant postmaster-general, reaffirming the Postoffice department's indorsement of bifurcating the present system at Salt Lake City and bringing a branch into Los Angeles.

Press dispatches published Saturday emanating from San Francisco, reported that Los Angeles was to be served by a north and south air line extending from Seattle to San Diego. A. G. Arnell, Secretary and General Manager of the Chamber of Commerce immediately upon receipt of this information, made inquiry by Col. Henderson regarding the change in plans outlined by Luther K. Bell, traffic manager of the Air Mail Service during his stay here recently in the interest of bringing the service direct to Los Angeles.

"Press reports indicate that the government intends to establish an air mail line up and down the coast from San Francisco," stated Mr. Arnell in his telegram to Col. Henderson. "This does not give Los Angeles the service she needs and a direct line from Salt Lake City here would be much better."

The telegram received late last night by Secretary Arnoll from Col. Henderson, stated that the Postoffice Department still indorses a proposal for a direct Air Mail Service from Salt Lake City to Los Angeles provided legislation authorizing it is introduced by Southern California representatives in Congress.

"I personally feel that this line which will serve 2,000,000 people in Southern California, is very desirable and you may count upon our favorable action the moment we are authorized to operate," stated Col. Henderson in his telegram to the local chamber.

As the result of the chamber's efforts to bring the air mail direct to Los Angeles, a bill will be presented in Congress by Congressman John D. Fredericks, seeking to authorize the bifurcation of the present trans-continental system at Salt Lake City, thus putting Los Angeles on a basis of equality with San Francisco in the matter of time consumed in receiving and dispatching mail.

NEW BUS PLANS MADE

Three Terminals Expected to Aid Harbor District Loading

To arrange systematically the loading and unloading of passenger motor busses in the harbor district, the Board of Public Utilities yesterday adopted the recommendations of Chief Engineer Marsh establishing three bus terminals. The first will be on Sixth street between Beacon street and Harbor Boulevard and will be used by Point Firmin, Gaffey street, Vista Del Oro and Barton Hill lines. The second station will be used by the Outer Harbor and La Rambla lines. The third station will be located on the north side of Fifth street between Harbor Boulevard and Beacon street and will be used by the Motor Transit Company and Motor Coach Company busses. By this plan the local and intercity lines are separated.

APPRENTICE SYSTEM URGED BY BUILDER

Courses in vocational training in the public schools should include an apprenticeship system where the students would be trained for approximately half their courses under the guidance of a practical instructor, one who is familiar with trade names and not, essentially, an expert in technicalities, said Paul F. Langworthy, secretary-manager of the Los Angeles Builders' Exchange, speaking to the Roosevelt High School faculty yesterday. Mr. Langworthy stressed as the primary requisite of efficient and successful future craftsmen, the proper classification of the students as to their adaptability for various trades.

WHITE FANG

by Jack London

If Beauty Smith had in him a devil, White Fang had another; and the two of them raged against each other unceasingly. In the days before, White Fang had had the wisdom to cower down and submit to a man with a club in his hand; but this wisdom now left him. The mere sight of Beauty Smith was sufficient to send him into transports of fury. And when they came to close quarters, and he had been beaten back by the club, he went on growling and snarling and showing his fangs. The last growl could never be extracted from him. No matter how terribly he was beaten, he had always another growl; and when Beauty Smith gave up and withdrew, the defiant growl followed after him, or White Fang sprang at the bars of the cage bellowing his hatred.

When the steamboat arrived at Dawson, White Fang went ashore. But he still lived a public life, in a cage, surrounded by curious men. He was exhibited as "The Fighting Wolf," and men paid 50 cents in gold dust to see him. He was given no rest. Did he lie down to sleep, he was stirred up by a sharp stick—so that the audience might get its money's worth. In order to make the exhibition interesting, he was kept in a rage most of the time. But worse than all this, was the atmosphere in which he lived. He was regarded as the most fearful of wild beasts and this was borne in to him through the bars of the cage. Every word, every cautious action, on the part of the men, impressed upon him his own terrible ferocity. It was so much added fuel to the flame of his fierceness. There could be but one result, and that was that his ferocity fed upon itself and increased. It was another instance of the plasticity of his clay, of his capacity for being moulded by the pressure of environment.

In addition to being exhibited, he was a professional fighting animal. At irregular intervals, whenever a fight could be arranged, he was taken out of his cake and led off into the woods a few miles from town. Usually this occurred at night, so as to avoid interference from the mounted police of the Territory. After a few hours of waiting, when daylight had come, the audience and the dog with which he was to fight arrived. In this manner it came about that he fought all sizes and breeds of dogs. It was a savage land, the men were savage, and the fights were usually to the death.

Since White Fang continued to fight, it is obvious that it was the other dogs that died. He never knew defeat. His early training, when he fought with Lip-lip and the whole puppy-pack, stood him in good stead. There was the tenacity with which he clung to the earth. No dog could make him lose his footing. This was the favorite trick of the wolf breeds—to rush in upon him, either directly or with an unexpected swerve, in the hope of striking his shoulder and overthrowing him. Mackenzie hounds, Eskimo and Labrador dogs, huskies and Malemutes—all tried it on him, and all failed. He was never known to lose his footing. Men told this to one another, and looked each time to see it happen; but White Fank always disappointed them.

Then there was his lightning quickness. It gave him a tremendous advantage over his antagonists. No matter what their experience, they had never encountered a dog that moved so swiftly as he. Also to be reckoned with, was the mediateness of his attack. The average day was accustomed to the preliminaries of snarling and bristling and growling, and the average dog was knocked off his feet and finished before he had begun to fight or recovered from his surprise. So often did this happen, that it became the custom to hold White Fang until the other dog went through its preliminaries, was good and ready, and event made the first attack.

But greatest of all the advantages in White Fang's favor was his experience. He knew more about fighting than did any of the dogs that faced him. He had fought more fights, knew how to meet more tricks and methods, and had more tricks himself, while his own method was scarcely to be improved upon.

As the time went by, he had fewer and fewer fights. Men despaired of matching him with an equal, and Beauty Smith was compelled to pit wolves against him. These were trapped by the Indians for the purpose, and a fight between White Fang and a wolf was always sure to draw a crowd. Once, a full-grown female lynx was secured and this time White Fang fought for his life. Her quickness matched his; her ferocity equalled his while he fought with his fangs alone, and she fought with her sharp-clawed feet as well.

But after the lynx, all fighting ceased for White Fang. There were no more animals with which to fight—at least, there was none considered worthy of fighting with him. So he remained on exhibition until spring, when one Tim Keenan, a faro-dealer, arrived in the land. With him came the first bulldog that had ever entered the Klondike. That this dog and White Fank should come together was inevitable, and for a week the anticipated fight was the mainspring of conversation in certain quarters of the town.

For once White Fang did not make an immediate attack. He stood still, ears pricked forward, alert and curious, surveying the strange animal that faced him. He had never seen such a dog before. Tim Keenan shoved the bulldog forward with a muttered "Go to it." The animal waddled toward the center of the circle, short and squat and ungainly. He came to a stop and blinked across at White Fang.

There were cries from the crowd of "Go to him, Cherokee!" "Sick 'm, Cherokee!" "Eat 'm up!"

But Cherokee did not seem anxious to fight. He turned his head and blinked at the men who shouted, at the same time wagging his stump of a tail good-naturedly. He was not afraid, but merely lazy. Besides, it did not seem to him that it was intended he should fight with the dog he saw before him. He was not used to fighting with that kind of dog, and he was waiting for them to bring on the real dog.

Tim Keenan stepped in and bent over Cherokee fondling him on both sides of the shoulders with hands that rubbed against the grain of the hair and that made slight, pushing-forward movements. These were so many suggestions also, their effect was irritating, for Cherokee began to growl, very softly, deep down in his throat. There was a correspondence in ryhthm between the growls and the movements of the mans hands. The growl rose in the throat with the culmination of each forward-pushing movement, and ebbed down to start up afresh with the beginning of the next movement. The end of each movement was the accent of the rhythm, the movement ending abruptly and the growling rising with a jerk.

This was not without its effect on White Fang. The hair began to rise on his neck and across the shoulders. Tim Keenan gave a final shove forward and stepped back again. As the impetus that carried Cherokee forward died down, he continued to go forward of his own volition, in a swift, bow-legged run. Then White Fang struck. A cry of startled admiration went up. He had covered the distance and gone in more like a cat than a dog; and with the same cat-like swiftness he had slashed with his fangs and leaped clear.

The bulldog was bleeding back of one ear from a rip in his thick neck. He gave no sign, did not even snarl, but turned and followed after White Fang.

UNIQUE SYSTEM OF CONSTRUCTION

Building of California Mausoleum Company Embody Patented Dry Air Circulation System Not Used in Others, And Far Superior

Many people think that Mausoleums are all alike in principles of construction, differing only in the plans, materials and appearance of the buildings. This is far from the truth. There is just one best principle of Mausoleum construction, for which the California Mausoleum Company controls the patent rights for the State of California. No other Mausoleums in the entire State have this superior type of construction—one of the vital reasons why entombment in these beautiful buildings is followed by such different effects than when ordinary methods of construction are utilized.

In the California Mausoleum Company's structures at Hollywood, Inglewood and Riverside there is dry air circulation for each individual crypt. Each crypt has its separate pure inlet and outlet, permitting the natural desiccation of its contents, on account of these sixteen square inch openings, and independent air circulation to every crypt. Comparison of this costly but effective method of construction with the cheaper types—and consideration of the effects that must inevitably follow—are sufficiently convincing.

Carefully illustrated booklets giving full details of the Company's buildings and methods may be had by telephoning its Offices, MAin 1534, or by calling at 206 Harris Bldg., 110 West 11th. The Mausoleums are open to visitors, under careful restrictions, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.—[Advertisement.

BOTH SIDES OF AQUEDUCT CONTROVERSY PRESENTED

Public Service Board and Head of Owens Valley Irrigation District Give Versions

Because of the importance of the controversy between the City of Los Angeles and the communities of Owens Valley over water rights and the widespread interest in the situation The Times is presenting herewith statements defining the positions of both factions. The reviews of the trouble are authoritative, the one in behalf of the city having been issued by the Board of Public Service Commissioners, of which R. F. Del Valle is president, while the case of the ranchers and business interests of Owens Valley is set forth by W. W. Watterson, president of the Owens Valley Irrigation District. The statements follow:

BY THE BOARD OF PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSIONERS

To the citizens of Los Angeles and Owens Valley:

Desiring to do everything within its power to bring about an extended and permanent water settlement in the Owens River Valley that will best serve the agricultural interests of that region and at the same time assure Los Angeles of a full Aqueduct supply, the Board of Public Service Commissioners on October 14, 1924, adopted a resolution setting forth its policy along this line.

In adopting a resolution outlining the terms of its water policy in Owens Valley, the Public Service Commission based its action upon facts established by a disinterested and eminently able board of engineers.

The board of engineers, upon whose report the Public Service Commission based its action, was composed of Louis C. Hill, J. B. Lippincott and A. L. Sonderegger, whose names having been recommended by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. On May 27, 1924, these men were commissioned to make a thorough study and report upon the water resources of Owens Valley and the Mono Basin.

SUPPLY SUFFICIENT

In their report to the Public Service Commission on August 14, 1924, these engineers pointed out that with the establishment of well-defined water conservation and development facilities there is sufficient water available in the Owens Valley region to provide for the full irrigation of 30,000 acres of land in the upper end of the valley, in addition to assuring a full Aqueduct supply.

The report further pointed out that there was not enough water available in Owens Valley and the Mono Basin to make feasible or justifiable the construction of a second aqueduct to Los Angeles even though all agricultural development in Owens Valley was abandoned.

In accordance with these facts, the Public Service Commission, in its declaration of policy adopted on October 14, 1924, declared that it was prepared to enter into such a [illegible] agreement with the people of Owens Valley as would guarantee to valley residents:

ASSURE IRRIGATION

First: That the city of Los Angeles, at its own expense, would establish such water conservation and development facilities as would assure an ample and regulated irrigation supply for 30,000 acres of land throughout each season as well as every year.

Second: That these 30,000 acres shall remain under the ownership of the valley residents, the city agreeing not to seek to make any land purchases whatsoever within the zone or zones set aside to receive this acreage.

Third: That the city would use its best efforts to bring about the establishment of a hard road into and through Owens Valley that will make the beautiful mountain country of the region easily accessible to Southern California, thereby opening up a profitable tourist trade for the valley people.

Immediately upon the adoption of the Public Service Commission's

A man, or a city may be legally within its rights and still be morally wrong. The servant of a city may be working honestly and faithfully—as he thinks—for the city which pays him, and may nevertheless work a cruel injustice to others.

There is a legal and technical side to the controversy between the city of Los Angeles and the farmers of the Owens River Valley and there is a human side. In presenting this argument I want to appeal to the minds of men and women in Los Angeles, who would prefer to do the right thing, rather than to those who would prefer to do the smart thing. I would ask the attention of those who ask "What is the best for all parties concerned" rather than those who seek a technically legal advantage.

FERTILE LAND

Briefly, the Owens River Valley is a narrow strip of fertile land which lies parallel to the highest part of the ridge of the Sierras. Into it drain a number of streams which form the Owens River. From these streams and from the river, ditches were led which irrigated a large area of farm lands. In 1903, the United States Reclamation Service made a careful survey of the Owens River Valley, measured the total flow of all the streams, surveyed out a number of reservoirs and demonstrated the fact—and it remains a fact—that by conservation, not only might the whole area of the valley be irrigated, but there would remain a very large surplus of water which might be used for the irrigation of other lands. The farmers of the valley had the hope that not only would their valley be made entirely fertile, but that its borders would be widened by further irrigation works.

Into this situation came the city of Los Angeles, urgently in need of water. It negotiated with the Reclamation Service, and actually paid some $64,000 to the Reclamation Service to reimburse it for its filings and reservoir surveys.

ORIGINAL PROGRAM

The original program was that the city should purchase certain lands, which in a body should be abandoned from agriculture; that with the water diverted from these lands, with waters to be provided by reservoirs and conservation, the city would fill its aqueduct. Except the Haiwee reservoir, not a single one of the Reclamation Service surveys has been utilized, not a reservoir has been built, not a cubic foot of additional water provided for the valley.

Everyone who has studied municipal values knows that the more people there are in a city, the more each lot will be worth. That is if a certain lot is worth $1000 in a city of half a million people, that identical lot is likely to be worth $2000 in a city of a million. The same rule applies to an agricultural valley, like Owens River Valley. The more land is cultivated, the more cultivated land is worth, because the more land there is the better will be the markets, the towns, the railway facilities, the schools and the social advantages. So, when the City of Los Angeles bought thousands of acres of fine, fertile, irrigated lands, withdrew the water from them, left the

Story of Drinking Leads to Locker Search

Disclosures made by the District Attorney's office at Santa Ana that at the Frances Willard Junior High School, young pupils have been drinking liquor and the appearance in court of Mrs. Ida Kredel, reputed wealthy widow, who lives in one of Santa Ana's fashionable residential districts, on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of two of her children because she is alleged to have given them wine, proved sensations in select circles there yesterday.

The complaint against Mrs. Kredel, said to be 36 years of age, who is charged jointly with W. R. Corey, reported to live at the Kredel home at 1319 North Broadway, was brought through the District Attorney's office by L. A. Warren, truant officer. Bail of $500 each was posted with Justice John Landell. Charges were filed, according to Dep. Dist.-Atty. C. N. Mozley, after Will H. Kellogg, principal of the school at which children of many of the city's foremost citizens attend, is purported to have found two whiskey bottles filled with asserted wine in the lockers at the school of Sidney, 12 years of age, and Phillip Kredel, 16 years of age. Kellogg called the two boys into consultation.

Prior to this, according to the story Mozley said was told to him by Mr. Kellogg and J. C. Cranston, Superintendent of Schools, the principal had been investigating reports made to him by teachers that a few pupils apparently had been obtaining intoxicants for some time. It was when a report came to him that one of the Kredel boys came into the classroom in "somewhat abnormal" condition that suspicion was directed toward his locker, Mozley stated he was informed. A different lock than that used by the school was found a temporary barrier.

Under grilling by Kellogg the boys are alleged by the authorities to have told of bringing the wine to school from home, to have imbibed themselves and to have provided close friends among the students with intoxicants.

The mother and Corey, whom they refer to as "Uncle," had made the asserted illicit product, the boys are said to have confessed to Kellogg, according to Mozley. The complaint alleged the two gave liquor to the two boys and their sister Betty, 7 years of age, and urged them to drink it. In continuing, the youths are purported to have described "parties" given at the Kredel home, subsequent to which the children were asserted to have been given wine and sent to bed, Mozley added he was informed.

Superintendent Cranston and Kellogg decided Truant Officer Warren should bring the complaint, based on the story today by the youths, Mozley declared.

In connection with yesterday's disclosures it was recalled that last spring Superintendent Cranston called two "mass" meetings of parents, one held at the Junior High

Canyon Mystery Still Unsolved

William R. Fee, Dead Banker, and Miss Mary F. Watkins

Girl was close friend of deceased, whom San Bernardino physicians say was murdered.

LOVE NOTE IS FOUND ON SLAIN BANKER'S BODY

Missive Turned Over to Sheriff Gives New Angle to W. R. Fee Canyon Mystery Death

A burning love note signed "All yours, Mary" found on the body of William R. Fee, banker of Los Angeles, Alhambra and San Gabriel, when it was discovered yesterday in Lytle Creek Canyon, near San Bernardino, was turned over to Sheriff Shay last night by Coroner Hanna, who found the note.

This note is regarded as a highly important clew in the case, which was apparently established as a murder, when Drs. E. L. Tysinger and E. H. Hull declared at San Bernardino that examination of the body showed the banker was killed by a blow from a sand bag, blackjack or other blunt instrument that left no outward mark. The blow fractured his skull just back of the left ear and caused a blood clot on the brain.

Whether the note was written by Miss Mary F. Watkins of Alhambra, friend of the banker, who has a mountain cabin less than fifty yards from where the body was found, was to be determined by authorities who will question her today.

SUBPOENAS ISSUED

Subpoenas for Miss Watkins, Miss Polly Bell, Joseph Walker and Paul Kennedy were issued last night by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Thompson of San Bernardino county, directing them to appear today at 10 a.m. at the inquest into Fee's death. This will be in San Bernardino. Miss Watkins and the others were members of the party at Miss Watkins's cabin Saturday night. An officer was attempting to serve the subpoenas late last night.

The note dated Saturday, the day on which Fee disappeared, follows:

My Dearest: I am glad you are going away somewhere too—I always hate to be away and keep thinking of your being around home for I will be thinking of you most of the time—all the surroundings will be yours—well, I guess not all yours—I have some share in the place, but the surroundings will be ours.

I don't anticipate a highly exciting time. Possibly as soon as I get there I will wish I were back home. This is what will amuse me. When they are all battling away content with themselves I will be thinking—I've got a man who really is somebody who can do anything—see through anything—and who loves me and whom I love—I do.

I wish I could tell you once and for all so that you would never find occasion to doubt it—never feel that there was or would be anyone who could come up to you in my estimation—ever could take your place—there isn't, whether you think you are or not—I think you are as near perfect as a person can be.

(I'll even forgive you the way you let your finger nails go.) Because I do love you so much that I could never know anyone who would not antagonize me by falling short—I am glad of it.

MURDER THEORY

Strength was imparted to the murder theory in Fee's death by statements of E. J. Aye, brother-in-law of Fee, that he and Mrs. Fee searched carefully in the vicinity where Fee's body was found only Monday. Mrs. Fee remarked particularly about the place, he said, because she had been near there on a picnic Labor Day a year ago.

Booking Agent Asks $250,000 of Schertzinger on Charge of Enticing Wife Away

Victor R. Schertzinger, composer of "Marcheta" and other songs and a motion-picture director, was made the defendant yesterday in a $250,000 alienation of affections suit filed by Fred C. Beers, who conducts an artist's booking exchange in Hollywood.

Beers accuses Schertzinger of enticing his wife, Mary O. Beers, known in pictures as Mary Culver, to leave him on September 13, last, and with maintaining her apart from him since that time. At the same time Beers filed suit for divorce against his wife, charging her with intimacy with the composer-director

According to the complaint, Schertzinger, said to be a married man, commenced his attention to Mrs. Beers in January, last. Between January and April, it is charged, Mrs. Beers accepted money and presents from Schertzinger.

On one occasion last April, Beer charges, his wife returned home about 3 a.m. in an intoxicated

UNION SERVICES PLANNED

Worshipers Numbering 1,000,000 Will Take Part in Thanksgiving at Churches

Words of praise and songs of joy will rise from more than 1,000,000 hearts in churches and homes of Los Angeles tomorrow, expressing the gratitude of a prosperous people for blessings received during the last year from the Giver of all good.

Los Angeles will be practically a "closed town" in so far as schools, courts, Federal offices, business houses and markets are concerned. However, it will be "open house" day for the churches.

"Legal holiday" sounds better to none in Los Angeles than to the employees of Uncle Sam at the Federal Building, and especially to the workers in the Postoffice. Those who expect the mail man tomorrow will be disappointed.

PROGRAMS IN SCHOOLS

Appropriate Thanksgiving programs will be given today by the teachers and pupils of the public schools, but there will be no school tomorrow, nor Friday, and the children are looking forward with gladness to four days of freedom.

The churches have arranged, through the Church Federation, for many union services, and the greatest of these (from point of attendance) will probably be conducted tomorrow morning at the First Methodist Church where the Thanksgiving message will be voiced by Dr. Herbert Booth Smith, pastor of the Immanuel Presbyterian Church.

In the sporting world the two outstanding events of tomorrow will be the annual football game between the Los Angeles and Polytechnic High Schools, in the afternoon, and the Ascot Speedway races, starting at 10 a.m.

Another event of interest will be the football game at the Glendale High School at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow when the Huntington Park Union

PORT BODY OUSTS LUDLOW, AIDE IN STORMY SESSION

Ministers Defend Engineer When Meline Charges Incompetency in Heated Argument

The resignations of J. C. Shaw, assistant harbor engineer, and of J. Wyman Ludlow, acting harbor engineer, were received and accepted by the Board of Harbor Commissioners at their meeting yesterday.

J. M. Ludlow

They had a stormy session with a delegation of the Ministerial Association, which presented resolutions urging the retention of Ludlow at least until Gen. Lansing H. Beach takes his job as consulting engineer of the harbor, and Commissioner Meline roundly scored the ministers for their attitude in the matter.

"You compel me to expose Ludlow's incompetency," he declared. "He has cost this city hundreds of thousands of dollars by building the $3,500,000 terminal on rotten piling and now he's trying to hide behind the skirts of the church."

"Then Commissioner Meline is guilty of withholding facts from the public," put in one of the ministers.

RESIGNATION ASKED

"Yes, I admit I did try to cover up Ludlow's incompetency for his own sake," replied Melin. "I'm sorry I did."

It was revealed that Meline had asked Ludlow to resign.

"Ludlow came to me and said he had no control over his office force, they were not paying any attention to him," Meline said. "He said they were working on private work on public time and he couldn't stop it. I said, 'That's the reason you are costing this city thousands of dollars a month,' and told him he ought to resign. He admitted to me the piling was bad."

"The question of that piling should be left to engineers to decide," put in Ludlow, who was present. He added that he had built more wharf of better quality than had been put into any port he knew of. If he had had the backing of the board, he declared, he would have discharged the disturbers in the department weeks ago.

Commissioner Meline waved his hands.

"Why stall?" he shouted. "Why stall? I told you to resign and you run and get under the skirts of your church."

The ministerial delegation consisted of Rev. Thomas Grive, Rev. L. W. Lumpher, Rev. A. L. Crim, and Rev. M. L. Thomas, pastors of Los Angeles Harbor churches, Dr. Dan Trumble, executive secretary of the Ministerial Association, and Rev. G. A. Briegleb. The latter, after the resolution was presented, declared it was not Ludlow who was on trial, but the harbor board.

"We have heard many rumors that Ludlow is to be shelved because he is inimical to big interests," he said.

Meline started a counter-offensive at once by accusing the Ministerial Association of prompting Rev. Mr. Thomas to speak before the San Pedro Rotary Club and accuse the harbor board of being in league with the paving trust.

"We are just as honest as you are and a lot more fair," he exclaimed hotly.

QUESTIONS MELINE

"I tried to get you on the telephone Saturday and talk with you about this," put in Mr. Briegleb, after responsibility for what Mr. Thomas had said was disclaimed on the part of the Ministerial Association. "What were you doing at your laundry?"

"I was keeping my skirts clean," retorted Meline. He again accused the Ministerial Association of throwing mud and a debate over the Rotary Club speech ensued and kept up nearly an hour with many recriminations on both sides. The ministers declared what had been said there was entirely beside the point.

"We hear a lot from you people," Meline said. "A man named Johnson came to me and said everything would be fine if I would just pull with the ministerial alliance."

"He came from me," said Mr. Thomas, "and he had no authority to say any such thing. It is a falsehood to intimate that I attempted to bribe Commissioner Meline by promising him the influence of the Ministerial Association."

Capt. Louis Hansen, whose testimony about buying a suit of clothes for former President McKee led to McKee's dismissal, took part in the discussion momentarily, supporting Ludlow. He declared that he intended to start a recall petition in circulation, but did not say for whom.

LUDLOW DEFENDED

Commissioner Allen demanded to know if the ministers usually got up such resolutions without finding out if the facts on which they based them were true.

"They think it's a frame-up," said Meline. "They think you and I put our heads together and are trying to get rid of Ludlow. May heaven strike me blind if it's true."

President Colden, after the debate had quieted down somewhat, came to Ludlow's defense. He said he had 100 per cent confidence in Ludlow, and knew that instead of wasting thousands of dollars he had saved thousands, especially in paving.

"You know this paving situation is a delicate one," he said. "In fact, I think it's a rotten one, and Meline would agree with me if he looked into it. There are two factions in the harbor engineer's office and that had led to some inefficiency. But Meline is the man who made the compromise on Ludlow and he should stick to it."

He referred to the agreement to appoint a new chief engineer and let Ludlow remain as his assistant.

OPINIONS DIFFER

"I have talked with twenty good engineers and they hold up their hands in horror at the way the Terminal is built," put in Allen.

"Well, one first-class engineer recently told me it was the finest he had ever seen built," retorted Colden. "I'll be glad of the day when I can look you fellows in the eye and tell you to go to hell."

There followed an executive session of the board with Ludlow and Shaw present. When it was over, the resignations of Shaw and Ludlow were announced in the order named. The board voted unanimously to accept Shaw's resignation; on Ludlow's resignation President Colden refused to vote.

Both resolutions are "effective January 1, or at the convenience

Phone Call Sends Officers Speeding to Los Nietos; Capture of Hart Girl's Abductors Near

A phone call from an anonymous informant stating that 15-year-old Gladys Hart, who vanished from the street near her home on September 11, last, was being held a prisoner by kidnapers in a shack at Los Nietos sent a squad of deputy sheriffs racing to the spot late yesterday afternoon.

The officers arrived at the shack to find it abandoned. The place, however, gave indications of having been occupied a few hours before, and the deputies last night had organized posses of citizens and were leading them in a thoroughgoing search of the country about Los Nietos and Whittier.

The deputies believe they are close on the trail of the kidnapers and they expect to find the girl within a few hours. Gladys was on her way to her home at 1402½ Pico street, from school when she vanished. Fellow-students told investigators they saw the girl get into a machine driven by two men.

Since then a continuous search for the missing girl has been maintained. It proved without result. Late yesterday afternoon, however, an unknown man called the girl's sister-in-law at her home at 1537 East Sixtieth street and informed her that the girl was in the hands of kidnapers and a prisoner in the shack at Los Nietos.

The sister-in-law immediately communicated with the Sheriff's office and Capt. Bright sent a squad of seven deputies speeding to the cottage. The deputies reported their nonsuccess last night, but declared they have a number of "leads" which will result in the capture of the kidnapers and the restoration of the girl to her parents in a few hours.

The telephone informant told the sister-in-law that the kidnapers intended to take the girl east today and that in the meantime she was being confined in the shack with her abductors. The stranger also stated that the girl had been seen in Whittier last Saturday.

The girl was described as weighing about 120 pounds, five feet five inches in height with blue eyes and golden fluffy hair, bobbed.

IF THE police reporters wish to keep us thrilled over these murder romances they had better stop showing us the photographs of the beautiful heroines.

I never can seem to learn by experience. Every time I read of a murder tragedy over a woman I vision her as looking as beautiful as Betty Compson or Claire Windsor.

And then I see her photograph and then I don't care any more who murdered whom—or why.

Not to be too personal, I have suddenly stopped reading about this chauffeur who murdered the vaudeville agent; and about the Haverstick boy found murdered at San Juan Capistrano. And anyone is at liberty to guess why.

I will only add this: In spite of all the legal evidence to the contrary, the motives for those murders must have been something other than love—as the police have stated. I think the murderers must have smoked cigarettes that tasted rotten, or become annoyed because a movie they wanted to see had been taken off.

I could believe that anything else was the motive—except romance, as the police have stated.

BITTER DISILLUSION

One of the thrills that animated my boyhood days was the mental picture of the English Horse Guards—with the tall horsehair plume and the gleaming breast plate — the cuirass.

During the war I had a chance to make this dream come true. The first day I was in London I hurried down to the place where the Horse Guard sentry has sat, mounted and on guard, from time immemorial.

I had always thought of the Horse Guards as looking exactly like Wally Reid, mounted on horses that looked like Man o' War.

When I saw my Horse Guard sentry my heart sank. He was covered with freckles, had a shining red nose and funny-looking front teeth.

It's hell to have too much imagination. Never thereafter was I able to get up any excitement over making the world safe for democracy.

ARE WE UNGRATEFUL?

I can't believe that this city, which raised a young fortune for the 'round-the-world aviators, will fail to give some recognition to the heroism of the men and women who broke up the pneumonic-plague epidemic.

The day when these nurses and guards and doctors went down into the stricken district was the day when the reports indicated that the contagion was so acute that everyone attending the first funeral had died.

In the face of that, to go down into these unknown and unfathomable terrors required more cold nerve than to go "over the top" in battle. The more so because it was so easy not to go—without anyone being the wiser.

Their heroism was golden courage and devotion; but, in a practical way, it saved Los Angeles no one knows what disaster.

If some recognition of their work is not given then there is no gratitude in any heart, anywhere—for anything.

ENGLAND AND EGYPT

It is to our ultimate interest that England bring law and order to Egypt—at any cost.

Egypt stands at the turnstile of the East. It is very much to our selfish interest that the sea path for British warships be kept clear between England and the Orient. They may be needed in a hurry some day.

Woodrow Wilson had many weird ideas about international politics. The weirdest was his doctrine of "self-determination" by small nations.

It was his contention that these wretched little tinpot nations should be allowed to "live their own lives"—and bring on world wars whenever their sweet fancy dictated.

LOVE ANGLE IN BANKER DEATH

Burning Missive Found Upon Body of Fee

Note Turned Over to Sheriff by Coroner

Four Subpoenas Issued, One for Woman Friend

Alhambra and San Gabriel State banks, both of which had Fee as president, were in conference yesterday at San Bernardino with the District Attorney's office and the Sheriff.

Fee's body was discovered just after noon yesterday by a San Gabriel and Alhambra searching party, in Lytle Creek Canyon, half a mile from the Glen Ranch and less than fifty yards from the mountain cabin of Miss Mary F. Watkins of Alhambra. It was only fifteen feet from the canyon road in a section that had been searched over repeatedly since the banker was declared missing Sunday, and five feet from a woodpile which a canyon resident visited Monday.

NO MARKS ON BODY

There were no marks of violence apparent on the body when it was first examined, but from the position of the body, Sheriff Shay declared his belief it had been thrown there and expressed the opinion at once that the man had been murdered.

The murder probably took place less than forty-eight hours before the finding of the body, it was said, because it was still rigid. Rigor mortis usually relaxes, Dr. Hull explained, within forty-eight hours after death.

"Undoubtedly death resulted from a blow struck behind the left ear and of which there was no external evidence," said Dr. Hull, announcing the result of the autopsy. "Such wounds are not uncommon, the employment of a blunt instrument such as a sandbag making it possible to inflict a fatal wound without leaving the external evidence. The blow that killed him was probably smothered by the heavy cap which was on the body when found. This cap was pulled low over the left side of the head.

"We found a small fracture in the left mastoid region and a moderate amount of blood clotted about the acoustic foramen. The fractured bone was blue on the interior side as a result of the blow. The left lung was collapsed, but this could have resulted either from air hunger or have been due to pathological condition. There was no evidence of any kind to support a theory that death was due to heart disease."

Dr. Hull further declared that Fee's body had been moved before rigor mortis set in and said it was not in a natural position when found. It was declared there was no rock or other object under or near the tree beneath which the body lay, which might have inflicted the death wound. Dr. Tyginger said he concurred in all Dr. Hull had said.

"I am convinced that Fee was the victim of foul play," said Sheriff Shay following the physicians' report. "The result of the inquest tomorrow morning will decide my action. I intend to investigate the case to the limit of my power."

BLOOD ON FACE

The inquest, ordered by Coroner J. B. Hanna of San Bernardino county, will take place at the morgue of Stevens & Bobbitt, San Bernardino.

As soon as the news of the finding of Fee's body reached Los Angeles, Dep. Dist.-Atty. Davis and two stenographers went to Alhambra and San Gabriel to question various witnesses.

Many circumstances, according to Sheriff Shay, indicated that Fee's body had not been at the spot where it was found for more than a few hours. In the first place, searchers had been over that section of the Lytle Creek Canyon several times since the search for Fee began Sunday; in the second, A. V. Starks, a canyon dweller, got an armful of wood Monday from a woodpile within five feet of where the body lay; in the third, the body was under a tree only fifteen feet from the road and less than fifty yards from the cabin of Miss Watkins, in which the finding of Fee's old clothing Monday caused Sheriff Shay to abandon his search.

Miss Watkins, accompanied by J. A. Walker, an Alhambra city employee, visited the cabin about 9 p.m. Monday. They parked their car within twenty feet of the tree where the body was found, and went out again after remaining at the cabin only a few minutes. Miss Watkins said yesterday they went there to close up the place. Their movements were watched, it was said, by Forest Ranger Walter D. Cheek, a San Gabriel police officer, and City Recorder Thornton of San Gabriel, who were concealed behind a tree in the vicinity of the cabin and who noted every move that was made.

It was a new searching party, just arrived at the canyon, that found the body, less than fifteen minutes after they started their search. Detective Merle Boone of the Alhambra police and J. B. Scullin of San Gabriel made the discovery. The body lay, somewhat drawn up, on its side. Fee's right hand was outstretched and clutched a pair of pruning shears, and all about were small limbs of trees that appeared to have been cut by the shears. Fee was dressed in a suit of coveralls, which he wore when he strayed away from Glen Ranch. In his pockets were his money, watch, bank book, keys and other personal effects, apparently undisturbed.

The finders did not disturb the body but sent at once for the Coroner and Sheriff.

Officers declared their belief that the tree branches near Fee's body had been cut within twenty-four hours, because the leaves were still unwithered.

Fee left Glen Ranch, to which he was accompanied by his wife and granddaughter, Saturday afternoon. He carried the pruning shears with him, and said something about fixing up a radio outfit at a canyon cabin he sometimes occupied. This cabin is the property of Jonathan Dodge of Los Angeles, former State bank examiner, and now connected with local finance corporations. When Fee did not return Saturday night Mrs. Fee became alarmed and Sheriff Shay and his officers combed the canyon and vicinity all day Sunday without result.

EXPLAINS CLOTHING

Soon after he wandered away a shot was heard. As he was believed to have taken a pistol with him it was feared he might have shot himself. Monday a pistol and an old suit of Fee's clothing were found in the cabin of Miss Watkins. She is secretary of the San Gabriel Water Company and was at her cabin Saturday night and most of Sunday. Forest Ranger Hayden had reported seeing her go out Sunday afternoon with a man wrapped in a blanket as an occupant of her car.

Following these discoveries, Sheriff Shay abandoned his search and Mrs. Fee withdrew a reward of $50 offered for the finding of her husband, and went home to Alhambra.

Miss Watkins explained the clothing by saying Fee had given it to her weeks before for the use of her guests in roughing it in the mountains, and said the pistol was her father's. She declared she had seen nothing of Fee; there had been a party of four in her cabin, she said, one of whom was Walker, and that it was Walker, wearing a heavy overcoat, that Ranger Hayden had seen.

Fee's three banks, the Bank of Alhambra, the Bank of San Gabriel and the Northeast Bank of Los Angeles, were given a thorough examination by the other directors, including Albert B. Sherman, a Los Angeles attorney, A. J. Guntzler, vice-president, and others who pronounced everything correct and Fee's personal account undisturbed. Some depositors of the San Gabriel institution became alarmed Monday by Fee's absence, but were quickly reassured.

BOYS TELL TORTURE TALE

Police in Klan Robes String Them to Tree in Trying to Get Confession from Them, Grand Jury Told

Dep. Dist.-Atty. Shelley yesterday presented to the county grand jury details of the asserted torture of three negro boys suspected of automobile theft by four members of the Long Beach police department, two of whom were asserted to have been in the robes of the Ku Klux Klan, at the Long Beach police pistol range at The Willows two weeks ago.

According to the story told the District Attorney's office by the three boys, they were taken from the Long Beach jail to The Willows, an unfrequented place on the outskirts of the city limits, and were given a third degree in an effort to obtain confessions to theft of an automobile and several burglaries.

The boys told Deputy Shelley, that they were strung up to a tree by their necks while the grilling was being conducted by the two officers dressed in Klan robes. The asserted torture was so realistic, the boys declared, that they had to receive medical attention at the Long Beach jail. They did not confess, it was said, and were afterward released.

The names of the officers were withheld by the District Attorney's office pending action by the grand jury. The body is expected to conclude hearing of the matter Friday.

The boys who said they were victims of the third degree are Sam and Henry Haynes, 17 and 18 years of age, respectively, and George Rice, 18.

for thirty miles; H. Babcock, five days for thirty-two miles, and O. Ridgeway, five days for thirty miles.

The speed war also brought J. F. Kaufman a one-day jail sentence, though indirectly. He appeared among the 500 in Justice Crawford's court and was assessed a fine of $11. He pleaded for a suspension of the fine on the grounds that he had only been in the city two days. Justice Crawford caused him to be sworn and then asked him how long he had been a resident of this city. Kaufman replied under oath that he had been here eighteen years.

"The fine stands and you can go to jail for one day for contempt of court," was the judge's rejoinder.

Morris Coover, L. S. Moon, P. L. Emery, C. Dunbar, H. Hamstiller, H. E. Collins, T. H. Parker, J. C. Rutherford, Jesus Gutterres, J. M. Shipman, H. R. Smart, George Wohlgom, J. A. Beckman, W. Dudley and A. J. Ellison.

M. E. Mason, D. A. McNab, T. Yamamoto and Lee Roberts lost their licenses for thirty days and the license of John Mayheau was suspended for fifteen days.

While Justice Crawford was busily sending the speeders through the legal hopper the motorcycle officers continued their drive without let-up. By nightfall they had distributed 193 additional speed tags and the number is expected to grow by an appreciable margin before they conclude their twenty-four hours' activities about midnight.

The sentences imposed yesterday were by far the heaviest meted out by Justice Crawford since the beginning of the campaign.

BRADFORD BAKING CO., LOS ANGELES

resolution of policy on October 14, President R. F. Del Valle of the commission announced the appointment of H. A. Van Norman, W. B. Mathews and Louis C. Hill to act as a special committee with full authority to negotiate with the Owens Valley people in working out the details of a permanent water agreement along the lines provided for.

On November 7, this special committee journeyed to Owens Valley and, at meetings with representatives of the ranchers, laid before these representatives the Public Service Department's proposals. After requesting that the city's proposals be taken under consideration, the committee returned to Los Angeles on November 10, pending further negotiations. It was in the midst of these negotiations that Owens Valley residents on November 16 forcibly took possession of the Alabama waste gates along the Aqueduct and proceeded, for a period of more than four days, to waste into the surrounding desert the entire flow of the Aqueduct.

PERMANENT DEVELOPMENT

The Public Service Department's plan provides for the permanent development of the best agricultural, dairy and orchard land in Owens Valley. By providing the owners of this land with a certain 100 per cent water supply, in place of the present uncertain and fluctuating stream flow, this plan opens the way for the intensive cultivation of every acre of this land.

During the last season, Owens Valley, like every other section of the West, experienced a water shortage. The city, having purchased and withdrawn from irrigation, approximately one-half of the irrigated land, the ranchers on the remaining acreage used not only the water belonging to their land but also the water belonging to the city land. In this way they had twice as much water per acre as they would have had if the city had made no purchases. Even this arrangement gave the ranchers little more than a 50-per-cent water supply.

LAND NEAR BISHOP

The policy proposed by the Public Service Department guarantees to the ranchers on these 30,000 acres of land a 100-per-cent water supply throughout each season and every year, no matter whether it be a nominal or exceedingly dry year.

In that part of Owens Valley naturally tributary to the town of Bishop, there is now held under private ownership approximately 30,000 acres of land. Except for certain scattered purchases and exchanges necessary to round out this area, this land will remain under private ownership under the department's plan.

The 30,000 acres for which the city, under the department's plan, would provide a 100-per-cent water supply include the following districts:

Land in Bishop area, irrigated from Owens River, approximately 14,000 acres;

Land in West Bishop area, irrigated from Bishop Creek, approximately 8500 acres;

BIG PINE AREA

Land in Big Pine area, approximately 2500 acres.

Except for the 2500 acres in the Big Pine area, which are adjacent to the town of Big Pine, this land lies tributary to the town of Bishop. The Bishop and West Bishop areas form a solid block totally surrounding the town of Bishop. A full and dependable water supply, such as the city guarantees to provide, will make possible the most intensive development of this land, thereby providing profitable employment for even more people than are now residing in this district.

Purchase by the city of Los Angeles of all the irrigated acreage in Owens Valley could not be justified from the standpoint of either the city or Owens Valley. From the city's standpoint, purchase of all such lands would mean the expenditure of millions of dollars of public money for water land not needed in connection with the Aqueduct water supply.

From the valley's standpoint, purchase of all irrigated land in the valley by the city, and the withdrawal of this land from crop production would mean the absolute destruction of Owens Valley as an agricultural and orchard district; it would leave the Owens Valley towns standing isolated in the midst of desert country with no agricultural production to support existing commercial life.

ASSURES AGRICULTURE

Purchase by the city of all lands now held in private ownership in Owens Valley would in no way benefit the city and would mean the utter destruction of one of the oldest agricultural sections in the State.

On the other hand the department's proposed water policy in Owens Valley is one that assures the continued development of Owens Valley as an agricultural, dairying and orchard district. It establishes a full and dependable water supply for 30,000 acres, in place of the present uncertain supply. By providing for the intensive and certain agricultural development of Owens Valley land, the Public Service Department's plan assures prosperity for the towns and commercial interests of the valley.

In short, it is the plan of the city, in connection with its Aqueduct, to preserve and build up the existing agricultural resources of Owens Valley. This plan is in harmony with the policy of reclamation that has always been fostered and supported by the United States government and the American people.

VALLEY VERSION TOLD BY IRRIGATION CHIEF

VALLEY SUFFERS

But, to this first great sacrifice, the people of the valley gave a part of their values because they recognized the destiny of Los Angeles—a city which is their market, and largely their financial and trading center. Los Angeles had to have water. The Owens River Valley was the only source. The city gained, the valley suffered.

But the very growth and wealth and prosperity of Los Angeles made this first aqueduct supply inadequate. Water became essential to the further growth of Los Angeles. The value of Owens River land has a limit. It is a region of rugged scenery and rugged conditions, a strip of pioneering territory, hemmed in by sheer granite, surrounded by burning deserts. From the range just to the east of Bishop one may look over to the highest point in the United States, and look down into the desolate depths of Death Valley. So, while Los Angeles values soared, values in the valley advanced relatively slowly. There are some few wealthy men who own land in the valley, but the most of those for whom I speak would be called "poor"—even though they may be rich in independence and Americanism, rich in their love of their homes.

ESTIMATES VALUE

An officer of Los Angeles has placed a valuation upon the flow of the Aqueduct in claiming that the loss of water during the recent interruption might be placed at $15,000 a day—which would be, with a full aqueduct $6,000,000 in a year, equal to the interest at 4 per cent on $130,000,000. On top of this growth of Los Angeles, this demand for water which made it almost priceless, came the drought. Los Angeles had to have more water. It had to come from the Owens River Valley.

Did the city plan or contemplate any reservoirs?

No.

Did the city, recognizing the moral wrong it might do the farmers in the valley, undertake any honorable negotiations, to obtain the necessary water, with a minimum of damage to the community?

No.

The city undertook—legally, perhaps—to use its great financial power to undermine, destroy, break down the resistance of these pioneer farmers. The Russian policy of "infiltration" was adopted. Here, on one ditch, there on another ditch a farmer would be persuaded to sell his land and water.

LOVED HOMES

Now it is flatly untrue that a majority, or even a considerable number of the farmers of the Owens River Valley wished to sell out and quit. This valley was their home, they loved their homes. All they wanted was to be left alone, helped develop the country, helped to make it more beautiful, more productive, a better place to live in. But suppose you owned a farm, had neighbors all about you, and then waked some day to find that they had sold, that their water had been taken from the land, that coyotes howled where children had played, and homes had been left to bats and owls. Suppose you found that half of the value you had built up in a long desperate struggle with nature and the desert, had been wiped out.

In order to protect their rights the community in 1922 organized the Owens Valley Irrigation District by practically a unanimous vote, and had the assurance of certain officials of the water department of Los Angeles that the consummation of that district would in no wise be interfered with. But, at the critical period of the district's selling bonds, permitting it to function, the city's agents continued to quietly and often secretly buy lands within the district—in that way obtaining control of certain ditch corporations, depressing values of the minorities, destroying confidence, using to its advantage the financial stringency and practically placing lands at the mercy of the city's agents. Investments of outside capital were withdrawn, insurance companies began to doubt the wisdom of further insuring property in the valley, and it soon became a positive fact that there was but one purchaser for these properties, namely, the city of Los Angeles.

MOB RULE TALK

There has been some talk of "mob rule," by which is meant an arbitrary resort to force, without sanction of the courts or authority of law.

The first recourse to so-called "mob rule" was initiated by the city itself in three instances, namely, in August, 1923, without recourse to the courts, by attempting to divert the Owens River into a new channel around the headgate of the Big Pine Canal. Again, by the city's action in removing diversion structures in the headwaters of the Owens River and Rock Creek.

All efforts to persuade the city's agents to deal with the community as a whole, to cease buying piecemeal and thereby destroying values, failed. Despairing in all efforts to obtain a proper hearing, injury to the Aqueduct, as a protest, occurred in the spring of 1924. This brought on conferences with the Chamber of Commerce, resulting in the appointment of various agencies to investigate conditions. Nothing definite has resulted, however, tending to correct conditions, excepting to adopt a set of resolutions for the Board of Public Service.

CONTAINED "JOKER"

These resolutions were filled with fair words, but contained a "joker," a trick phrase which caused its immediate and indignant repudiation by the people of the valley. This was the thought that all negotiations should be based upon a policy consistent with a provision of a "full Aqueduct." Note the words "full Aqueduct." Contemptuously, almost, the city of Los Angeles said to the farmers of the Owens River Valley, "Yes, we will appoint a committee to talk over this matter, we will discuss your rights and grievances, but all the time, win or lose, right or wrong, we will take enough water to fill our Aqueduct.

A committee was appointed by the Public Service Commission to confer with the Owens Valley interests, but this committee did not come to that valley with a free hand to settle the question on its broad merits, but to confine itself, as stated by Mr. Mathews, to the policy as set forth in the resolutions, which resolutions had already been answered on October 16, 1924, by the Owens Valley Irrigation District, as follows:

"Be it therefore resolved, that it is the sense of the board of directors of the Owens Valley Irrigation District, that there is nothing contained in the resolutions of policy passed by the Board of Public Service Commissioners of the city of Los Angeles on October 14, 1924, that will restore the credit and confidence of the people of the Owens Valley; that it simply permits the continuance of the past unfair and destructive methods; further that its apparent conservation policy on full analysis simply resolves itself into withdrawing water from this agricultural community, whenever required, to fill the Aqueduct; said Aqueduct finding itself deficient in every year of low rainfall by reason of the lack of provision for proper storage from which to draw—such provision being the real conservation policy which, by a grave engineering error, was omitted from a great city's water system, mention of which is so carefully avoided by the Public Service Commissioners and by their chief engineer."

"TERRIBLE INJUSTICE"

There is still another terrible injustice in this situation. Suppose Los Angeles did buy up all the land in Owens River Valley, turn back to desert the farms and fields, the orchards and homes. What of the towns? The assessed valuation of Bishop alone for 1924-25, is more than $2,000,000. It represents values, built up by hard work, by patient men and women. It may not mean so much to Los Angeles, where 100 acres (which will expect Aqueduct water, by the way) recently brought $1,000,000. But a lot of money to the men and women who own Bishop property. Will Los Angeles, taking water worth $6,000,000 a year, owe nothing to the men and women whom it will impoverish, turn their homes into dust, their investments into nothing?

Perhaps, if the disparity between the cost of the water in the Owens River Valley and the value of it to Los Angeles were not so great, we would not feel so bitter. But here is this great, wealthy, wonderful, growing, prosperous, beautiful city, taking our very lifeblood as a means of growth, refusing to conserve water, refusing to join in concerted, constructive plans, trampling American men and women into desert dust, like a Juggernaut, and refusing any fair arbitration.

BESOUGHT JUSTICE

Again and again and again the Owens River Valley has besought simple human justice from the representatives of the city. Formally and informally, by resolution of responsible organizations, by negotiations through myself and other citizens, who sought only peace and security have we offered to submit all our differences to an impartial tribunal, to be selected by the city and by ourselves. The city has repeatedly ignored all of these overtures and at the present time declines to entertain any proposal to arbitrate either the differences of the parties in interest or the values of the properties damaged or the values of water and properties sought to be acquired by the city. In face of this refusal to arbitrate can it be said that either their policy in the past or at present has been fair or that they are seeking an equitable and just solution of the difficulty?

Does the city of Los Angeles want to grow great and rich and powerful with human blood upon the chariot wheels of its progress.

Shaw was made assistant harbor engineer and took charge of the harbor engineer's office when Ludlow was ousted by Commissioners Allen and Kibele last summer. Meline was later appointed in place of Kibele and had Ludlow reinstated as acting harbor engineer. It has been no secret in the harbor department that Ludlow and Shaw were unfriendly and there has been much friction between them.

VOICE MIGHTIER THAN PISTOL

Bandits Flee When Clerk Ducks Behind Desk and Calls Police

The pen may be mightier than the sword but the voice has it on both the pen and the revolver, A. Campbell, a clerk at the Ritz Hotel, demonstrated yesterday.

Two prospective guests entered the lobby of the hotel yesterday morning and signed the hotel register. Campbell was about to take the pen from the hand of the second "guest" when the latter brought his other hand into view over the counter. In it was a revolver. Disregarding both pen and revolver, the clerk ducked down under the counter and dodged behind the switch board. Then he emitted blast after blast for the police. The bandit, dropping the pen on the counter, took to his heels, his companion preceding him.

Unavoidable Accident Verdict in Double Death Crash at Clover Field

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, Nov. 25.—"Unavoidable accident" was the verdict of a Coroner's jury today, inquiring into the deaths of Ralph Jennison and Miss Ruth G. Wilson, who were killed Sunday at Clover Field when an airplane in which they were riding collided in midair with another plane.

All witnesses of the crash who were called to testify at the inquest expressed the belief that the collision was caused by neither pilot seeing the other plane when both were preparing to make a landing.

The occupants of the other plane, Lieut. Leslie K. Traugher, reserve air officer and pilot, and Sergt. Gilbert McMurrin were reported to be recovering from their injuries today at the hospital at the Sawtelle Soldiers' Home.

The body of Miss Wilson, who lived at 375 Galena avenue, Pasadena, was taken to the C. F. Lamb undertaking rooms at Pasadena, while that of Jennison, who lived at [illegible] Olive Court, Pasadena, was taken to the mortuary of Ives & Warren in Pasadena.

As was his nightly custom, Elmer Lee Fox fastened the radio ear phones to his head last night and tuned in on soft music sent out from an orchestra.

Scarcely had he adjusted his set so as to hear music plainly when he was observed to slump forward in his chair. His wife rushed to his side and found that he had succumbed to an attack of heart disease, from which he had suffered for some time. He was 43 years of age and lived at 528 Lillian Way. He was district representative of the Pacific Coast Syrup Company. The body was taken to the Cunningham & O'Connor funeral parlor and will be sent to South Bend, Ind., for burial.

Woman Lost in Hills of Tujunga Finds Way Home

The all-night search by deputy sheriffs and friends for Mrs. R. E. Queries of 902 South Alvarado street, who was lost Monday night near Tujunga, was abruptly ended yesterday morning when she sauntered calmly into her cabin after a night sleeping under a tree not far from the road. It seems that Mrs. Queries, who was ill, became tired after a short walk and went to sleep under a tree. When she awoke, it was dark and, unable to find her way back to camp, she decided to stay where she was until morning when she easily found her way home.

In the meantime, however, Mrs. E. Vestal of whom Mrs. Queries rented her cabin, became alarmed at her continued absence and notified the police. Deputy Sheriffs Coulter, Gill and Bowers responded and spent the night combing the hills for the missing woman. According to friends of Mrs. Queries, she has been ill for some time and took the cabin in Tujunga thinking it might benefit her. Monday night's experience apparently was without ill effects for she seemed quite well when she returned to her cabin.

CHARGES ON TEACHER GROW

Four New Accusations of Aiding Delinquency of Boys Made Against T. A. Russell

Tom A. Russell, principal of the Huntington Park High School, was named defendant in four new charges of contributing to the delinquency of minor boys in an amended complaint filed yesterday in Judge Archbald's Juvenile Court.

Russell was first arrested two weeks ago on a complaint accusing him of undue familiarity with James B. Fish, a 17-year-old student at the high school. According to Probation Officers Prescott and Sheffield and Dep. Dist.-Atty. Florence Woodhead, Russell registered under an assumed name at a local hotel where he entertained the Fish boy as his guest.

Since the filing of the original complaint, James F. Smith of the District Attorney's office and juvenile probation officers have conducted an extended investigation into the asserted affairs of the school official which resulted in the additional charges being preferred yesterday. The complaint was sworn to by Investigator Smith.

Russell, said to have gone under the alias of Ted Allen, was scheduled to have a preliminary hearing yesterday before Judge Archbald, but owing to the bringing of the new charges the examination was continued to December 4. In the meantime, Russell is at liberty under $3000 bond.

The courtroom was crowded yesterday with residents of Huntington Park and others interested in the outcome of the case against Russell, who, according to the probation officers, was connected with the high schools of Long Beach, San Diego and National City before he was employed by the Huntington Park Board of Education.

The amended complaint, in addition to listing the asserted offense against Fish, accuses Russell of contributing to the delinquency of Lloyd Boss, Donald Hines and Dick Tyson, each 17 years of age, and Burnell Bowan, 15.

LEROY CROW FREED ON ATTACK CHARGE

The case against Leroy Crow, charged with attacking Phebe Catherine Parish, was dismissed yesterday by Judge Hahn of the Superior Court on motion of Dep. Dist.-Atty. Ryan, who stated that the evidence was insufficient to convict. The case had been submitted to a jury after a trial several weeks ago, but the jury disagreed.

WEATHER NOTE

IN WONDERLAND

It is quite possible that those who do not believe in Santa Claus are missing something.

A Hollywood husband says that his wife simply has to be in high in order to run up some of the steep bills she does.

AN INCOME TAX

When a man finds a wife who says she can live on his income she often means it. For his own needs he must dig up another one, or croak.

THE GHOST BUSINESS

If the ghost of Oscar Wilde is writing plays for New York it might be advisable to summon the shade of Cotton Mather to serve as censor.

ENVIRONMENT COUNTS

It is found that pigs that are raised in spotless and sanitary surroundings learn to spurn filth. After all, our hogs are what men have made them.

LADY PREACHERS

The International Association of Woman Preachers held its annual convention in Chicago without denouncing bobbed hair. It is quite possible that some of the delegates had already passed under the shears.

THE ICY WATERS

Now a university professor proves that a cold bath will kill many kinds of fish. This will furnish reinforcements for those who have been knocking cool baths for human use. What is the difference between some men and a poor fish?

PLANT TREES

Vermont is setting out 1,000,000 trees this year in accordance with a State forestry program. This business of tearing out trees and putting nothing back is commercialized savagery. It would be well if every State in the Union became active in the good work of reforestation.

PICK OF THE EAST

If the East has its way Senator Wadsworth of New York will succeed Henry Cabot Lodge as Republican floor leader in the Senate. He is also by way of being a silk stocking and is near the social peak at the capital. He is a skilled parliamentarian and rather ready to debate. He was Speaker of the New York Assembly before his election to the United States Senate ten years ago. He is a graduate of Yale, is but 47 years of age and was an officer in the Spanish-American War. He is a regular with progressive leanings and is generally popular with the official life of the capital.

ALIEN PROBLEMS

Secretary Davis of the Labor Department is going to make a hurried trip to South America. Among other things, he wants first-hand information as to the methods of handling immigration at Argentine ports. The Argentine Republic is absorbing a lot of aliens from Europe and their manner of entry may be important to us. Secretary Davis has visited most of the European capitals and is exceptionally well-informed on all matters connected with foreign emigration. What he is now working for is an intelligent application of the new laws we have to restrict the coming of the alien. We wish to be generous, but we must first be just.

THE JEST SUPPRESSOR

There is a national trade bureau of the plumbing industries and a part of its work appears to be connected with the moral and social uplift of the great American plumber. It is the intention to establish this worker as the high-minded and competent citizen he is known to be. If he loses his tools or overcharges for his time he is not to be made the target of ribaldry. He will be held personally responsible for his shortcomings, but the public may not jest with his frailties. The bureau is said to be expending $200,000 a year for the elevation of the plumbing industry—and incidentally the extension of its business. And it may be known that a definite part of the program is the elimination of jokes in which the plumber furnishes the inspiration.

INJUSTICE ACTS INVERSELY

Some time ago a Mexican was arrested at Calexico by American officers under suspicion of having whisky in his car; but they found none. However, the ultra-eager raiders were not to be thought entirely stupid, so when they found a revolver in the automobile they arrested the Mexican under the pretext of smuggling arms into the United States and confiscated both the revolver and the automobile. Upon trial the smuggling charge was dismissed, as it was too apparently ridiculous, but the vigilant officers held on to the car and revolver until, finally ordered by the State Department to return them to the owner, they grudgingly obeyed the mandate. Incidents of this character but bring Americans into disrepute with the Mexican border residents and retard the spirit of amity we try so hard to foster.

THE ANCIENT GRUDGE

Sometimes while discussing the causes of the success of a man of large affairs a person of mediocre circles will be heard to remark: "Oh, he succeeds because he is a good fighter and an implacable enemy. Everybody is afraid to oppose him, for if they do they know they will get the worst of it. He will pursue them to the bitter end." This, if true, would tend to prove that to be greatly successful one must be badly embittered. But nothing is more false. It is recognized by many a leading financier and captain of industry that punishing a business enemy, in the language of the street, "gets him nothing."

Luminous examples of this truth might be multiplied. Those who do not know how a bitter quarrel reacts upon the brain, the digestive organs and the whole mental and physical makeup of a man will learn in time by sad experience, if they have any powers of observation. Really big men will not cherish animosities for long. They realize that if they do the consequences will be as injurious to them as to the one against whom they are storing up their wrath. Often such an animosity will militate against material achievement and, if it becomes an obsession, it will work moral ruin.

An illustration of how a really big man will overlook defeat by an antagonist was told in The Times recently by Milton Sills, the popular film actor. Sills, then engaged in regular stage work, had a three-year contract with William A. Brady, the New York theatrical magnate. Brady broke the contract after the first season, and Sills sued him and recovered damages. A small-minded theatrical manager would have blacklisted the actor forever. But Brady's mind was not of that order. He was badly beaten, but he did not become embittered because of his defeat. Only a short time afterward he offered Sills a star engagement in motion pictures, which the actor, forgiving his breach of the former contract, accepted.

"Beaten, But Not Embittered," as Sills suggests, would be a good title for the story of the affair. It reminds one of Robert Louis Stevenson's prayer that he might "not become embittered." And surely bitterness of spirit is an evil condition from which one well might pray to be delivered. For to be sour, morose, rancorous, spiteful and to keep alive "the ancient grudge" is to have reached over and grasped unhappiness and hugged it to one's heart.

There are people with this infliction who grow old and never suspect the truth concerning it. They know that others shun them, but they ascribe their enforced solitude, which always acts injuriously upon them, to any cause but the right one. There is the crabbed man who will not speak to an acquaintance whom he fancies has done him an injury. This man, by withholding the friendly word or gesture, more deeply wounds himself. There is the haughty, spiteful woman who wonders why, with all her cosmetics, she still has a bad complexion and who never dreams that, as Emerson says, "there is no beautifier like the wish to scatter joy and not pain around us."

And so, while one may become embroiled—it is hardly in human nature, with its many ugly contacts, to avoid that—and, while one may resist encroachments upon one's rights, if one would remain a healthy, likable and efficient being, one may not become embittered.

IT IS THE SPIRIT

In football, as Walter Camp said not long ago, "the spirit of a team has a lot to do with its success or failure. The team that has spirit never can be beaten until the final whistle blows."

If Camp had said the same thing of the game we call life that he did of football it would have been equally true. When we see the players competing on the gridiron, running, tackling or achieving a triumphant touchdown, we are forcibly reminded of the sallies, the scrimmages, the falls, uprisings and goal-runnings of business and industrial activity, and, reading the luminous lesson of it, we understand what football is for and how we can profit by the example of spirit or will to win necessary to a successful game.

It is the same in professional life and in art. Those who heard Tamagno's notes of despair over Desdemona's supposed perfidy or Caruso voice the tragic wail of Canio in "I Pagliacci" heard not merely words or notes, but the spirit of divine art. If music were mere technique Rubinstein or Paderewsky would have made no greater appeal than the phonograph.

Most of us would like to be heroes, but nothing heroic or even notable can be accomplished without spirit. Superior physical force counts little against it. There was Capt. John Gilmour, the British flyer, who, during nearly all his waking hours for nine months, flew over the German lines and was officially credited with bringing down thirty-four enemy 'planes. Yet Gilmour was not endowed with remarkable physique, but with spirit, energy and staying power, and these won his army air battles.

Fanny Workman climbed to the summit of Nun Kun in the Himalayas, an altitude of 23,300 feet, the highest record for women and almost the highest for men, yet she was but a frail woman and but poorly equipped for the tremendous ordeal of fighting her way through the storms.

Another woman climber, Annie S. Peck, after two formerly unsuccessful efforts, in one of which she nearly lost her life, mounted to the top of precipitous Huarascan, in Peru, and established yet another record for women—21,812 feet—higher than any man had climbed on this hemisphere. In each of these cases there was exhibited that dauntless spirit which conquers all things.

So, too, in such nerve-trying tests of endurance as those of Peary, Abruzzi and Stefansson. So, too, with our own John Muir in his exploration of the dangerous glaciers. So, too, with our 'round-the-world flyers and in many another enterprise where men have smiled grimly at privation, danger and death and pressed on to the goal of their dreams.

The enemies of Napoleon, in all the battles they waged against him, had not merely to deal with troops and cannon, but with the indomitable spirit of a commander ready to fight on any terms and at all times—a man who slept so little that he wore out his aides, who, with less fervor, required more rest.

It was the spirit, not the skill and numbers, of Washington's inferiorly equipped troops, that turned the tide of battle after battle against the British, from Lexington to Yorktown. "It is the spirit that quickeneth," said the Nazarene; "the flesh profiteth nothing."

Where Tact Is Essential

"DOUBLE LIVES"

A number of Los Angeles professional women and heads of successful businesses are up in arms over the statement that no woman can be a successful mother and have any outside interests as well. They point to their own families as proof positive of the fact that a woman can lead a "double life" and yet rear a most admirably well-behaved and intelligent family of children.

Many well-meaning but misinformed sociologists, teachers or ministers rush into print with the announcement that the country is going to ruin because so many women are engaged in gainful occupations that take them outside the home circle during the daytime. Report has it that these misguided females are hiring minions to do the family chores, such as dishwashing and housecleaning, instead of performing these highly important tasks themselves. Hence the home is bound to disintegrate, since mother prefers to occupy her time with something for which she is peculiarly fitted, and out of her earnings pay others to do the menial tasks.

The propounders of such foolish statements seem never to realize their absurdity. Wives of wealthy men never perform the household tasks; and they depute the care of the children to nurses and governesses, frequently spending more time out of the home every day attending social functions than does the woman who maintains an office. Yet no one rises up to decry her social activities or declare that she is neglecting her home. Under modern conditions the child, once it has attained the school age, is gone practically the whole day and the average mother who has been away during the same period of time, whether at business or playing golf, is better fitted to bring a fresh and interested mind to bear on the child's questions and amusements during the early evening than is the one who has remained glued to the house all day through a mistaken idea that by immolating herself in this fashion she is doing her high womanly duty.

CARD OF THE LA FOLLIES

It is said to be the purpose of the La Follies in California to put out a show of their own. They are going to round up the surviving Progressives and form a group or party to take over the Hiram Johnson machinery. They hope also to garner some recruits from the Democracy and by a weird combination of the outs and the opportunists to ultimately develop an organization of the first magnitude. They figure on at least outpointing the Democrats in this State. There may not be any cogent reason for this action—certainly the State is not suffering through lack of political parties, but there are enough of the Johnson henchmen involved to warrant the program. They have to be playing politics somewhere and, as there is no sunny place for them in the Republican yard, they feel like establishing playgrounds of their own. It will be a long time before they can mingle in the big doings, but they may tangle the progress of others. By reason of its variant industries California must ever be closely allied to the program controlling Republican action, but there are always a few radicals who would disturb conditions and these will be among the sponsors of the La Follies.

THE WORKING CLASS!

In one of the large banks in St. Louis there are over 15,000 persons renting boxes in the vaults. It is interesting to note that 90 per cent of those people belong to what we call the working class.

This saving habit was one good result of the war. Wage earners began by buying Liberty Bonds. They found out the advantages of saving their money and they have gone on buying other securities. This is just one of many other answers to the calamity howlers, the iconoclasts and industrial disturbers.

NEW CITIZENS

Aliens from nineteen different countries received their first papers of American citizenship in the Federal court here on a single day recently. The melting pot is working on full time. A short time back we were not sure that that many nations would pull through.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

The "Invisible Ras"

Premier Mussolini is asked to take some action in the case of the "Invisible Ras." The demand is made by the liberal press and even some of the moderate Fascisti newspapers. It seems that for a year there has been a warrant out for the arrest of this man "Ras" Regazzi on a charge of premeditated murder. In August, 1923, Regazzi and his men attacked the house of a man named Marani. The family barricaded themselves in the house, terrified. The Fascists broke in from the roof and pelted the family with the tiles. The family members have declared on oath that Marani was murdered like a dog. The Fascists dragged him out half-smothered from under a bed and as he rose to his feet Regazzi blew a great hole in him with a shotgun fired at close range. Ever since the murder Regazzi has been swaggering around Bologna untouched, the police declaring that he cannot be found, although the Chief of Police was constantly seen in his company at theaters and cafes. Regazzi is a member of the provincial Fascist council. When the Minister of Justice visited Bologna recently he declared that he could not attend the meetings of the council until Regazzi retired. But Regazzi stuck and Mussolini's minister had to retire. It is becoming apparent that the forces loosened by Mussolini are getting beyond his control. And Fascism, originally set up to combat Communism, is itself guilty of ushering in an era of lawlessness and anarchy.

Interlocking Directorate

Anent the letters, supposedly written by M. Zinovieff to the British Communists, urging them to throw England into the throes of a violent revolution, a letter that did its share toward the MacDonald downfall, M. Rykoff, Premier of Russia, has this to say: "Of course, the Moscow government can have no responsibility in a matter involving Zinovieff and the Third Internationale. The Moscow government and the Third Internationale are two different bodies." That may be true. But to the outside world the two bodies are difficult to distinguish. It is a sort of interlocking directorate. The same men who stand at the helm of affairs in Russia are practically all officers of the international revolutionary body. It does not pay to play the innocent by such subtle subterfuge. If the Russian Foreign Office is responsible for the letter there need be no reluctance on its part to acknowledge. Its contents frankly incite the British masses to revolt. Nothing strange in such advice coming from the Russian government. But it may be that a lie at this time serves the purpose better. And, as far as dissembling and intriguing is concerned, the new Russian diplomats have proven themselves apt pupils of some of the diplomats and Machiavellians of other countries.

RIPPLING RHYMES

COFFEE FANS

I line up with the coffee drinkers, I quaff mine from a flagon wide, with captains, statesmen, bards and thinkers who take the good the gods provide, who drink it with the morning sinkers and with the roast at eventide. A pail of coffee, well compounded, is sure to soothe the savage breast; 'twould tempt the gods, who are surrounded by all the fizzes of the blest; and while sane poets' lyres are sounded, its fame will travel with the best. But while I sip my morning beaker of coffee fetched from far Brazil there comes a dour and dismal speaker, who says, "What dope is that you swill? It's poison, it will make you weaker and wreck you, if it fails to kill. You think your cup of dope delightful, you chortle as your works it laves; but it's a demon fierce and spiteful and those who drink it rank with slaves; it holds a drug, caffeine, that's frightful, that sends men to untimely graves." "Go to," I say, "your aspect bearish sends fantods shooting through my frame; whatever drink a man may cherish, there's always some one to exclaim, 'Abjure that flagon or you'll perish—it plays a dark and deadly game!' This drink is great and, while it fills me, I feel at peace with all mankind, with unmixed ecstasy it thrills me, I leave my cares and woes behind; I drink three quarts and if it kills me I'll cash in cheerful and resigned."

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] It is consoling to note that not all the faking takes place in the American boxing rings.

The telegraph, through the aid of the newspapers, brings to our doors this morning the weird news that two bozos in Rome, Italy, have fought fourteen rounds with swords without even inflicting a scratch.

Any American that would stand and watch such a "ghastly" affair for the length of fourteen rounds could certainly be classified as a Jim Dandy.

Death of Senator Cole

NATIONAL SOLDIERS' HOME (O.) Nov. 17.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I noticed an article in the Dayton Daily News announcing the death of United States Senator Cole at the age of 102 years. This home has a number between 88 and 103 years of age. I have thought it appropriate to tell you truthfully that this home has a Civil War soldier, Robert Brown, born in Arkansas, January 7, 1817. Next January 7 he will be 108, yet he makes up his own bed, takes care of his quarters himself, walks straight as a man of 40. He says his health is exceptionally good and appetite also. Another man is 105 years old, but this man is frail. I used to be a member of the Pacific branch. I have relatives living at 4239 West Sixty-fifth street, Los Angeles. Hoping this will reach some of my many friends in the Pacific branch.

Poisoners of Youth

PASADENA, Nov. 17.—[To the Editor of The Times:] While recognizing that the open shop, the enlargement of the harbor and the getting of a water supply for Los Angeles and Southern California from the Colorado River are of vital importance to us all, yet there is a question of vastly more importance not only to California, but to the whole United States, that demands our immediate and strictest attention and that is the Socialistic and un-American doctrines among the teachers in our public schools. Our Constitution and our flag are threatened by this insidious poison being poured into the minds of our youth.

Their reason and judgment are not yet developed and if their memory is tainted by such teachings their reason and judgment will be warped and the Constitution and the flag will not be revered and respected as they should be.

Thanksgiving Dinner for Sailors on Battle Units to Cost $15,000

Thanksgiving turkey with trimmings, will cost $15,000 for the seventeen units of the United States Battle Fleet in port at Los Angeles Harbor, according to figures and menus furnished yesterday by the commissary offices of all ships.

Approximately 14,000 men are expected to be aboard for the extraordinary fare.

Croutons
Roast Young Turkey Oyster Dressing
Cranberry Sauce Giblet Gravy
Creamed Corn Candied Sweet Potatoes
Waldorf Salad
Hot Mince Pie Pound Cake

That housewives may see how the chefs of the California put up such a dish for 1400 hungry sailors for $1388.60, Pay Clerk R. D. Pace commissary officer of the fleet flagship, offers the following itemized bill of purchase for the Thanksgiving midday meal:

1300 Pounds	turkey	$ 785.00

There will also be a comprehensive round of social events in the fleet during the Thanksgiving period, both among the officers and enlisted personnel. Notable among the first scheduled will be the ship's ball of the U.S.S. Tennessee, to be held tonight aboard the superdreadnaught. All ships will hold open house to invited guests tomorrow, while on Friday night the ship's company of the U.S.S. Colorado will give the ship's annual ball at the Hotel Ambassador.

OFFICERS TO ENTERTAIN

Saturday night, on board the U.S.S. West Virginia, the captain and officers of the world's last superdreadnaught will entertain in honor of their ship's first anniversary. Admiral Samuel S. Robison, commander-in-chief of the Battle Fleet, Vice-Admiral Henry A. Wiley, commanding the battleship divisions, and members of their staffs will be among the honored guests of Capt. Thomas J. Senn and his officers.

All units of the battleship divisions will be in port all week, while unusual leave privileges will be granted to the officers and enlisted personnel of all ships, extending over the week-end, with the exception o fthe field day period on Friday.

NEWSBOYS WILL DINE AT ELKS' CLUBS

Owing to the fact that there have been so many applications for tickets to the Newsboys' Thanksgiving dinner, it has been found that the Newsboys' Club will be entirely too small to accommodate the number. Through the efforts of Manager Carlo Curtis, the Elks Club has donated the use of the clubrooms for the purpose. The dinner, therefore, will be held at the Elks' Club instead of the Newsboys' Club as originally planned.

Manager Curtis has devoted much time and effort to making this annual event a success and expects 2000 newsboys to attend.

School and another at the High School, at which he told asserted discoveries he had made of students drinking, of petting parties and of other asserted vices. At the time he deplored the fact so few parents attended the sessions, explained what school officials were attempting to do toward proper supervision, and pleaded for greater parental supervision of children.

That Mrs. Kredel would fight the charge against her was indicated when L. A. West, her counsel, advised the court that the product referred to as wine proved to be fermented grape juice. She threw out the concoction, West maintained, but the two boys, he added, were found to have taken two small bottle full of the product to school, a fact not then known to their mother.

At the preliminary hearing, it was understood the prosecution would attempt to have the two sons and daughter testify against their mother.

condition, explaining that she had been out with Schertzinger. She also said she had spent part of the evening at the defendant's home, the complaint asserts.

During August, last, it is charged Mrs. Beers left her husband and went to Northern California with Schertzinger on the pretense of going on location for a film that the latter was directing and in which Mrs. Beers was playing a part. When she returned about a month later, Beers declares, she told him that she loved Schertzinger and that she was going to leave Beers and go with the director. Mrs. Beers declared that Schertzinger told her he would support her, Mr. Beers asserts.

The Beers were married on August 3, 1918 and lived happily together until Schertzinger came into their life, Beers declares. Mrs. Beers is said to live at present at 1543 North Virgil street, Hollywood.

The suits were filed by Attorneys Lorin Andrews and Brooks.

DENIAL

"There is not an iota of truth in any of these charges," Mr. Schertzinger said last night at his home on Cromwell avenue. He said the filing of the suit was not entirely unexpected because he had been indirectly threatened with such action. He announced that his wife is in critical health, adding that it was significant that the suit was filed at this time.

"However," he said, "at the first intimation some time ago that I was being linked with the Beers's marital troubles, Mrs. Schertzinger was the first one I told. Naturally, after ten years of a remarkably happy married life, she is ready to stand by me. As far as this trip to Northern California goes the fact that there is plenty of film showing Mrs. Beers working in the pictures proves that there was no pretense in making the trip. I never was out alone with this woman. Our relations have been on a business basis entirely. As for offering to support her, it is ridiculous. To show that I am honest in this statement, this matter will go to trial."

POST HEIR TAXED $12,718

Emma V. Post, sole heir of the estate of Charles N. Post, must pay the State an inheritance tax of $12,718, State Controller Riley announced yesterday. Mr. Post, a Pasadena capitalist, died August 31, 1923, leaving property valued at $232,033.

PENSION CLAIM IS WITHDRAWN BY OAKS

Former Chief of Police Oaks yesterday filed with the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners a withdrawal of his application for a retirement on a pension with the rank of Detective Lieutenant, which he holds. The commission had his application under advisement. The former chief asked that his application "be withdrawn without prejudice pending further effort to regain my health." The physician's examination of Oaks, ordered by the commission, showed that he is in poor health, but the question before the commission was to decide whether his illness was the result of overwork while he was Chief of Police. Oaks is now on indefinite sick leave from the police department in which he has served fourteen years.

SOCIETY

BY JUANA NEAL LEVY

Of much interest to local society is the wedding this afternoon in Paris, France, of Miss Annabelle Ralphs, daughter of the late George Albert Ralphs and Mrs. Ralphs of Los Angeles, and Hon. Percy A. Brooksbank of Middiston Hall, York, England, the ceremony taking place in the American Church, with Rev. Dr. Beekman officiating. Mrs. Thaddeus Ardina Winter (Dextra Baldwin) will assist as matron of honor, while Miss Sarah Lee Chapman of Los Angeles, Miss Muriel Spencer and Miss Violet Tangueman of Washington, D. C., classmates of the charming bride, will be the bridesmaids. Elmer Ralphs went over to give his cousin in marriage. Following the ceremony, which will take place at 3 o'clock, a reception and wedding breakfast will be given at Hotel Meurice, and later Mr. Brooksbank and his bride will leave on an extended wedding trip, after which they will be domiciled in their beautiful villa on the Riviera, to remain indefinitely, later in the summer going across to the Brooksbank estates in England. The bridal gown was created by Drecol. The bride's attendants will wear frocks fashioned from the new shade of purple now so popular in the Franch capital, and will carry arm showers of orchids. Mrs. Ralphs, who accompanied her daughter abroad, will remain in France until after the Christmas holidays, planning to return to Southern California in January.

Luncheon Party

One of the most beautiful luncheons of recent date was that with which Mrs. W. H. Wagoner entertained in the Rose Room of the Mary Louise. The tables were arranged in the form of a cross and were exquisite with their decorations of lavender, yellow and pink flowers, lavishly arranged in huge baskets. Crystal candelabra with lighted tapers shed a soft glow over the board, and the favors were dainty French dolls in tulle in corresponding shades, while the place cards were fancies in the tones of pink lavender and yellow, marking covers for fifty guests. Following the luncheon the afternoon was enjoyed in playing bridge.

EARS

We are going to talk bout ear troubles for a while now, but before you come to know about this ear trouble, you must know a little concerning ear anatomy; so read on, please, if you are interested. (You should be.)

The ear consists of three parts—the external ear, the middle ear and the internal ear.

The external ear consists of two parts. The outer part is that appendage which decorates or deforms, as the case may be, the outside of the head. It is known by the technical name of pinna, and the central part of the pinna is called the concha or shell. The inner part of the external ear consists of the ear canal, and is called the auditory meatus (me-a-tus.) The canal is about one and one-quarter inches long and ends at the eardrum. It is lined with skin which is well supplied with a characteristic type of glands which secrete the ear wax (cerumen,) a thick, sticky, yellowish fluid designed to lubricate and to catch dust and adventurous insects.

The eardrum, or tympanum, is really more like a tambourine than a drum because it consists of but one membrane. It stretches across the ear canal and forms a wall between the ear-canal part of the external ear and the middle ear. It consists of fibers covered on the outer side, with the extension of the skin which lines the ear canal, and on inner side, with extension of the mucous membrane which lines the middle ear. This ear drum vibrates to the different sound waves as they strike it, just as the disc of a telephone vibrates when it sends your voice over the wires.

The external ear with its tube, we can think of as a receiving trumpet for catching sounds. Apparently at one time in our existence we used to be able to prick up our ears and turn them in the direction of sounds, just as horses and dogs and other animals do, because there are three tiny pairs of muscles running from the ears to the side of the head. Some people still have the ability to wiggle their ears. It's quite an accomplishment.

The middle ear is the passage beyond the inner side of the drum. This is a cavity lined with mucous membrane and in it are situated three of the cunningest little bones you ever saw (the three of them would not cover your little fingernail) called—because they resemble the articles—the malleus or hammer-bone, the incus or anvil-bone, and the stapes or stirrup-bone. The hammer-bone is connected with the eardrum, then comes the anvil and then the stirrup. The stirrup connects with the internal ear where the auditory nerve is situated. These bones transmit the vibrations of the drum to this auditory nerve, which in turn transmits them to the brain. (We really hear with our brains just as we see with our brains, through a nerve.)

There are two openings from the middle ear—one, which leads to mastoid cells in the bone back of the ear, and another, the eustachian tube, which leads down into the throat back of the soft palate. The eustachian tube is open and is for the purpose of letting air up into the middle ear, so that these little bones and the eardrum can vibrate to the sound waves. (In cases of inflamed throats, this open passage to the ear is not so good! More on this later.)

Next comes the internal ear, which is a very complicated structure consisting of a set of cavities in the inside projections of the temporal bones. It is called the labyrinth. In the middle of this labyrinth is the real hearing organ itself—a wondrous, beautiful and complicated structure. It has been compared with the keyboard of a piano, only there are thousands of little keys. They are really little nerve rods and each one is supposed to vibrate to a particular sound. In this internal ear is also a set of canals, called the semicircular canals. They are the organs of balance, but while situated in the ear, are thought to have nothing to do with hearing.

Now you know the main facts about the anatomy of the ear.

Tomorrow we will take up some of the troubles of that appendage.

The county grand jury yesterday started an investigation of the slaying of R. E. Mack, vaudeville agent, Saturday in his office in the Frost Building. Although no indictment was returned yesterday it was believed that a bill charging Zane R. Southern, self-confessed slayer of Mack, with murder will be voted on Friday.

Southern admitted firing the shot that killed Mack and declared he did it because Mack would not stop his attentions to Violet Ruth Southern, 19-year-old estranged wife of Southern. Southern is being held in the City Jail. He was exonerated by a Coroner's jury Monday, but Dep. Dist.-Atty. Davis, head of the District Attorney's homicide department, announced that a murder complaint would be issued against Southern.

Witnesses before the grand jury yesterday included the following eye-witnesses to the shooting: R. H. Talcott, 720 West Pico street; Conrad Hipp, 1714-A South Berendo street, and Larry Delaney, 718½ West Eighth street. The case was presented to the jury by Dep. Dist.-Attys. Shelley and Dennison.

Borden's for WHIPPED CREAM

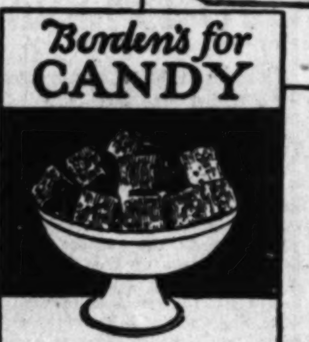
Borden's for COOKING



Borden's for CANDY

Borden's for OUTINGS

SOME homes use evaporated milk for only one or two things—as in coffee or in a cream sauce. Some people think of it only as an emergency. They buy a can or two "to have in the house" in case the bottled milk runs out or sours. Or they take a few cans along on an outing.

But housewives who really know Borden's Evaporated Milk use it for everything—wherever the recipe calls for milk.

When chilled, it whips beautifully. There is nothing better for dressings, custards and icings. In any form of cooking that milk enters—like cream soups or mashed potatoes—Borden's imparts a wonderfully delicious smoothness and flavor. And in coffee you can enjoy the richness of double cream by using Borden's undiluted, just as it comes from the can.

Best of all—you can always depend upon Borden's in any climate—at any season and any hour. And it costs much less than its equivalent in bottled milk.

Just keep several cans of Borden's on your pantry shelf, and you will soon realize the convenience of having pure, sweet milk always within easy reach—for dozens of daily uses!

STOCKBROKER LOSES SUIT

Judge Holds Shares Secured by "Trick and Device" Same as Stolen Property

Stock brokers must conform to the ancient rule of "caveat emptor," trade custom to the contrary notwithstanding, Judge Hudner of the Superior court held yesterday in deciding the suit of Mrs. T. L. Minahan against Robert Feinstein, broker.

Mrs. Minahan, who is an aged widow, by a decision will have returned to her three shares of the stock of a power company which Feinstein bought in good faith.

Testimony at the trial of the case several months ago disclosed that Mrs. Minahan had indorsed the stock, which had been held by her under a former name, and delivered it to a man named Baker, now a fugitive from justice, upon Baker's representations that he was an agent of the power company, and that it would be to her interest to have the certificates by others made out in her present name, so that she could more easily sell them or borrow upon them.

Baker thereupon, it was testified, sold the shares on the market. Feinstein contended that he had purchased them in good faith, in accordance with trade custom, no notice of loss of ownership having been made by Mrs. Minahan.

Judge Hudner ruled, however, that the shares had been obtained by Baker by "trick and device," and were therefore the same as any other stolen property. It has long been the custom of stockbrokers to buy certificates indorsed in blank, but Judge Hudner did not feel that this custom could justly overbalance the general principles of justice. The case for Mrs. Minahan was presented by Attorney J. R. Wilder, who said yesterday that the decision is without a precedent in California jurisprudence.

RARE BOOKS ON EXHIBITION

Pasadena Woman Acquires Choice Works During Summer Trip in Europe

Mrs. George M. Millard of Pasadena has returned from England and France with her summer's acquisitions of choice books, and yesterday put them on exhibition in a parlor at the Biltmore, where for the rest of the week her clients, many of whom gave her special commissions, and local bibliophiles generally will congregate.

Mrs. Millard brought back a collection of some 3000 volumes, in some branches as rare a collection as she has ever obtained. It represents about $50,000, and yet many of the books in it are not costly but represent good prints of old English and semimodern editions. It ranks with the collection Mrs. Millard brought back in 1920, although then the investment was nearer $75,000.

The Pasadena woman goes abroad each year with commissions from western collectors, such as Henry E. Huntington of San Marino; W. A. Clark, Jr., of Los Angeles; Mrs. John Hudson Poole of Pasadena and Templeton Crocker of San Mateo.

"It is generally accepted in the East and in Europe," she says, "that many of the finest books in America are owned on the Pacific Coast, even aside from the Huntington library."

RARE VOLUMES

But Mrs. Millard does not deal exclusively in rare books for private collectors. Aside from the first editions in original bindings, she brings back many volumes printed from the original plates in contemporary bindings or rebound in England in dignified library fashion.

"But the book publishers have talked de luxe editions so much that people seem to think they are the thing; that Elbert Hubbard is another William Morris. Why, they will come in here and when they are shown a choice old book they will ask what the number of it is, so well has the edition de luxe idea been impressed on them. None of these books have publishers' numbers in them. It wasn't done."

In a corner of the parlor there are filed a collection of old English books in quality that, Mrs. Millard thinks, can't be duplicated in any library corner in New York or London. For example, in first editions, original bindings and uncut, that is untrimmed edges, in a word just as originally published and in perfect condition, one may pick up Fielding's "Tom Jones" and "Amelia;" Dr. Smollett's "Peregrine Pickle" and "Humphrey Klinker;" a Boswell, a Vicar of Wakefield and to complete the Eighteenth Century atmosphere an original edition of Dr. Johnson's mammoth dictionary tomes in their aged leather covers; original editions of Greene and Marlowe's plays, which were bound for the library of King Charles II and come more directly from the Earl of Charlemont's and the Huth libraries; a first Ben Jonson and several Pepys.

Of curiosities there is a "Pickwick" in the original parts, and Walton's "Angler." Dickens's Eighteenth Century imitation is presented in its twenty parts, paper-backed pamphlets which cost a shilling or so apiece and now will fetch for the set not much short of a thousand dollars. The "Angler" is presented in contemporary calf in its first, second, third, fourth and fifth editions. At Paris, Mrs. Millard got a Rabelais in French in original board with untrimmed edges.

NO MORE BARGAINS

"All of these books came from dealers who knew their worth," she said. "There are no accidents any more. One does not pick up bargains in little shops in Europe as one used to. The catalogues of old books make it possible for every little dealer to know their worth."

Mrs. Millard's husband was the famous bibliophile of Chicago, for many years in charge of the old book department of A. C. McClurg & Co. of that city. His corner in the shop was made famous as "Saints' and Sinners' Corner" by Eugene Field. He retired and removed to Pasadena and died six years ago.

RECORDS OF POWER BODY ARE AUDITED

Report Says Net Earnings Are $3,051,306.45 for Year Ending Last June

The Board of Public Service Commissioners yesterday received from the accounting firm of Price, Waterhouse & Co., the report of the audit of the Power Bureau's books for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924, which showed that for the year the gross earnings of the bureau were $9,303,092.29, operation and maintenance expenses were $4,476,738, allowance of $733,750 for depreciation of plant was made, and interest and sinking fund payments on power bonds amounted to $1,041,397.19, leaving net surplus earnings for the year of $3,051,306.45.

The assets of the bureau, the report showed, were $38,402,803.03 and liabilities were $25,655,338.43, the assets exceeding the liabilities by $12,745,000. During the year, the bureau spent $4,152,000 on extensions, betterments and replacements, which were financed from surplus revenues on account of there being virtually no bond money available.

Wife of Rich Oil Man Wins Divorce Suit

Lillian O'Donnell was granted a divorce yesterday from her millionaire husband, Thomas A. O'Donnell, president of the American Petroleum Institute, in Judge Summerfield's department of the Superior Court. She charged desertion.

A property agreement in which O'Donnell settled $750,000 in cash and securities on his wife was approved by the court. The property given to the wife, it was stated, brings a $50,000 income annually.

The suit was not contested. In her complaint Mrs. O'Donnell stated that she married her husband in this city in 1897. They lived together until 1916, when he left her without advancing any reason, she said.

"He has always taken care of me," she said on the witness stand yesterday, "and has provided adequately for all my needs. But apparently he just grew tired of me and left."

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON BRUSHES TONIGHT

A lecture illustrated with a three-reel motion picture of the paint-brush industry will be given at 8:30 p.m. today at the E. R. Bohan & Co., Hollywood store, 7483 Sunset Boulevard, by I. A. Rubin, president of the Rubico Brush Manufacturers of New York. One of the paradoxes of the industry, according to Mr. Rubin, is that the finest hygienic hair and tooth brushes come from the proverbially dirty hog. Bristle from the Russian and Chinese hog is longer and has the call over domestic bristle.

EAST FEELS AWAKENING IN INDUSTRY

A. D. Lasker Says Election of Coolidge Did Much to Relieve Uncertainty

A. D. Lasker, former head of the United States Shipping Board, and now president of the Lord & Thomas advertising agency, came to Los Angeles yesterday afternoon, heralding the news of a great awakening of business in the East.

Mr. Lasker, one of the outstanding advertising men of the country, arrived on the Santa Fe, then proceeded to the Ambassador. He said his trip here was devoted entirely to business consultations with his Pacific Coast clients. He will go to San Francisco in a few days.

"There is increased prosperity over the country," said Mr. Lasker, "due to the wiping away of the uncertainty of the political prospect by the election of President Coolidge. When everyone begins to think good times are here the result is a boom.

"The advance in prices in the quickening of business since the election is more than a boom. It looks as if it were here to stay.

"Southern California should forge swiftly ahead. We were pioneers in our business out here, and have always had faith in this region. Present conditions prove that we were right."

INDUSTRY CHIEFTAINS TO ATTEND

Development League to be Well Represented at Chamber Parley Here

To bid for leadership in the upbuilding of the Empire of the West, California will be strongly represented at the western business convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States here next Tuesday and Wednesday. The California Development Association is undertaking to have present at the convention 100 or more business leaders of the State, half of whom are expected to assemble in San Francisco Saturday for the trip south.

Paul Shoup, director of the association, who will preside at the Los Angeles convention, desires a representation from Central and Northern California and in this he is backed by Norman H. Sloane, general manager of the association, who is endeavoring to have twenty-five commercial and industrial chiefs from the Bay District and as many more from other points north of the Tehachapi included in the development association's delegation.

Among San Francisco directors or members of the California Development Association already who have agreed to attend the convention are: Paul Shoup, C. E. Virden, R. E. Fisher, George A. Leithner, D. R. McNeill, Jr., Guy L. Goin, A. M. Reinhardt, C. S. Knight, H. K. Faye, C. Stovell Smith and Norman H. Sloane. Among Los Angeles delegates from the association will be Charles F. Stern, J. F. Sartori, W. M. Garland, Harry Chandler, Clinton E. Miller, E. W. Murphy, Frank Ryan, Cecil B. De Mille, Joseph Schenck, Sylvester Weaver, Douglas Fairbanks, Marco Hellman, Fred Bixley, Senator Frank B. Flint, E. L. Doheny, Isadore P. Dockweiler, Claus Spreckles, C. C. Teague, John Willis Baer and Norman B. Courteney.

Realty Brokers Not Subject to Occupation Tax

Real estate brokers do not need a special government license or to pay a Federal occupational tax for buying or selling real estate for others or for lending money for others on mortgages or notes, Internal Revenue Collector Goodcell announced yesterday. An erroneous report that such a tax was being collected was published recently, Mr. Goodcell said.

Real estate brokers or others who buy or sell for others stocks, bonds, exchange, coined bullion, bank notes or other securities are subject to the stock broker's license tax, and those who loan on chattels and take the pledge into their possession are liable to a pawnbroker's tax.

WILL SUIT STOPS PAY FOR TOMB

G. P. Woodworth, late resident of Long Beach, is resting in a $15,000 marble tomb, but who is to pay for it is a matter still to be decided by the court, it developed yesterday when a contest of his will came before Judge J. Perry Wood, of the Probate Court, on a demurrer.

For when Woodworth died it was found that he had made his Civil War comrade, Frank E. Foster, executor of his $15,000 estate, with discretion as to its use. Foster spent the proceeds on a mortuary monument to their long friendship—a splendid tomb, in which there was prepared a niche for himself, when he, too, should be called to join his old comrade.

This arrangement, however, was objected to by Flora Woodworth, divorced wife of the decedent, who, just as Foster was about to file his accounting of his stewardship, entered a contest, claiming a widow's share of the estate. Attorneys Todd, Pawson and Watkins, counsel for Foster, promptly demurred. Judge Wood yesterday sustained the demurrer. If the case comes to a hearing on its merits, Foster will contend that a complete property settlement between Woodworth and his former wife was effected at the time of their divorce.

MAN BADLY BURNED IN GASOLINE BLAST

Earl Fish, 5531 Santa Monica Boulevard, was seriously burned Monday afternoon when a vat of gasoline over which he was working at a cleaning establishment at 6713 Santa Monica Boulevard, exploded and caught fire. The flames were extinguished by Hollywood firemen and Fish was removed to the hospital of Drs. Ferry, Dickey and Cass on Hollywood Boulevard, where he was treated for burns about the hands, arms and face.

PAY INCREASE ASKED

The City Council was yesterday asked by Police Chief Heath and the Police Commission to increase the salary of Mabel Olin, assistant secretary to the Chief, from $166 to $200 a month. The efficiency of Miss Olin was praised by Chief Heath.

DOG STAR SHINES

By Grace Kingsley

"Find Your Man" is right!

What with the dogs and cows starring on Theater Row this week, it does seem as if the human actors are just sort of pinch-hitting!

"Find Your Man" is the title of Rin-Tin-Tin's latest starring vehicle, which is on view at the Mission. And a dandy picture it is, too, because somebody conceived the bright idea of letting this police dog do his war stuff—something that hasn't apparently been thought of before. Not that "Find Your Man" is a war story, however, except as to the first reel or so. But certainly there was an additional tang to the tale of this dog when you saw him actually working in No Man's Land, just as he did overseas with his master, Lee Duncan, who was a soldier.

Rin-Tin-Tin even appears in the flesh-and-fleas with his master, and does a bit of a turn while Duncan gives a most spirited little story of their experiences overseas.

"Find Your Man" is really a glorified dog act, for Rin-Tin-Tin not only performs his war work, but he also several times does the twelve-foot vault over fences, down chimneys, and even through the transom of a door, for which he won the canine high-vaulting championship. Of course, he rescues the subhero, the human one, the heroine, and various and sundry folks, and wreaks summary vengeance on the villain. And all the little boys are just too glad for anything when he hops the pound fence.

There's one place that is funny. That's where, the human hero having run to the rescue of the heroine, the dog follows later, but apparently takes a much longer time than the man did to reach the spot.

Mal St. Clair directed, and the continuity and various bits of incidental business are excellent, while the acting of the humans is almost as natural as that of the dog.

Little brother Eric St. Clair is an engaging juvenile, who is sure to grow in power as he goes along with his film work. June Marlow is so lovely as the heroine that you wouldn't care what she did just so you could look at her, but at that she does very excellent work. Pat Hartigan, C. H. Mailes and others are very good indeed.

As usual, when I saw the Mack Sennett comedy, "Love's Sweet Piffle," I wished that I never need look at another of these so-called serious pictures again as long as I live. It starts off with romantic snap when Ralph Graves saves Thelma Hill from an unhappy marriage by pretending to be a bandit and kidnaping her. From then on occurs the usual chase, but it is all amusing.

An excellent show for your money, take it altogether, and, thank heaven, except for the really entertaining personal appearance of Rin-Tin-Tin, the canine Campinini, there is no vaudeville.

JACK PICKFORD IS WITH SISTER MARY

Following completion of production work on "The End of the World," early in the autumn, Jack went to New York with his wife, Marilynn Miller, who is starring in Charles Dillingham's stage production of "Peter Pan." After seeing his wife well launched in this vehicle, Jack then devoted his attention to distribution plans for "The End of the World," which is now scheduled for release about January 1, by Allied Producers and Distributors, a subsidiary of United Artists.

After Thanksgiving, Jack will return to New York to spend Christmas with his wife, and to close a deal which is now pending for his next story.

To Distribute "Charley's Aunt"

Announcement was made in New York yesterday that the Christie film production of "Charley's Aunt," with Syd Chaplin, will be released through Producers' Distributing Corporation in the United States and Canada, thus setting at rest all rumors regarding the half a dozen prominent distributors who were reported to be in line to get the famous comedy "plum" of the season.

The plans for releasing "Charley's Aunt" have probably caused more comment in the film trade than any other independent production which has come along in several years, and in signing up with Producers' Distributing Corporation for this release the Christie firm is following, through the same distributing offices, two of its feature-length successes, "Hold Your Breath" and "Reckless Romance."

The deal for releasing "Charley's Aunt" was completed in the East by Charles H. Christie, who returned to Los Angeles this week accompanied by Harry Rowson, managing director of Ideal Films, Ltd., the English firm which bought the film rights to "Charley's Aunt" and which is in partnership with the Christie company on the film production.

The film will soon be completed under Scott Sidney's direction and after editing is completed it should be ready for release in this country about the first week in February. It will probably be about six or seven reels long, and is expected to be Christie's biggest attraction to date in the comedy line. Having the advantage of being from a play which many generations of theatergoers have laughed at, "Charley's Aunt" is one of the few feature film comedies to be made from an established stage success, and it may open up a new line of film endeavor, reviving famous old classics for laughing purposes only. This particular classic, however, holds all records for it is the only one which has played continuously for so long a time, thirty-three years since it opened in the little English town of Bury St. Edmunds in Suffolk in 1892.

Principals in New Western Epic

Roy Stewart and Bessie Love

About to appear in "Sundown," which opens at the Criterion Theater Saturday.

Syd Chaplin, playing the title role, has stated that he considers this the greatest opportunity in his screen career. He has been surrounded with a cast composed of Ethel Shannon, in the leading feminine role; James E. Page, who played in the stage version for twelve years; Alec B. Francis, Phillipe Smalley, Lucien Littlefield, and others.

Doris Pawn Writes.

Doris Pawn, stage and screen actress, solved a Hollywood mystery, the other day, when she appeared at the office of B. P. Schulberg, producer, with the finished scripts of four scenarios under her arm.

The mystery hinged upon the reputed disappearance from the usual haunts of the film folk of Miss Pawn. Was she in Hollywood? Was she out on the road making personal appearances? Had she deserted to the "speakies?" Speculation, which had run rife, was appeased by the vision of Miss Pawn and the bulky roll of typewritten sheets, which she deposited upon the producer's desk.

"Had to bury myself to write 'em. Now that they're finished I'm satisfied," is the laconic explanation vouchsafed by the actress.

Universal Companies Return

Two companies have returned to Universal City from location, both arriving on the same day, with unusual stories to tell.

The Laura La Plante-Eugene O'Brien unit, under command of Director William A. Seiter and Martin Murphy, production manager, arrived at the harbor aboard the steamship Calawaii on which they left three weeks before for Honolulu. Included in the supporting cast are Jean Hersholt, Alfred Allen, Violet La Plante and others. Nate Watt was assistant director and Merritt Gerstad and Richard Fryer were cameramen. The company filmed more than half of "Dangerous Innocence," adapted from Pamela Wynne's "Ann's An Idiot," on the ship.

Helen D'Algy In It

Helen D'Algy has been assigned to her first role for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer since she went under contract with that company several weeks ago.

She will be seen as Olga, a Russian artist, in Frank Borzage's "A Man's World," which is a screen version of Zoe Akins's play "Daddy's Gone A-Hunting." Miss D'Algy is a newcomer in motion pictures who made her first big mark playing with Rudolph Valentino in "A Sainted Devil."

Another addition to the cast of Borzage's production is Ford Sterling, who will do a comedy part as Oscar. Alice Joyce and Percy Marmont have already been announced as the leading members of the cast.

Charlie Chase Near-Hero

Charlie Chase, who stars in Hal Roach comedies, is almost a hero. At least he deserves credit for trying.

A small boy fell in the swimming tank at the Hal Roach studios the other day. It was during the lunch hour. Chase standing by, resplendent in a new outfit of clothes. There were frantic calls for help, to which the comedian responded. Rushing to the edge of the pool, Chase say the boy splashing about within reach.

"Grab my hand," Charlie yelled to a bystander, and leaned far out to grasp the struggling boy. The other man's foot slipped and both fell in on top of the unfortunate youth they were trying to rescue. The water was cold and dirty, but he seized the boy by the collar and, shaking off his co-rescuer, swam to the edge of the tank. What's a new suit of clothes when a life's at stake, anyway?

When they were all on the bank again it developed that the boy himself is an expert swimmer, as good, or better than Chase. The urchin had dropped a plaything into the water and was trying to reach it from the bank when he lost his balance. He almost had it when his rescuers fell in on top of him and dragged him unwillingly from the water.

Robert Frazer Soon

Robert Frazer will arrive in Los Angeles from New York Thanksgiving Day. Work is being rushed at the Paramount Long Island Studios on "Little Miss Bluebeard," in which Frazer plays the leading role opposite Bebe Daniels, to enable the actor to begin work before the first of December on a new picture to be made in Hollywood. Sickness among members of the cast of "Little Miss Blebeard" caused production schedules to be held up. Bebe Daniels, star of the production, was forced to quit work for a week. Frazer suffered an attack of influenza, but continued with his work despite the fact that an occasional scene was spoiled by his coughing.

Kean's Camp Location

Kean's Camp, mountain resort and government timber reserve station in the Tauquitz Mountains of Southern California, is the location for most of the exteriors in Hoot Gibson's current Universal starring production, "The Taming of the West."

Potboilers Open With 'Hairy Ape' Monday Evening

Next Monday will be the opening night of the Potboilers' production of "The Hairy Ape," with Mitchell Lewis in the leading role. This drama by Eugene O'Neill, is unusual dramatic fare, and is distinctly modern in treatment. There are but two female parts in the play, and the scenes range from the glare of the stokehole to the glitter of Fifth avenue. Through all of them moves Yank, "The Hairy Ape," half symbol and half human being. The Potboilers have assembled an unusual cast for this occasion, which includes not only Mitchell Lewis, but the English actor, D'Arcy Corrigan, and Sylvia Fennington, lately with Doris Keane and the New York Theater Guild.

"SUNDOWN" SATURDAY

New Western Picture Follows "Mine With Iron Door"

"Sundown" will replace "The Mine With the Iron Door" on the Criterion Theater screen Saturday, according to advices from that theater.

"Sundown," the First National production from the story by Earl J. Hudson, chronicles in vivid and dramatic detail the passing of the Old West and the grim struggle of the cattle barons to stem the onrush of civilization, which would make it impossible for them to "run" their enormous herds. Woven into the theme is a romance of the West, which imbues the picture with an appeal which is irresistible.

The cast includes Bessie Love, Roy Stewart, Charlie Murray, Hobart Bosworth, Arthur Hoyt and others. Frances Marion and Kenneth B. Clark did the screen adaptation from the Hudson story and Laurence Trimble and Harry Hoyt directed.

NEW BURBANK MUSICAL SHOW MOVES RAPIDLY

A whirlwind of comedy and song describes the Burbank show this week. "I Know My Stuff," is the title, and Lee Bud Harrison and Jack Miller provide the laughs, while the chorus of Baby Dolls sing and dance the latest of jazz melodies, assisted by Lou Traveler and his jazz band.

"I Know My Stuff" was staged under the direction of Henry Rocquemore, who, in the short time that he has been with the Burbank, has produced some of the liveliest shows ever seen in this Main-street theater.

Young Singer is Successful in Debut Here

A program which reflected strongly the spirit of musical progress took place Monday evening at Ebell Auditorium, the hall being crowded to the door. Marguerite d'Aleria, pianist, presented Percy Riker, basso-Cantante, in recital. Mme d'Aleria acted as accompanist, and played three groups of well selected solos.

Mr. Riker represents that fine type of young American manhood which is striving to accomplish an artistic goal. No pretences are made that he is a finished artist but nevertheless he offered a program that would tax many well-studied singers. It is understood that Mr. Riker will soon leave for Europe to acquire his operatic repertoire.

Outlining his program, important numbers in Italian were Verdi arias from "Boccanegra" and "Ernani," Beethoven's "Natures Adoration," Mozart's "Figaro," aria, and numbers in German and English by Schubert, Lassen, Schumann, Tschaikowski and Spross.

Mr. Riker has an extraordinarily fine vocal organ, a most appealing personality, and he sustains the interest of his audience well. He should go far in his chosen profession. As yet his voice is not placed, and is at times rough, certain lapses from pitch were undoubtedly caused by these same faults and a suggestion of nervousness. But as a whole he made a most satisfactory impression upon his hearers—this broadly, is the most important thing he had to do in this particular event.

Mme. d'Aleria represents a type of pianist all too rare. She is devoted to her art because she loves it rather than from any especial desire to dazzle audiences. Her selections were, almost without exception, numbers of fine artistic value which are almost never heard. She also gave a group of Neo-Russian tone pictures, compositions commonly referred to as "modern" or "futuristic." The "youngest" of these numbers is 17 years old, yet we, as a public do not know them, compositions by such masters as Glazounow, Grodski, Scriabine (she performed the Prelude for the left hand alone exquisitely,) Koreshtshenko and Akimenko. Mme. d'Aleria herself is Hungarian and a pupil of Rosenthal and Moszkowski. Her pianissimo, phrasing, memorized accompaniments and expression are all commendable.

Numbers in larger form which she played included a Fugue and Prelude by Mendelssohn, Toccata, Burlesca and Gigue by Scarlatt-Bulow, and a group of Chopin and Liszt compositions.

DAY DREAM RUDELY SHATTERED BY FOOT

Vera Reynolds and Rod La Rocque play a very captivating scene with the background of gay beach novelties and aquatic sports. Light, frothy, with the love motif predominating, the scene in which they build a castle of sand is one to provide genuine heart interest and entertainment. But all scenes must have their period and in this cast the punctuation point is the foot of Julia Faye, destroying at one step the carefully wrought edifice of sand.

RADIO COMPETITION JUST MYTH AT EGAN'S

Much growling has been heard from theatrical managers of the effect of the radio on theater attendance and although no systematic evidence has been tabulated, it is being recorded that it did not in the least impair the chances of "White Collars" fulfilling a year's run at the Egan Theater, where it starts upon its forty-fifth week Monday evening, with interest apparently still at fever heat.

The clever and handsome young millionaire, who is too well bred to be snobbish, is still admirably exemplified in the person of Craig Ward, whose perfect sartorial equipment adds not a little conviction to his impersonation.

"MISSING DAUGHTERS" AT CAMEO SATURDAY

"Missing Daughters" will start a week's engagement at the Cameo Theater Saturday. Eva Novak, Eileen Percy, Pauline Starke and Claire Adams have the leading feminine roles. Rockliffe Fellowes has the part of the hero. The other masculine stars in the cast are Robert Edeson, Sheldon Lewis, Walter Long and Walt Whitman.

The plot revolves around the efforts of the United States Secret Service to break up a gang of vicious lounge lizards, who are taking advantage of imprudent flappers.

It is said to be a story of tense moments of great interest to the easy-going modern mother, as well as for her headstrong daughter.

NOVELTY SUBJECTS

A series of novelty dance subjects are to be made by Pathe Review, featuring Earnest Belcher dancers of this city. The first of these, "The Fantasy of the Dance," has already been completed and features Eleanore Flaig, one of the dancers trained by the local dancing master. Belcher is arranging the numbers for the films and is also supervising the filming of them. The first is said to be a distinct novelty and is soon to be shown in one of the downtown theaters.

TURKEYS FOR THANKSGIVING

Northern Market to Provide Supply

Dealers Careful Not to Flood Market

Prices Slightly Higher Than Year Ago

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PORTERVILLE, Nov. 25.—Turkey dealers who last year were caught with a large stock of the favorite bird the day before Thanksgiving when huge shipments of imported birds ruined the market and caused dealers to sustain a heavy loss, are endeavoring to play safe this year, according to Manager W. B. Roby of the Porterville Co-operative Poultry Association.

Dealers of both Los Angeles and San Francisco this season have followed the safer method of purchasing just sufficient stock for each day's sales, according to Manager Roby. In spite of this, he is of the opinion that housewives in both cities who at the last minute decide to feature turkey in their Thanksgiving dinner need have no fear of being able to secure a bird. He believes there will be plenty in storage to care for the demand.

The local and Tulare association today are giving 24 cents per pound for live birds, and are selling at 29 and 30 cents, while dressed birds are going at 35 cents per pound. Ranchers are reported getting 37 cents per pound dressed and delivered. Markets are retailing at 42 cents a pound dressed, while a year ago the price was 35 and 38 cents, sliding to a bottom price of 20 cents in the cities on Thanksgiving eve.

Shipments from the Porterville Poultry Association the last two days have totaled about 2000 pounds, and around 5000 pounds for the season. This is smaller than last year. Chief shipments have been made to Los Angeles, but Springville and other foothill sections have sent a good portion to San Francisco. There has been no activity from transient dealers recently. In the beginning such buyers gave as high as 28 cents per pound alive, but only until contracts previously signed for a given quota were completed. A number of Tulare county birds will be held over for the Christmas season. Locally the market is rather quiet.

Church Worker Dies in Home at Pasadena

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Nov. 25. — Mrs. Charles H. Morris, 144 El Nido street, a resident of this city for the last twenty-four years, and known throughout the city as a prominent church worker, died today, following an extended illness.

Mrs. Norris held the distinction of being the sole organizer of the St. Mark's Episcopal Church of this city. The first sessions of the church are said to have been held in a barn.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA BARBARA, Nov. 25.—Made the victim of an enraged captive timber wolf yesterday afternoon at the B. L. Webb place on Lameha avenue, J. E. Wheeler, 2514 Orella avenue, escaped without more serious injury than two badly lacerated hands and arms.

According to his story this morning Mr. Wheeler went into the wolf's pen. The animal became ferocious, leaped at the offending stranger, made two vicious snaps and tore away the backs of Mr. Wheeler's hands from the wrist to the knuckle bones.

Window Yeggs Steal Jewelry at Riverside

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

RIVERSIDE, Nov. 25.—Smashing a plate-glass show window of the Crowell Jewelry Store at 830 Main street shortly after midnight, robbers secured a considerable number of watches and rings.

Fred Hilbert, a local druggist, noticed the broken glass window as he was passing the store at 12:30 o'clock and informed the police. Capt. George Swanson immediately began an investigation. The first clue was a handkerchief near the store, evidently used by the robbers in wrapping up the object with which they broke a six-inch hole in the window.

A short time later Patrolman Coplen notified headquarters that at 12:30 o'clock he had noticed a new automobile with the curtains closely drawn, standing in the safety zone at Eighth and Main streets just north of the Crowell store.

As the officer moved toward the car it moved down the street. It stopped at Seventh and Main streets, where a man jumped out and inspected the Auto Club's road sign. He leaped into the car again and the automobile proceeded north on Main street at a high rate of speed.

Officers Coplen and Haas started in pursuit in a fast police car but were disappointed in an attempt to overhaul the bandit car on Colton avenue.

Oscar Crowell, proprietor of the store, was not able to make an estimate of the loss. The burglars, however, had taken all the watches and rings they were able to reach through the hole. The Crowell store was robbed in a similar manner about two years ago. Robbers broke the window early in the morning and robbed another jewelry store just across the street.

FAITHFUL SERVICE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

RIVERSIDE, Nov. 25.—It's Bill's birthday.

Such is the comment around the police station today as W. G. (Bill) Polcene, veteran desk sergeant, has passed the sixty-second milestone of his life and, incidentally, more than half of those years have been spent in the service of the city of Riverside.

"I don't seem to get old," said Bill, last night. "I feel as hearty as I did when I started working for the police department thirty-two years ago."

Polcene entered the department in 1892, when he was 30 years of age. He spent a year previous to that time as a member of the fire department. Bill was born in Wisconsin, and after living in Iowa, moved to Riverside in 1886, just as the Santa Fe was building the first railroad line into the city.

Bank at Santa Ana Victim of Clever Swindle

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA ANA, Nov. 25.—Accused of perpetrating one of the cleverest swindles ever brought to light in Santa Ana, H. Elmore Johnson, prominent tractor dealer of this city, was a fugitive from justice today.

Holding a warrant charging forgery, officials of the Sheriff's staff and private detectives are searching throughout Southern California for the man who had won high respect from fellow-citizens who did not know he previously had been paroled from Folsom prison.

After maintaining substantial banking connections here for two years, with deposits and withdrawals running into large figures, Johnson deposited a check for $11,650 drawn by a fictitious person in San Francisco, the authorities say. A cashiers' check for $8600 was obtained from the depository. This was cashed in Los Angeles, $1800 was paid to E. H. Crooke, his employer in Los Angeles. On learning of the worthless original check, search was begun for the dealer here.

His wife and 16-year-old daughter are aiding the authorities. Johnson was sentenced to Folsom from Stockton in 1912 on a charge of forgery. He was paroled in 1915.

SEEKS FINE FRUIT FOR SHOW DISPLAY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

RIVERSIDE, Nov. 25.—The best citrus fruit in Riverside county is to form the rack displayed by the Riverside County Chamber of Commerce in the National Orange Show at San Bernardino in February, and to this end F. A. Little, who will again be in charge of the display, is already looking the county over for choice specimens.

Oranges, lemons and grapefruit are to make up the large exhibit which will be even better than that which attracted wide attention last year. In last year's display there was no grapefruit and this is to be made one of the main features this year.

Little expects to go to the Coachella Valley next week to look over the citrus crops there, with a view to selecting choice grapefruit for the exhibit.

The county Chamber of Commerce will enter the rack display again this year and the Riverside city Chamber of Commerce will enter the feature exhibit.

FOUR AUTOS CRASH; TWO PERSONS HURT

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

GLENDALE, Nov. 25.—Four automobiles were overturned as the result of two crashes that occurred within a few minutes of one another Tuesday morning, when cars driven by Mrs. E. A. Brown, 632 West Wilson avenue, attempted to back out of his driveway and was struck by a car driven by E. Banbarra of Santa Clara.

In the former case Viola Van Pelt, 16 years of age, was cut about the face by flying glass, and in the other accident, Mrs. Pypes of Santa Clara had her shoulder wrenched. None of the other occupants of any of the four cars was injured.

Ranchers Send Representatives to Washington

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EL CENTRO, Nov. 25.—Officials of the Colorado River Control Club, composed of property owners of Imperial Valley anxious to obtain Federal legislation for the Boulder Dam without the all-American canal feature, have decided to send to Washington Roy D. McPherrin and Will S. Fawcett. Both men are successful farmers and have been active in water affairs of the valley for many years. McPherrin was for several years a director of the Imperial Irrigation District, and Fawcett has been president of Imperial Water Company No. 1 for nearly ten years.

The valley representatives are expected to leave for the capital soon in order to be on hand at the opening of Congress. The Control Club, according to announcement, has received assurances from government officials close to the present administration that a bill providing for construction of the dam in the Colorado River would meet with immediate success at the hands of Congress if it were not hampered by the all-American canal rider.

McPherrin and Fawcett have been requested to visit the capital in the hope of having the pending bill amended to eliminate the canal provision.

OFFICERS INJURED

Speeding Car Turns Turtle After Collision

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

INGLEWOOD, Nov. 25.—Deputy Constable A. H. Brainerd is in the Inglewood Hospital with a broken rib and badly lacerated limbs, and Constable G. W. Reynold's automobile is a total wreck as the result of a collision with an unidentified small coupe late last night when the officers were speeding to the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church in Lennox, where it was reported that the edifice was being stoned by a gang of hoodlums.

As the peace officers approached the intersection of Willow street, while speeding south on Market street, the other car darted across their path too late to avoid the crash. The constable's car turned completely over. Both its occupants were hurled from the machine to the pavement. The constable incurred only minor bruises and abrasions. When he and his deputy recovered themselves the other machine had disappeared.

BANKER SAYS AGENT WORKED FRAUD GAME

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ONTARIO, Nov. 25.—Charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, D. V. Peacock, Los Angeles real estate broker, with offices in the Marsh-Strong Building, was released on $1000 bail following his arraignment before Judge George R. Holbrook.

Peacock was arrested on complaint of Charles E. Mead, well-known Ontario banker, who specifically charges that through falsely representing himself to be the owner of a valuable ten-acre orange grove in Redlands the agent secured a 7200 loan from the banker and defrauded him of that amount. No date for hearing the case has been announced.

VALLEY COTTON GINS HANDLE GREAT CROP

CALEXICO, Nov. 25.—Ginning of cotton in Mexicali and Calexico for the season to date has reached 50,000 bales. In the last week 5439 bales were ginned at the six batteries of gins in both cities. This represents almost 50 per cent of the total cotton crop estimated for Imperial Valley this year, including the plantings on both sides of the international line.

The Clark gins at Mexicali continue in the lead in number of bales handled, the total last week being 2069, more than 500 bales over the next largest competitor. For the season the Clark gins have baled 18,319 bales.

CITY ASKS STATE FOR ASSISTANCE

Starts Suit to Prohibit Transfer of Water Rights to Irrigation District

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 25.—Sale of the Cuyamaca Water Company's properties to the La Mesa, Spring Valley and Lemon Grove Irrigation District is protested by the city of San Diego in a communication forwarded today by the City Council to the State Railroad Commission. The irrigation district recently voted $1,300,000 bonds for the purchase of the Cuyamaca holdings.

This latest move in the legal battle to determine prior rights to water in the San Diego River Valvel is expected to clarify to some extent a mass of claims and counter-claims which have been put forward recently by both sides.

The City Council adopted a resolution protesting to the State Railroad Commission against the application of the Cuyamaca Water Company for permission to transfer its system to the irrigation district, maintaining that the city owns the water of the river, and that the Cuyamaca company is attempting to transfer, by sale, water and water rights that rightfully belong to the municipality.

San Diego's interest in the proposed transfer is vital for the reason that $4,500,000 bonds were recently voted for the construction of a great dam at El Capitan, in the upper reaches of the San Diego River.

A long drawn-out legal battle is expected, which may halt the city's water development program, as it will not be possible to take definite steps toward construction of a dam until the city's title to the lands is cleared beyond question.

Pomona Judge Rules Against "Vice Squad"

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

POMONA, Nov. 25.—In a decision handed down today by Justice White, a severe blow was dealt the "morals squad" of the local police department.

S. M. Grimes, local hotel proprietor, was the defendant in a case in which his action in refusing to allow the local vice squad to enter a room in his hotel without a proper warrant led to his arrest ten days ago.

The police attempted to gain entrance to a room occupied by a couple whom the officers asserted were not man and wife. Grimes demanded that they produce a warrant or withdraw. The police withdrew and returned with a warrant a few hours later only to find that the couple had checked out of the hotel. Grimes was then arrested for resisting an officer.

In handing down his decision Judge White stated that it was his opinion that police had no authority to enter a room or house without a proper warrant and that officers had no legal right to enter after nightfall with a warrant for a lesser crime than that of felony.

NIGHT WATCHMAN AGAIN ON TRIAL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HANFORD, Nov. 25.—Manford Reed, formerly city night watchman, convicted last February of burglarizing the J. S. Williams Company store of this city, is being retried in the Superior Court here, the trial beginning this morning.

The contention made by Reed, that his confession of burglarizing several stores in this city was obtained by promise of immunity, was sustained by the Appellate Court and he was granted a new trial. Dist.-Atty. McKay is prosecuting the case, and J. C. C. Russell is defending Reed.

The case is one of great local interest, as Reed and A. E. Clow, the latter now serving sentence for the crime, were charged with taking more than $5000 worth of goods, mostly women's and men's clothing, from different local stores and caching them in and near this city.

WILD DEER VICTIM OF AUTO ACCIDENT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, Nov. 25.—A deer met sudden and violent death on the road from Piute to Bakersfield because it was not adept in the art of automobile dodging and ran in the same direction that Clarence Andrews of Piute steered his car to avoid striking the animal. The crash not only killed the deer, but literally lifted the light car Mr. Andrews was driving from the ground and damaged it to a considerable extent.

PROTEST BLUE LAW

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

POMONA, Nov. 25.—A petition requesting the City Council to take measures to repeal the blue laws, signed by a number of Pomonans was received and filed by the City Council this afternoon as being neither a necessary notice preliminary to the securing of signatures nor a sufficient petition for calling a special election. The petition was read by City Clerk Trotter.

A notice of intention to circulate a petition together with a copy of the proposed measure must first be filed with the City Clerk by those seeking the repeal, the Council announced. The petition bore the names of forty-six prominent Pomona business men.

HONORS FOR ASTRONOMER

Scientist at Mt. Wilson Awarded Medal from Philadelphia Institute

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Nov. 25.—Another Mt. Wilson scientist has been recognized and awarded distinguished honors for his work at the local observatory, accroding to word received in this city today. Dr. John August Anderson, renowned astronomer, received word that he had been awarded the Howard N. Potts medal, a distinguished honor, by the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia.

The Franklin Institute, named in honor of Benjamin Franklin, awarded Dr. Anderson the medal for the invention of a new form of seismograph, an instrument now used by astronomers all over the world, and for his improvements in the ruling of diffraction gratings.

Dr. Anderson will leave this city next week for Philadelphia where, at the January meeting of the institute, he will be officially presented with the medal. Dr. Anderson was associate professor of astronomy at Johns Hopkins University for eight years and has been on the staff of the Mt. Wilson Observatory since 1916.

The diffraction grating is one of the most powerful means of separating white light into primary colors. Thousands of parallel grooves are ruled on the surface of polished speculum metal which serves by the method of interference to produce the colors of the spectrum. Dr. Anderson had charge of the ruling engine built in Baltimore for a number of years and applied many improvements to it, including a driving screw which was practically free from air.

His invention of the new seismograph is an entirely new departure in methods of construction or instruments for recording earthquakes. Usually, it is said, earthquade recording machines are built heavy and cumbersome in order to have a great amount of inertia. Dr. Anderson's instrument is on the contrary light and inexpensive. It can be carried about and set up with very little trouble. It is briefly described as a fine tungsten wire suspended vertically, upon which is soldered a small metal weight for inertia. The weight is steadied by the action of a magnet. Any disturbance of the points of suspension due to earthquake movements will affect the wire. The movement of the wire can be recorded by photographing on a moving film a beam of light thrown into a mirror attached to the wire. This apparatus is considered one of the greatest contributions to science made in recent years.

While connected with the Mt. Wilson Observatory Dr. Anderson has handled and worked out many difficult problems in connection with the construction of a new ruling engine in the Pasadena laboratory. This is the largest ruling engine in the world today.

Franklin Institute of Philadelphia has for more than 100 years been one of the leading scientific societies in the United States. It has been particularly interested in the advancement of mechanical arts and has given its medals to the greatest American inventors.

DENIED PROBATION

Self-Styled War Hero Must Go To Prison

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, Nov. 25.—Norman Warsinske, a self-styled ex-service aviator, has taken a "nose dive" into San Quentin penitentiary for an indeterminate sentence. Warsinske will be sent to the "gray stone house up the bay" through order of Judge H. A. Piears, who has denied Warsinske's application for probation, after he had made confession to a charge of having obtained money under false pretenses.

Last summer, Warsinske was widely introduced into Bakersfield society. He was a conspicuous figure on the golf links. By word of mouth it was given out that he was an aviator of former Army service.

Later, Warsinske entered into an agreement to sell an airplane, presumably his own, to a Bakersfield man. The sale was completed for $300. Then it was learned that the airplane did not belong to Warsinske, but to Ross Peacock.

A complaint was brought against Warsinske and he was arrested. After his preliminary examination he was bound over to answer the charge in the Superior Court, where he entered a plea of guilty and asked for probation.

It is estimated that 200 cars of fancy navels will be shipped from Hemet this season.

Patrols Guard Verdugo Hills Against Five

GLENDALE, Nov. 25.—Fire patrols in the Verdugo Hills, which had been withdrawn after the recent heavy rains, which wet down the brush in the canyons, have been replaced by order of Chief P. J. Hayselden of the Angelus Forest Protective Association's Glendale unit, who took this course after a conference with County Forester Stuart J. Flintham.

The hot winds of the last few days have dried up whatever moisture was left from the rains and the danger of fires is again threatening. Three slight outbreaks have been extinguished by Flintham's men in the last three days, Chief Hayselden states, and two other outbreaks have been nipped by the Angeles Forest Protective men in North Verdugo Road and in the Montrose district this week.

Of the $5000 appropriated by the county several months ago to meet the cost of fire protection in the district north of Glendale sufficient remains to provide for patrols until the rains come, it is stated.

Ardent Wooing Leads Man to State Asylum

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VISALIA, Nov. 25.—His ardent, but long-distant wooing, caused an insanity charge to be brought against Lewis Lane, prominent rancher of the Farmersville district, which has been upheld by examining physicians and Lane will be taken to the State Hospital at Stockton by order of Superior Judge J. A. Allen.

Lane was arrested last week on complaint of Miss Evelyn Brundage of this city, who charged that he had annoyed her with his lovemaking for some time, most of this wooing being from a distance.

It is reported that the man dropped love missives on the lawn, indulged in numerous telephone attempts to reach the lady of his heart, wrote many letters and at one time forced his way into the home of Miss Brundage.

His sentence was pronounced yesterday by Judge Allen and it is expected Lane will be taken to Stockton tonight by a deputy from the Sheriff's office.

TRIO FAVORITE ON RADIO BILLS

Stations Improve Popular Taste for Music

"Shop Early" Program Given by Electric Company

Operatic Stars Back in Studio After Tour

BY CLAIRE FORBES CRANE

Even radio has its fashions! Nowadays a program does not seem complete without a trio of some kind. Infinitely more than we realize the broadcast stations of the world are subtly beginning to shape popular taste and create a demand for the highest type of each art. At present chamber music with its rich literature is very much to the fore. This is a twofold benefit. Our family obtains much enjoyment from selections which are new to them, and secondly, every musician who is a member of a quartet or trio adds greatly to his store of knowledge for there is nothing more stimulating both emotionally and intellectually.

Last night the Golden State Electric Company acted as fairy godmother and brought us a holiday gift in the form of an attractive program. As a slogan for the evening it was entitled "Shop Early" program. It presented for the first time over KHJ the Golden State Trio, composed of Dollo Sargent, pianist; Elizabeth Freshman, violinist, and Pauline Holmes, 'cellist. The Misses Sargent and Freshman are well known throughout the West, having entertained audiences at Pantages, Orpheum and leading hotels and cafes for several years. Miss Holmes was with the Wichita Symphony Orchestra for four years. The combination seemed well balanced and played a program of the lighter classics such as "Extase," by Ganne and Godard's "Canzonetta." Each of the trio contributed a solo which we are sure Radioland must have enjoyed.

OPERATIC STARS

The other two artists were Conchita Chaves and Senor Miguel Laris. These two operatic stars are back to Radioland after a successful tour. Last night they gave the exquisite "Love Duet" from "La Boheme" with poetic fervor and apparent knowledge of tradition.

The "Shop Early" slogan is something more than a joke. The Golden State Electric Company urged everyone, mothers, sisters, brothers, aunts, uncles, sweethearts and friends, to shop early.

In part, our godmother said: "To make and keep such a promise is no idle thing. Think of all the clerks, salespeople, street-car attaches, policemen, delivery men, truck drivers, messengers, taxi drivers and thousands of others who have to work almost every night and day during the week before Christmas. Why? Because you and I leave our shopping till the last minute, then hurry into the stores with an excited and cranky disposition to rush the clerks in every department through the last minutes of the day before Christmas." Shop early, radio family, let that be your slogan.

DOUBLE PROGRAM

All the radio fans who feel that no moment in life is worth anything when not arrayed in headphones must rejoice in the fact that Tuesday, for awhile, will bring us a double matinee program. Yesterday the first event was a Pacific Sta es Electric Company hour presenting the Sorority Six, composed of Dorothy Conant, 'cello, and manager; Evelyn Pickrell, violin; Mary Christine Albin, piano; Florence Sullivan, cornet, and Dorothy Pirie, clarinet, assisted by Florence Kitsmiller, soprano.

We feel certain that the sale of radios must be receiving a new stimulus through these attractive matinees. The Sorority Six are a group of gifted young people who are particular musical friends of ours. Yesterday afternoon they gave numbers which seemed to breathe genuine holiday spirit and cheer such as Gautier's "The Secret," the "Melody in F," by Rubinstein, two Spanish dances of Moszkowski, and others of like charm. Evelyn Pickrell gave as a violin solo Gardner's "Cane Break," done with the intriguing rhythm it demands. Florence Kitsmiller, soprano, possesses a warm, emotional voice tinged with more than a little dramatic quality and gave two songs, "I Love You Truly," by Carrie Jacobs Bond, and the lovely song of Renaldo Hahn, "Si Mes Vers Avaient Des Ailles."

KNOWS SECRET

The second hour of the afternoon brought Carolyn Pearson, popular lecturer, presented through the courtesy of the Southern California Music Company in one of her appreciation talks. Mrs. Pearson knows the great secret of speaking naturally in simple language with her audience in such a fashion that they thirst for more information. Yesterday as assisting artist she had Maurice La Vove, basso cantante. M. La Vove has been called a second Chaliapin and though this is a tremendous comparison for anyone to live up to we were very much impressed by his art. He has had virtually the same environment as his famous fellow-countryman, having studied at the same conservatory and possessing a similar repertoire. We are glad to announce that M. La Vove has opened a studio here, where he will accept pupils.

The noon hour brought Tommy Tibbetts and his Rendezvous Ballroom orchestra from Crystal Beach, Santa Monica. As usual, the roof was packed to listen to them. We hate to "play favorites," but we hope Tommy Tibbetts and his men realize in what esteem we hold them and how grateful we are for their weekly visit.

PROFESSOR TALKS

The children's hour presented Prof. Walter Sylvester Hertzog in his unique stories of American history. The king of the harmonica and auto harp, Louis F. Klein, was with us and surprised us again with the effects he obtained from his tiny instruments. Betsy Ann Hisle, screen juvenile, gave several clever readings and we wish the radio family could see her exquisite blonde beauty.

Although Uncle John heard the voice of Queen Titania last evening, it took him a little while to locate her. He finally discovered, however, that she was securely perched on his shoulder. Upon being found, the fairy queen assumed her earth child form and seated herself in front of the microphone.

When the Sandman arrived, a few minutes later, the fairy queen called the Moonbeam Express to the studio and the three friends climbed aboard and took a trip to the magic fountain, which is located in the courtyard of the fairy queen's palace in Fairyland.

ADVERTISING CLUB GIVEN WATCHWORD

"Love of humanity is not incompatible with love for one's country, but rather does it enhance one's appreciation of the land of his nativity while at the same time saving him from that spirit of narrow nationalism too often associated with patriotism."

This sentiment was voiced by W. T. Gilliland, superintendent of the Plaza Community Center, in his address before the Advertising Club yesterday at the Biltmore.

"Co-operation is something more than a word; it is a growing and glorious fact in the social, business and political affairs of the world," said Mr. Gilliland. "Man is coming to learn that the best way to serve himself is to serve others and to co-operate with his fellow-men for mutual benefits. Fear and distrust have ever been the factors which have prevented co-operation by individuals and disrupted those organizations formed for the best interests of society."

Another speaker was J. X. Kennelly, who spoke on "Co-ordination of Direct With Other Forms of Advertising," and who said that mail advertising is not competitive, but co-operative with all other legitimate methods of salesmanship. A musical program was given by Miss June Purcell and Ken Wilson.

F. H. McMahon, chairman of the day, introduced by Irving Smith, who presided in the absence of President A. D. Smith, announced that the chairman next Tuesday will be Charles Estey and that the principal speaker will be Dr. Ford A. Carpenter, head of the meteorological department of the Chamber of Commerce. C. M. C. Raymond, secretary of the club, announced that the speaker at the round-table meeting next Friday at noon, at the Marine Cafe, will be W. B. Peters.

THIEVES GET JEWELRY

Woman Reports Valuable Gowns Stolen from Shop

Jewelry valued at $1165 was obtained by burglars who forced their way into the home of F. B. Burns at 840 South St. Andrews Place through a rear door early yesterday morning. Hector Estreoror was another early morning burglar victim. His home at 2905 South Hobart Boulevard was entered by a pass-key burglar, who left with $2300 in jewelry.

Mrs. R. Tulchiner, owner of a women's apparel shop at 345 South Western avenue, made a supplementary report to police yesterday on her losses to burglars who got into the place Monday. She reported the theft of $2000 in dresses.

Merely Preparatory

"I have been told," said the football player to his fiancee, "that you have been engaged before; that I am not the first." The intensity of his passion made her shudder, but she quickly recovered herself. "And is it not proper," she demanded, "before playing a match to try a few practice games with scrub teams?"—[Boston Transcript.

Possibilities in Electro-Chemistry

Perhaps the most promising field for inventors at this time is electro-chemistry since it discovers means of improving and cheapening the production of much that ministers to the comfort of mankind. It is only within the last twenty-five years or so that this has become a distinct science. Inventors who are both expert chemists and expert electricians will in the next fifty years do much for the world. At present educated electro-chemists are comparatively few in number, and the young students of today will find room not only at the top of the ladder, but at the middle.

HEATH ASKS 400 MORE OFFICERS

Police Declared Helpless to Cope With Situation

Patrolmen Taken From Beats to Aid School Tots

The City Council today will receive from Police Chief Heath, bearing the approval of the Board of Police Commissioners, a request for an appropriation of $385,950 to be used in adding 400 men to the Police Department for traffic duty, and for one captain, three lieutenants and eight sergeants for the new Newton-street police substation, which will be placed in service early in January. The increase in traffic accidents and deaths, the chief pointed out in his report, made it necessary for a real increase in the traffic division, which is to be placed under direct command of a deputy chief of police. The chief in his report said:

"I have made a careful survey of police problems of this city and I find that traffic has increased in the last year; that traffic accidents are increasing in proportion to the increase in motor vehicles; that for the first ten months of this year 199 persons were killed in automobile accidents; that 6899 persons were injured, some of them permanently.

"Division commanders report that they are powerless to cope with the situation and at the present time in the outlying districts all patrolmen available are assigned to traffic duty and to school intersections. For instance, in the University Division there are several periods during the day when there is not a single man patrolling a beat in that vast territory, and like conditions exist in all except Central Division.

"We have not sufficient officers to cover the school crossings, although we daily are receiving frantic appeals from teachers, the Parent-Teacher Associations and parents, asking that something be done to afford some protection to the children who are required to cross our main thoroughfares going to and from school.

"We believe that the first duty of a police department is to protect life, and therefore, in so far as we have been able assignments have been made to traffic duty. However, a survey of our crime charts show that crime, such as burglary, robbery, etc., is on the increase.

"With our police force reduced to a skeleton and in some instances absolutely no patrol service, we cannot wonder that this condition exists, and it is very evident that as the winter goes on it will increase.

"True, the City Council has made provision for 150 additional men on January 1, and another 150 on April 1, yet this increase does not meet the increase in population and the increase in police problems. The entire increase of the police department for the present year could easily be absorbed in the traffic division and would just about meet our present requirements. This is not a question of dollars and cents but is one involving human life and the safety and comfort of the citizens of this city."

Chief Heath called attention in his report to the fact that burglary insurance rates will be increased in Los Angeles 50 per cent on January 1.

The appropriation of $385,650 will finance the addition of 400 traffic officers to the force beginning January 1 and continuing until July 1, when the new fiscal year begins. The Chief also recommended that the proposed increase in the number of automatic traffic signals be made 200 instead of 100. The traffic squad under the deputy chief of police, the Chief said, will be composed of specially trained men, and the Chief's appropriation request included $2000 for the employment of civilian traffic experts as lecturers at the Police School.

Seven More for Realty Board's Governing Body

An increase in the number of members of the governing board of the Los Angeles Realty Board from fourteen to twenty-one was provided for by a constitutional amendment adopted yesterday at a noon meeting of the board of the Elite.

Following the meeting the annual election of the new governors was conducted at the realty board offices on Flower street. Fourteen new members were chosen to serve during the coming year.

Hugh R. Pomeroy, secretary of the Regional Planning Commission was the principal speaker at the luncheon meeting. He outlined the work already done by the commission and the program on which it now is working. Support of the realty men in the accomplishment of the commission's aims was asked.

CHEST DRIVE ENDS TODAY

Committee Will Pick Up Odds and Ends Left by Workers; Million in Cash is Received

The army of 12,000 workers in the Community Chest campaign will conclude their efforts as an organization at the meeting at campaign headquarters, 911 South Grand avenue, today, which marks the fifteenth day of the drive.

The amounts reported at yesterday's meeting brought the grand total up to $2,373,861, which is $148,547 less than the goal. A committee will be appointed at today's session to continue the process of gathering up the odds and ends until the full amount of $2,522,408 is obtained.

With only a trifle over 6 per cent of the goal still to be raised, the executive committee hopes to complete the work still to be done within a day or two. Four responses, pledging $1000 each, had been received up to yesterday to the 200 telegrams appealing for additional contributions sent out Sunday.

R. W. Pridham, president of the Community Welfare Federation, stated that members of the committee appointed today would begin a systematic follow-up canvass of recipients of these messages, which he was confident would result in reducing materially the amount still outstanding.

Other members of the committee will continue the work of solicitation, devoting their efforts particularly to individuals who are known to have thus far failed to make contributions. A considerable amount still is expected from the establishments division, where the labor of obtaining final returns has involved unusual difficulties owing to the multitude of contributors and the complexities connected with the checking over of payrolls in the great number of instances where employees have elected to have their contributions deducted from their weekly or monthly wages.

The total number of subscriptions now stands at 179,289, which is almost 20,000 in excess of the original estimates as to the number of subscribers. It is probable that this number will be increased to 185,000 before the work of the campaign is completed. Added to this number will be something like 100,000 school children, so that the total number of subscribers in the end probably will represent almost a fourth of the entire population of Los Angeles.

Commenting on the campaign and the results thus far achieved, Mr. Pridham observed that the large number of cash contributions had been a matter of much gratification to the executive committee.

"We have on hand at this time almost $1,000,000 in cash," he said. "This means that about 40 per cent of the contributers have paid their subscriptions in cash rather than choose the quarterly payment plan. This will reduce materially the expense involved in the collection of outstanding amounts and will give us that much more to devote to the work for which the Community Chest was organized."

LAST RITES CONDUCTED FOR PASTOR

Following an impressive ceremony yesterday afternoon at Pierce Brothers' chapel, the body of Rev. William Myron Brooks, 89-year-old educator and minister, was taken to Redlands to be placed in the family lot in the Redlands Cemetery. The services at the chapel were attended by many old-time friends of the deceased, as well as countless students and alumni of the Cumnock School of Expression, operated by his daughter, Miss Helen Brooks, and where Dr. Brooks presided as chaplain for many years. Dr. Carl S. Patton, pastor of the First Congregational Church of this city, gave an eulogy of Dr. Brooks, who for years had been closely allied with the growth of the Congregational Church, as well as educational endeavors, not only in this city but in other parts of the country.

Dr. Brooks died Saturday, following an operation, and thus brought to an end a long life crowded with activity. A graduate of Oberlin College in 1857, Dr. Brooks took his degree as a doctor of divinity at that same institution and became president of Tabor College in Tabor, Iowa, in 1866. For several years he was president of the Iowa State Teachers' Association, and was at one time a member of the Iowa House of Representatives. He was also president of the Tabor and Northern Railway for several years.

Dr. Brooks was a Congregationalist, and was twice moderator of the Iowa State Congregational Association, and for a time served as a trustee of the National Council of Congregational Churches. He was the author of several books.

Present at yesterday's services were four of the six children of Dr. Brooks, Miss Helen Brooks, director of the Cumnock School; Miss Anna P. Brooks, teacher of the art department at the University of California, Southern Branch; Raymond C. Brooks, professor at Pomona College, and E. W. Brooks of Los Angeles. Mrs. George E. Snow of Massachusetts, and Miss Edith Brooks, who is in England, were unable to be here.

Peete Murder Trial Witness Given Divorce

A strange fatality follows the associates of Mrs. Mildred Feltz, it developed at the hearing of her suit for divorce before Judge Summerfield yesterday. They tend to land in San Quentin.

Several years ago she was working as a dressmaker with her mother in the home of a Los Angeles woman. While she was so employed the body of a man lay hidden in the basement beneath her. A little later her employer was arrested. She was Mrs. Louise Peete, who was convicted of the murder of Jacob Denton.

At the time Mrs. Feltz's name was Mildred Tilton. She was a witness at the trial of Mrs. Peete.

After that was all over she married Arthur Feltz, August 19, 1922. Her honeymoon was broken up by the arrest of the bridegroom three weeks later on a burglary charge. Records introduced by Attorney S. S. Hahn, counsel for Mrs. Feltz, showed that Feltz was convicted and sent to San Quentin. She was awarded a decree on the ground that her husband had been convicted of a felony.

Woman Gets Suspended Sentence In Delinquency Case

Floyd Byrd and Mrs. Nannie Bennett, charged with contributing to the delinquency of Mrs. Bennett's 10-year-old daughter, entered pleas of guilty yesterday when their case was called for trial before Judge Archbald of Juvenile Court.

Mrs. Bennett was sentenced to serve one year in the County Jail, but the court suspended the sentence on her promise of future good behavior. Judge Archbald also ordered she is not to have the custody of her child until she proves to the satisfaction of the court that she is capable of raising the girl in proper environment. The court set the 28th inst. as the day for passing sentence on Byrd.

The pair were asserted to have occupied the same room at 1132 Spence street and to have sold intoxicating liquor in the presence of the child.

STREET-CAR REROUTING IS FAVORED

Board Adopts Engineer's Report Urging Removal of Figueroa Trolley Lines

The elimination of street cars from Figueroa street to Flower street, which was recommended in the Major Traffic Street Plan, adopted by the voters at the 4th inst. election, was provided for in a report of Chief Engineer Marsh of the Board of Public Utilities and adopted by the board. The report said:

"One of the recommendations in the Major Traffic Street Plan was to eliminate all car lines from Figueroa street and the rerouting of the yellow cars on Flower street.

"Now that Fifth street has been graded and, I understand, the contract let for the paving from Grand avenue to Flower street, the way is open for the rerouting of the cars of the University line via Flower street and Fifth street instead of Figueroa and Sixth streets as at present.

"In order to do this, it will be necessary to request the Los Angeles Railway to apply for franchise on Fifth street from Flower to Olive and on Flower from Tenth to Sixth streets.

"The contract for paving on Fifth street between Grand avenue and Flower street was let without any provision for street railway. If the Los Angeles Railway will apply for this franchise and it is granted, it will be necessary for arrangements to be made with the contractors to provide for these tracks. This could undoubtedly be done by the railway company agreeing to allow the contractor to pave between the tracks as soon as laid. On this account, however, I would recommend that the application for franchise be requested at as early a date as possible in order that arrangements may be made before the pavement is actually laid.

"This change in rerouting would permit the abandonment of track on Figueroa from Sixth to Washington, and also would permit of the rerouting of the Crown Hill cars via Third and Flower, as at present, to Fifth instead of Sixth street, to Hill, north on Hill, as at present. This would do away with two curves at Olive.

"The University line would operate via Washington, as at present, to Flower instead of Figueroa, and to Fifth over new tracks between Tenth and Fifth streets and east on Fifth street, doing away with two curves on Olive and all cars on Figueroa street.

"The 'D' line would operate as at present and until Fifth street is opened from Flower into Sixth at Beaudry, at which time it could be rerouted over Fifth street. In an informal discussion with Messrs. Hill and Reccapee in regard to rerouting, this change was mentioned and they agreed that it would be to the betterment of the service."

KINCAID AND LEE ARE NOMINATED BY POST

INTEREST IN HOLLYWOOD LEGION COMMANDER RACE, INTENSE

Clarence Kincaid and R. R. Lee were the candidates nominated for commander of the Hollywood Post, American Legion, at the regular meeting of the organization last Monday night in the clubrooms on El Centro avenue. The annual election will be on the night of December 8, when officers will be chosen for the coming year.

Starrett Ford, Joe Weston, Col. L. Bennett and Col. George Byram were nominated for the three posts as vice-commanders. Walter Snyder, Dr. Roen, John Darrah, Earl Myron, C. F. Reynolds, Jack Allan, Chester Cotton, Col. Kerwin, Dr. Broadbent, Ted Duncan, Steve Hall and H. Alber are to run for the six vacancies on the executive board.

Owing to the intense interest which has developed among the ex-service men in the management of the Hollywood Legion boxing stadium since the passage of the amendment legalizing ten and twelve-round boxing bouts, it is expected that the election will be hotly contested.

COUNT CHANGES NO CANDIDATES

County's Turnout at Polls is 73 Per Cent

Coolidge's Total Lead Over La Follette 182,426

Recount Reveals Ballots of 312 Absence

The returns of the election of the 4th inst., were canvassed yesterday by the Board of Supervisors, and the few missing precincts from the semiofficial count and the absent voters included. These made no changes in the order of any of the candidates.

A total of 312 absent voters' ballots were counted. The cost of arrangements for handling these was several thousand dollars. The total vote for the Presidential electors in the county was 479,905, approximately 73 per cent of the county's registration. President Coolidge received 299,675 votes; Davis, 33,584; La Follette, 117,249, and the Prohibition electors, 6997. Thus the President led La Follette by 182,426 votes.

Four Arrested; Liquor Seized in Hollywood Raid

Hollywood police, in a raid on a house at 5333 Santa Monica Boulevard early yesterday morning, arrested Earl Rhonemus, 40 years of age, and confiscated a large still, twenty gallons of moonshine liquor, fifty gallons of mash and a complete outfit for manufacturing and bottling whiskey. Rhonemus was charged with possession of liquor and with apparatus for manufacturing liquor.

The raid, made under the direction of Sergt. L. S. C. Nelson, was followed by a visit to a house at 1141 Gower street, where George Broadhurst, 40, was arrested and charged with selling liquor.

Two other arrests for liquor law violations were made by Detective Lieutenants Trosper and Taylor when they stopped M. J. Miles, 31 years of age, 308 Boyle avenue, as he was driving on Hollywood Boulevard. He was arrested and charged with transporting liquor.

William Hunter, 39, of 858 South Main street, who was riding with Miles, was also arrested on a similar charge. Police say they found liquor in Miles's possession and on the seat of the car by Hunter.

Keppel Denies He Seeks State School Office

Reports from Sacramento that Gov. Richardson is investigating his past political record and affiliations were passed off with a laugh yesterday by Superintendent of Schools Keppel upon his return to his office after a two-week illness.

"Gov. Richardson must be smoking a strong pipe these days," Mr. Keppel commented. "I don't know anything about Will Wood's political future and I have no political ambitions of my own. Personally I am altogether unconcerned by any investigation Gov. Richardson may wish to make of my past. If he wants to smoke up, it might as well be on me as anyone else."

The reports from Sacramento were in the form of rumors that Mr. Wood would not be a candidate again for the office of State Superintendent of Schools and that Mr. Keppel would seek the office at the next election.

PLEA FOR BASEBALL DIAMONDS RENEWED

A renewal of the request for space at Exposition Park for six baseball diamonds was submitted to the City Council yesterday by the Playground Commission, backed up by representatives of the Rotary Club, 125 amateur baseball teams and other organizations. The six baseball diamonds now in use are to be eliminated in order to build a wide paved entrance to the Coliseum. Action in the matter was deferred by the Council until it can be determined whether or not additional diamonds can be provided at Griffith and other parks, so that a large financial outlay will not be necessary.

WIFE STATES COACH PRACTICED ON HER

Leland C. McAuley, the athletic coach at Pasadena High School, kept in training by home work, practicing upon his wife, according to the divorce suit of Mrs. Claire Pauline McAuley, filed yesterday. She declared he struck her and tore her clothing. Community property valued at $7750, including a $250 dog, was listed by Mrs. McAuley.

BEADS CLEW IN BEACH MURDER

Sheriff Intensifies Study of Footprints on Sand

Purchase of Revolver by Sailors Checked

Somewhere in Southern California the woman possessor of a string of black onyx beads might be able to throw light on the mystery surrounding the murder of Archie L. Haverstick, Los Angeles construction foreman, whose body, with a .38-caliber bullet in its brain, was found about two miles from Serra Sunday.

Another search of the car in which Haverstick left Los Angeles Friday night, supposedly for San Diego, resulted yesterday in the finding of the beads. The theory of Sheriff Jernigan of Orange county that a woman, or women, was with Haverstick on Saturday night, the night of the killing, is strengthened in his mind by the finding of the adornment.

STUDIES FOOTPRINTS

Mrs. Alice Tate, 717 East Twenty-seventh street, with whom Haverstick had been living, said the beads were not hers. Jernigan now is giving more thought to footprints observed near the car. He said one was of a small woman's foot, another of a woman somewhat larger and a third those of a man. They led from the car to the sand near the sea and then in the general direction of the place where the body was found, half a mile away. Further traces of them were obliterated, but between where they left off and the body were found another man's footprints, sunk more deeply in the sand, as if a heavy load were carried.

Whether three sailors who bought a .38-caliber revolver in a Redondo hardware store Saturday afternoon had anything to do with the murder is another of the many problems Sheriff Jernigan is trying to solve.

Three sailors, some weeks ago, were reported by Haverstick's sister, Mrs. Irene Harder, to have attempted to kidnap Donald, 4-year-old son of Haverstick and Elfrieda Decie, from the child's home with Mrs. Harder and Haverstick's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Haverstick, 219 East Maryland avenue, Hawthorne.

SAILOR NOT FOUND

Miss Decie, who is said to have lived several years with Haverstick, married Elmer Christensen, said to be a sailor aboard the U.S.S. Arctic. Christensen was one of the three sailors who were seen around the Haverstick home, Mrs. Harder said. She said he and her brother had had trouble over the woman.

Sheriff Jernigan has redoubled his efforts to locate Christensen, but has not been able to do so. The Sheriff learned that when the three sailors called at the Redondo hardware store two went inside to buy the weapon, while the third remained in an automobile outside. The third later went in the store to tell his companions to hurry, "because here comes a cop."

ON WAY TO SAN DIEGO

Haverstick, according to Mrs. Tate, was on his way to San Diego on "some kind of business" when he was killed. Sheriff Jernigan said he will be able shortly to ascertain whether Haverstick's car went through immigration authorities' lines at Serra, La Jolla or Oceanside and also how many occupants were in the car. Haverstick, so far as Mrs. Tate knows, was traveling alone.

Detective Lieutenants Oker and Condaffer of Los Angeles seized Haverstick's trunk in Mrs. Tate's rooms and are holding it in police headquarters for the Orange county Sheriff, who said he may come here today to examine its contents.

That Haverstick had just before leaving for San Diego no premonition of the fate in store for him is evidenced by the fact that he was arranging for a Thanksgiving feast with Mrs. Tate, P. C. Haverstick, a brother, 1106 West Seventy-seventh street, said.

Funeral services for Haverstick will be conducted in the mortuary of Hawthorne Undertaking Company, Hawthorne, this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will take place in Inglewood Cemetery. The body was brought from Serra to Hawthorne Monday night.

WEST COAST CRANBERRY WINS FAVOR

Heralding the success of a new agricultural industry on the Pacific Coast is the news that more than sixty carloads of cranberries from the bogs of Washington and Oregon will be consumed in Los Angeles during the holiday season this year. Heavy shipments of the popular sauce berry are arriving daily at Los Angeles Harbor from the Pacific Cranberry Exchange, Astoria, Or., consigned to Charles Milne, local produce broker. The product, according to Mr. Milne, is superior to cranberries from the East and finds ready sale on the wholesale market here.

The Pacific Cranberry Exchange, Mr. Milne says, is a marketing organization for 96 per cent of the cranberry growers in both Washington and Oregon who have extensive bogs at the mouth of the Columbia River. This year, due to favorable climatic conditions, a heavy crop of fine quality berries is being harvested and markets have been developed for the product in all the principal cities of the Pacific Coast and Western Canada, but according to the local broker, Los Angeles is the heaviest buyer, taking over half the crop this year.

With the extensive development of the northwestern bogs, Mr. Milne declares that local markets will be independent of eastern cranberry producers in a few years. Heretofore Los Angeles markets have been supplied from the bogs of Cape Cod and Wisconsin.

Ruth Roland upon her recent return from New York was fascinated by this new 1925 Studebaker Model Big Six Five-Passenger Coupe. "A true luxury in every detail," says Miss Roland. This coupe and many other new models of Studebaker may be seen at any of the four display rooms of Paul G. Hoffman Company.

Clothes and accessories that contribute to man's smart appearance were the topic of conversation at a dinner party at the Beverly Hills Hotel the other evening, and the exclusive shops of Mullen & Bluett were conceded to be truly authentic in every detail concerning the latest in men's attire. The garments shown here suggest a few of the recent importations received by Mullen & Bluett.

According to well-informed rumor, Clarence Brown, the most promising director to bob up during the last five years, is plotting to make a screen version of "The Plastic Age"—another flapper story.

He Started It

In the next world, I hope that St. Peter does not visit upon F. Scott Fitzgerald as dire punishment as he really deserves. He is the wretch who started all this flapper fiction.

Flapper Stories

Personally, although I am a glutton for punishment, I couldn't stand another picture about the wickedness of the "younger generation."

These stories are not about anything. The big thrill in the first three reels is where the reckless young thing shows her garters. In Reel Five she drinks a cocktail, and in Reel Forty-six (anyhow, it seems that long) she decides that, after all, the quiet boy with the horn glasses and the regular job, and not the hellish cocktail shaker with the black mustache, is the one she truly loves.

NOTHING

My idea of a thrilling evening is not watching a lot of infantile piffle about a half-baked boy, who has to get the money from papa to pay the taxicab, and his desperate romance with a girl-child still in boarding school.

Oh, Mr. Brown!

The reason we should take it "hard" as coming from Mr. Brown is that he has just finished the best picture I have seen for a year; and it's a story about grown-up people—a tragedy of middle age.

The Universal executives have named it "Smouldering Fires"; but I can't believe they will stick to anything as stupid and maudlin as that.

Unless I am much mistaken, it will make two new reputations—for Malcolm McGregor and Laura La Plante.

Pauline Frederick and Tully Marshall have long since won their spurs, but neither of them has done anything finer.

In the work of all four of these artists there is a quiet sincerity—a supreme naturalness that makes the performance delightful—and tremendous.

"Westerns" Again

It is significant that, at the recent film convention held by Paramount in New York, the name of Zane Grey was cheered every time it was mentioned.

"Westerns" are going to be bigger than ever. And this is as it should be. The real story of the western border is the most dramatic chapter in the history of any nation and any people.

Only I imagine that this new crop of western stories will be along the line of "The Covered Wagon" and not the type of western with the English dude and Alkali Ike who shot 'em from the hip. They are going to be the real stories of the real West.

A Forbidden Tune

Anne Cornwall's husband tried to warn me from the doorway while I was playing "Garry Owen" on her piano with one finger. But it was too late.

"Don't play that darn tune around here," said the irate Anne.

His regiment was the Seventh Cavalry—Custer's old regiment wiped out in the fight at the Little Big Horn. The regimental tune was "Garry Owen."

"We had just been married," said Miss Cornwall, "and I was a romantic bride. It was almost our first day in our new home; we were getting used to our new apartment in New York—and to each other—when some one passed along the street whistling 'Garry Owen.' In about two shakes the blushing bride was alone.

"My new husband tore down stairs without his hat and was gone for hours. When he finally returned, he came dragging into our apartment three roughnecks, who were lit to the eyes; they were all roaring out 'Garry Owen'—each according to his own notion of the tune and all different.

"It seems they were troopers on furlough from the Seventh Cavalry. I've never heard 'Garry Owen' since without bristling."

Hoot Mon!

Miss Cornwall has returned to the screen lately, after a protracted absence. Just at present she is playing opposite Douglas MacLean.

She was the only touch of heather needed to make it unanimous. The Douglas MacLean studio has more Scotchmen than Edinburgh.

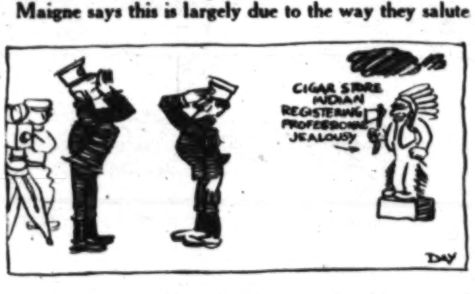
Screen Army Men

I asked Maigne why it is that actors playing Army officer parts on the screen never look like the real thing—unless like Von Stroheim they have "been there."

Even Ben Lyon, who is one of the very best of the young ones, wasn't, in "Lily of the Dust," in the least like the young German Uhlan officers I used to see on Unter den Linden during the war.

Maigne says this is largely due to the way they salute on the screen, and the way they stand—this ram-rod carriage.



CIGAR STORE INDIAN REGISTERING PROFESSIONAL JEALOUSY DAY

A salute, on the part of an army officer, is a casual part of the job, done casually. On the screen they usually salute as though they were Napoleon ordering the Old Guard to charge at Waterloo. No army officer tries to stand erect; his spine has been trained that way; he just stands.

There is, however, something beyond this—in spite of Maigne's theory. There is something in the eyes. For instance, when you see Pershing on the screen, he never seems to be looking from his eyes as a civilian looks; he always has an air of definite finality; an air of surveying with his eyes. A glance that takes the main facts for granted, but looks to see if buttons are in place.

A Chinaman's Eyes

It is because of the eyes that a white man never is completely successful in the part of a Chinaman.

It's not the slant eyes; it's the manner of looking.

A Chinaman sees without looking. A white man's glance always has the effect of going out to meet the object at which he looks; the Chinaman's glance waits for it to come.

Mabel Comes Back

Mabel Normand is coming back to the screen in the very near future.

Which is another case of things as they should be.

No girl ever lived in the world with the same fondness for putting her worst foot forward and always getting into the wrong kind of limelight; but Mabel has real genius.

She is one of the very few creative minds in the history of pictures. I seldom see a girl in a comedy who is not stealing Mabel's "stuff." She made the ruts that most of them travel in.

According to my notion, the place in "Susanna" where Mabel walked along the dusty road and sat down on the hot rock absolutely stands alone as comedy. Mabel has screen discretion, brains and whimsical originality and the sure, certain touch of the finished expert.

Ouch! And Also—Help!!

My dear Harry Carr:

Have just read what you said in reference to the General Federation of Women's Clubs and how they failed to support "Boy of Mine" during the biennial convention—"but stood in line to see Gloria Swanson in 'Manhandled,' which was a rival attraction."

So I take my typewriter in hand to reply—and say, I wish I could throw the darn thing at you! To think that you should make such a misstatement. (If I wasn't a reformed newspaper woman I would write that last word with but three letters.)

YOU'RE TO BLAME BECAUSE "ABRAHAM LINCOLN" WAS A FLOP!
GRACE FRYE
GENTLEMAN CITIZENRY OF LOS ANGELES.

In the first place, the failure of "Boy of Mine" was due to the men who presented the picture to the public, and the manner in which it was publicized, not to the women who tried only through the efforts of one club to "put it over." That one club being the Cosmos. Then, with continued bad business management, the men decided to show this really fine picture during the biennial, thinking that women attend conventions, as do men, to be amused.

But not so, Harry Carr.

For those 6000 women delegates had every minute of convention time filled by schedule, and were pledged diligently to attend for the purpose of taking back the convention's every message to the clubs they represented. That is why not a woman was able to attend any entertainment outside of that provided at the convention. Perhaps many of the husbands who accompanied them might have patronized the aforesaid Gloria Swanson picture, I don't know.

And so I say it is a shame to blame the women for the failure of this picture, financially. I have not as yet heard of even one club of men that has tried in the least to help this picture. Have you?

Why don't you mention what the women have recently done to support the picture, "Abraham Lincoln"? Another very fine picture which was made by men, distributed and exhibited by men, but not noticeably supported by men.

The motion-picture department of the Los Angeles district, California Federation of Women's Clubs, unanimously approved this film. So we worked with the Criterion management and one night packed the theater at a showing of "Abraham Lincoln." We distributed 2500 invitations, we featured George Billings at several club programs. And have been assured that we continued to talk and talk loudly at the box office. Better still, through this department, we have turned over several requests for the booking of this picture in outside towns.

Not much, of course, considering what we can do when we are better educated and trained. But how I wish the Kiwanis, Rotarians, C. of C. or any organization of men would show us how to do something more purposeful.

But gladly and humbly would I, as chairman of the motion-picture department of this Los Angeles district, C. F. W. C., sit at their masculine feet to learn how to do something more worth while.

So accept this fact, most capable and critical Harry Carr: We are earnestly trying to live up to our slogan "Make the Best Pictures Pay Best"—not by criticism, but by selection and approval. And will be appreciative of any constructive criticism from organizations of men having the same ideals.

Sincerely yours,

GRACE FRYE,

Chairman Motion Pictures, Los Angeles District,
California Federation of Women's Clubs.

The Transformation of Mother

Louise Dresser has a very definite appeal in maternal characters, and it goes without saying that these characters always appear quite young in their maturity.

Myrtle Stedman was one of the first actresses in the present film era to play a mother who radiated something of the bloom of youth and she has done such roles very consistently.

In "Sinners in Silk" and other recent films, Hedda Hopper has been identified with mother portrayals. Left—To Esther Ralston belongs the unique distinction of being chosen as Mrs. Darling in "Peter Pan."

IN THE PAST mothers on the screen have often looked a great deal like grandmothers. But no longer.

The rules are entirely changed in most recent pictures. In fact, some film ingenues, even, are now portraying mothers.

Better still are the new traits in mother interpretations being developed by the maturer actresses.

Myrtle Stedman and Louise Dresser are among those to come into prominence. Miss Stedman, in fact, has been doing very true-to-life and modern mothers ever since "The Famous Mrs. Fair." In fact, she almost introduced them.

Miss Dresser's most notable success has been "The City That Never Sleeps." Hedda Hopper, too, looks just about as young as some of her screen daughters.

"SALVATION HUNTERS"

The opening scenes, for example, do not disclose characters and players, but things and conditions—the city, factories, a sort of panorama of industry and of life, and finally the place where these meet the sea, with a view, by turns, of driftwood, docks, a dredger, the huge shovel swinging through the air: finally men—not men themselves, but their curious, distorted, wavering reflections in the murky, muddy water of a harbor.

If there has ever been impressionism in pictures there certainly is that impressionism in the opening of "The Salvation Hunters." The effect of the sequence of these glimpses of life as it may be found where the wheels grind heavily and relentlessly, and where romance even seems an ebbing illusion, is as unforgettable as anything that I have looked at in a long time. There is an insistent rhythm in the motion depicted on the screen—first of the flotsam and jetsam at the water's edge, then of the maneuvering of the giant arm of the dredger, and finally of the fitfully reflected figures of men in the water—that penetrates and remains with one by virtue of its very repetition.

By the balance that he has maintained in these opening scenes, Von Sternberg really has gone far to unlatch a new door toward art in the cinema. It should stimulate further exploration along a corridor that may lead toward a fulfillment eventually of a clear-cut and definite concept of that strangely elusive thing—namely, what form the pictures should aim toward.

The exact accomplishment cannot be judged in a moment, neither today nor tomorrow; but what Von Sternberg has done, coming, as it does, from a mind not attuned to the conventional, may well be watched and investigated. The great trouble is that too much importance is often laid on an innovation simply because it is an innovation; his effort has this merit, though, that, while it is singular and unique, it possesses also directness and simplicity.

The characters in the story are introduced with none of the usual formality. They are described as The Boy, The Girl (almost the comedy nomenclature,) The Child, The Man, The Woman, The Brute and The Gentleman. They bear no other names. The Boy is introduced first—driftwood of the human type, rhythmically moving along—lacking in courage, self-determination.

The Boy strives to protect the youngster and The Brute turns on him and pursues him around the deck of a gray, mud-laden scow. The Boy and The Child finally evade him, while the operator of the dredge, through the girl's instigation and in a fit of mischief, drenches The Brute with the water and mud carried by the huge shovel of the dredge. Then the three, the outcasts—The Boy, The Girl and The Child—make their departure as if by common telepathic consent and in a way that is almost symbolical, from the dredge.

It is a remarkable opening for a picture. There is no pause, there is something like a steady motion of the dredger crane, the restless up and down of the water, and, personally, I feel that this beginning is the most striking phase of the film.

From the water front the trio go to the city, not the most alluring part of the city; in fact, to a section whose name by some is regarded as of the less mentionable sort.

They are harbored here, but not without a certain malice of intent on the part of The Man, there introduced. He knows such types, and especially does he realize the attraction and the value commercially of a woman—also the effect of hunger.

This portion of the film is interesting chiefly in the delicacy of its realism. There is the suggestion of the spider weaving his web; but nothing of cheap melodrama.

The Boy, The Girl and The Child stay together in the same room. The Boy attempts to find work to do, but unsuccessfully. The Girl looks at him at first askance, then sneeringly and finally with disgust.

Eventually the hunger cry of The Child triumphs, and she goes out and comes back with The Gentleman.

So casual and so calm have few pictures been in their treatment of anything like this. It is because of the utter lack of tinsel, the bitterness and drabness that are not emphasized, but left to show themselves just as they are, that the visualizing of this none-too-pleasant episode is as dramatic and acceptable as it turns out to be.

From here on there is more of the conventional flavor through the play. The attempt to bring defeat to the trio through the process of hunger fails, due to the presence of The Boy and The Child. Thereupon, The Man decides that he is the one, after all, who, through more romantic means, can accomplish his purpose with The Girl.

Therefore, he, and another victim, called The Woman, devoted to him, and The Boy, The Girl and The Child, drive out to the countryside.

Thereupon, the story moves to its climax. His attentions to The Girl are not relished by The Child, who interferes. He then commences to brutalize the youngster. The Girl tries to stop him and The Boy rushes to her aid, all his suppressed courage suddenly aroused.

There is a great rough-and-tumble fight, with the eventual result that The Boy is victor, is tremendously proud of himself, while The Girl learns that she has some enthusiasm for his existence in the world after all.

It is remarkable, in view of the space occupied by this reciting of what occurs on the screen, that so much should be compressed into five reels. I have not even mentioned all the incidents which high-light the picture—touches that are photographic and symbolic and, as a rule, meaningful.

The people who play the roles include George K. Arthur as The Boy, Georgia Hale as The Girl, Bruce Guerin as The Child, Otto Matiesen as The Man, Nellie Bly Baker, The Woman, his companion; Olaf Hytten as The Brute, and Mr. Holmes as The Gentleman.

To Mr. Arthur and Miss Hale go the majority of credit. Their maintenance of the peculiar tempo in the picture was indeed a feat, and their curious expressiveness, so utterly unlike the conventional sort of registering, entitles them to the most generous commendation.

Bruce Guerin was so notably good as the youngster that he really ranks with them. He caught the mood even as well as they, and has quite as much to do. In certain aspects his character is a pivotal one in the picture.

Matiesen and Nellie Bly Baker are exceptional, and Hytten and Holmes are both to be noted.

cidents because they, among others, will have a lot to do with the production's popular appeal. When these and some other bright incidents are not on the screen the tendency is for the picture to drag a little. This I attribute to the fact that it is really very thin and conventional in its dramatic material.

The effect of the color photography in itself in the biblical cut-back is much more striking than the reason for its being included. This cut-back carries out in action a story told by Lew Cody to the wife, when she decides to leave her husband.

The first part of it, relating how David sent Uriah to the forefront of the battle so that there might be no obstacle to the fulfillment of his love for Uriah's wife, is recited by Lew first. His aim is to convince the wife that any sacrifice should be made for love, or what he calls love.

The trouble with the allegorical significance of all this is that Cody cannot by any stretch of the imagination be associated with the personality of the psalmist, and furthermore he is not the kind to remove the obstacle of a husband in quite the summary and military manner that David did, by having him killed off. He had no such apparent intention, anyway, in this feature.

The last part of the story applies better, because this depicts the punishment suffered by David and Bathsheba in the death of their child.

The object of Cody's recital in this case is to get rid of the wife because he recognizes that she is too deeply in love with her husband ever really to sacrifice herself to him. Immediately after it is finished she rushes from his room and returns to her apartment and the reconciliation takes place.

Summing up, it would seem that Mr. Henley, Carey Wilson and the scenarioists, John Lynch and Alice D. G. Miller, had effected a fairly creditable treatment of the story. It is not a strong nor novel picture, but it will probably enjoy a very fair popularity.

The really striking performance among the principals is that given by Eleanor Boardman. She is becoming constantly more interesting in her portrayals. She has rare grace and expressiveness, that ranges with facility from seriousness to comedy.

There are many bright and bubbling moments, too, in the work of Conrad Nagel. He, too, seems to be doing exceptionally well lately when the opportunity is for the lighter sort of characterization.

Patrick must be mentioned again, because he is so sure-fire in his comedy, and too much credit cannot be awarded to Lew for the excellence that he adds to the picture. Warner Oland, Mabel Julienne Scott, Edward Connelly, John Boles and others appear in the biblical sequence. Francis MacDonald, Clyde Cook, Claire de Lorez, Shannon Day and Jack Edwards, among others, are named in the general cast.

Most of the work was done twenty feet below the surface. Camera and cameraman were lowered to the floor of the lake in a metal chamber resembling the diving bell, and through a heavy plate-glass aperture in the front, a celluloid record was made of the diver and his adventures with "deep-sea" fishes from the "prop" room. Men on the surface of the lake controlled the fish with fine wires, and the inky secretion of the octopus was pumped down through a tube.

Specially constructed apparatus was necessary for William Brush's production, "The Water Babies," part of which was filmed off the coast of Florida. In this picture, too, the camera and operator were sent below in a diving bell, and scenes were photographed at a depth as great as forty feet. A live turtle was used as an underwater conveyance by Charles Gould, an 8-year-old diving prodigy, the turtle being controlled by wires held by divers on the floor of the sea.

Menjou in His Glory

ADOLPHE MENJOU is again the king!

Four years ago he started out in pictures in "The Three Musketeers." Then he was an obscure actor. Now, one of the best known figures on the screen, as well as one of the high-priced contract players, he is again playing a regal personage—but this time a sophisticated one. Reports have it that in "The Swan" Menjou's role has been made almost the big featured one. He is the cynical, insouciant fop, and there will probably be an infinite number of deft touches to his characterization as indicated in this set of photographs.

Directors found it difficult to classify Menjou in the prevailing "type" list. He was originally considered too old to be a romantic hero and yet not old enough to play so-called character types. And at first they tried him as a villain. However, in "A Woman of Paris" he definitely established a new screen type. Since that time he has been featured in a number of pictures. This latest is from the popular stage comedy by Ferenc Molnar and is said to give him more scope than usual for his subtleties.

Distinguishes Astonishing Film Achievement.

George K. Arthur, known oftentimes as "Kipps," had much to do with making possible the unique picture completed by an unknown director, Josef Von Sternberg. Mr. Arthur plays the leading male role.

Avaunt Convention!

(Academy Pictures)

One fact stands out saliently as regards "The Salvation Hunters," and that is that this picture, more than any other possibly during this season, will attract the interest of those who have reliance in the artistic development of cinema productions. It brings to light that cost has nothing to do with the quality of an achievement, and that the struggle for self-expression can triumph over mere material consideration in the films even as in other art forms. The inspiration is what is needed, and that apparently is what Josef Von Sternberg, an absolutely unknown director, had when he gave the theme and the story such a remarkable and effective treatment as it receives in his very telling screen feature.

WITH somewhat the same determination that poets of old used to create a masterpiece was the filming of "The Salvation Hunters" carried out by a group of idealists who invested practically everything they had in the film. The total amount which they spent, as it happens, did not run quite $5000, but it meant almost as much to them as if it were a million. They did not have the wherewithal to engage a prominent cast, needless to say, at the present prices of talent, and the best that they could do was to hire Stuart Holmes for a single day in a part that, while important, is not outstanding.

They had, however, the courage of certain artistic convictions, and the very sound belief apparently that camera work, and good camera work, can do a lot to sustain the interest in a creative work, in its essence photographic.

The result far outstripped their hopes. They have already aroused a vast amount of interest among certain producers, directors and stars with their picture, and Mr. Von Sternberg, who directed, has been drafted out of obscurity to make the next picture starring Mary Pickford, which is as signal an honor possibly as could be conferred on an absolutely new director.

"The Salvation Hunters" sounds a new note that is, at the same time, an old note in picture making. It gets back to the primal consideration that pictures must be pictures and that ideas can best be expressed most effectively in symbols to which a special significance has been given through the way that they are introduced to the view.

Films have often been anything but films in their many changes and transformations since they first came into existence. They have been subjected to literary and stage influences, and have become unwieldy at times with expensive sets and decorations, so that what photography in its finer essence can do toward invoking realism, if not actual reality, has been lost.

I do not so much feel admiration for the story of "Salvation Hunters" of itself as I do for the way in which it is depicted. Yet, as a motion-picture story, it has much more to recommend it than many stories that are mere adaptations. Despite that it is naive to the point of obviousness at times, it possesses something of the essentially vivid and elemental.

Its weaknesses are those chiefly that will be discovered toward the close of the picture. That is not because the ending is in the ultimate happy, but because—at least when I looked at it—there seemed to be too palpable a tendency to make it a preachment. It is fortunate that this can be eliminated in great part through the adjustment of some of the titles, and this may be done before it is finally flashed upon the screen.

Primarily, the theme set forth is one of hope and optimism, though that is the least of it. The picture is a study in the efforts of people to break from sordid surroundings. It is difficult to describe the manner in which the story

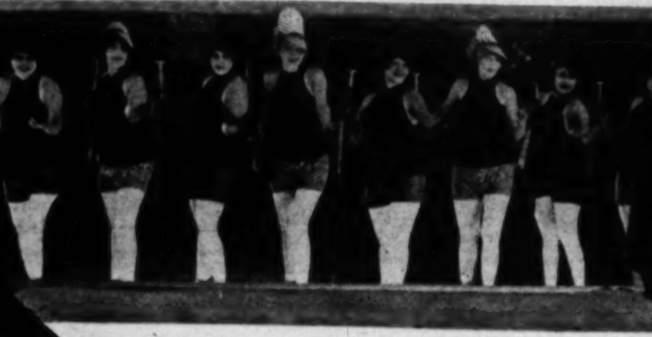
THOSE who feel the need of enlightenment as to some of the manners and forms that pertained to keeping oneself amused just before the opening of the present century will shortly have the facts flashed upon them in the pictures. And they may be surprised at the revelation, too—especially when it comes to clothes, and also the dimensions of physical pulchritude that were au fait.

For instance, when Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, in making "The Square Peg," decided to introduce a burlesque performance of twenty or twenty-five years ago, they found that they had to select the plumpest beauties they could locate for the necessary "shapely chorus" shown just below. Nor would anyone recognize as a theater nowadays the much gilded building (above) from Norma Talmadge's "The Lady."



Pre-release— Impressions of NEW PICTURES

Formula High-lighted

"SO THIS IS MARRIAGE!"

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

The invariable formula of the great majority of screen dramas this season shows up again in "So This Is Marriage!" It is another of an endless series of plays in which the wedded bliss of the couple who appear as hero and heroine is upset first by misunderstandings, and eventually by the appearance of the intruder. The picture has humor, but no great originality of treatment, except in a few high-lighting situations. Its interest and importance are increased by the use of color photography in an allegorical cut-back, telling the story of David, Uriah and Bathsheba. This is exceptionally attractive because the costumes and settings of the early biblical era can be so effectually visualized by the process.

HOBART HENLEY has a record for directing one of the best box-office hits of the season in "Sinners in Silk," released early in the fall. The picture had a vein of cleverness in its surface flashiness and tendency toward smartness that made for unusual popularity. It was all in all very aptly done.

"So This Is Marriage!" will, I believe, hardly be rated quite so high in its drawing power, even though it may sustain a good degree of favor. It offers, however, the sort of light romantic sketching of married life that is approved by many audiences, the humor of many of the episodes being very telling.

The principals are Eleanor Boardman and Conrad Nagel, with Lew Cody entering about the third reel to add both to the spice and complications. And it is totally unnecessary to mention, of course, that he portrays the "other man."

The bright spots of interest are such effervescent bits of comedy as the way the chap proposes to the girl, and his antics when he realizes that he is accepted. This is the opening sequence of the film, and that beginning, by the way, is as neatly accomplished as anything lately done of the kind, partly due to the adroitness of the Frederic and Fanny Hatton titles.

I am not going to tell all the various stages by which the plot develops. They are very familiar. There are quarrels and disagreements; the husband tries to dictate to his wife, and the wife does as she pleases. And, though the gloom is frequent, it is as a rule turned into sunshine—until toward the close, where, because of the other man, things become more intricate.

Throughout the various stages there are plenty of sparkling incidents. There is the dependable trick of the men in the hotel showing too great an interest in the wife, and the husband getting mad about it. He blames it on the fact that she has too much powder and rouge on her face, and takes her home and washes it off. I don't know that any husband ever dared do just that, but it paves the way for a beautiful row, which is the chief aim of the episode.

There is more comedy of a lighter character when the husband is informed by the practical joker, characterized by the effervescent John Patrick, that he is the father of twins, and goes to the hospital to find the nurse holding only one baby. He inquires with an air of highly pained suspicion: "Where is the other one?"

Lew Cody has one capital scene during one of the sequences where he is attempting to pay court to the wife. This happens while she is taking lunch with a friend, the sort who talks everybody to death. Lew's series of expressions in these scenes are a study. The girl, played by Eugenie Gilbert, carries out her part in it very well, also.

I have mentioned this sequence of in-

Sub-sea Locations Vogue Now

GLIMPSES of life beneath the surface of the sea are not exactly new in the pictures, but because of recent technical advances they are proving interesting and enhancing novelties in several current features.

"Subsea" photography, however, is in many instances carried on inside the studios, and whatever water may be required for marine views is securely encased in a large glass tank. When it is desired to stage a submarine spectacle with human characters, the usual method is to "shoot" the scene through the tank, which is semi-transparent and contains a few goldfish and some aquatic vegetation. Another method entails the use of a much larger tank of water, in which the human players cavort while the camera grinds upon them from the outside.

Stella, the Star-Gazer

Stella hints that Leatrice Joy may retire from the screen and devote her life to the upbringing of Leatrice II.

Evidently Bert Lytell didn't succumb to the lure of the South Seas, for he hurried home as soon as he could and announced his engagement to Claire Windsor.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

"MOTHERHOOD must be awfully engrossing, dearie, musn't it?—as the old lady said when she heard that some lady fishes lay 9,000,000 eggs—or maybe it is 9000, but what are a few eggs among fishes, anyhow?—at a sitting. But what I meant to say is, have you noticed what a lot of our fair young stars are retiring now that they have babies?"

Stella glanced at her wrist watch—which is no better than it should be—to see if it was still going, and proceeded:

"Take Leatrice Joy, for instance. Leatrice says she doesn't care a bit whether she ever goes back to work or not. In fact, she is planning to retire permanently, and go back to New Orleans to live. That is her girlhood home, you remember. She says she means to devote her life to her little girl.

"Leatrice says that the make-believe of acting seems all very hollow beside the real experiences of life, especially motherhood. She looks perfectly radiant. She expects to go abroad within a year or so."

"But who are the other mothers who are going to give up name and fame?" I inquired, as we glanced over the menu trying to decide between cinnamon toast and chicken sandwiches.

"WELL, I'm getting good and thin," murmured Stella. "I really think I'll have a chicken sandwich with mayonnaise . . . Oh, yes!—Well, there's Lila Lee, too. Lila is so engrossed in her husband, James Kirkwood, and in her baby, little Jim, that I'm sure she isn't caring much whether she works again or not. Of course, she is in the East now with Jim, and they are both awfully interested in Jim's appearance in the Belasco play.

"Jim told me once that he and Lila planned a stage career together, and that he was coaching his beautiful wife in some Shakespearean roles. But now that the baby has come, Lila doesn't seem to care a cent about her career. Probably, though, she may get interested later.

"Mae Marsh is all wrapped up in her little daughter, Mary, and in her husband, Louis Lee Arms, and says she doesn't care to work except to play parts that she really wants to do. 'I don't want to work just to be working,' she said. 'I'd rather stay home with my little girl.'

"Conrad Nagel's wife was fairly started on a career when her baby came, but she never cared a thing about working afterward. In fact, she turned down a very nice part in her husband's picture, saying she preferred home life."

"LILYAN TASHMAN tells this one on herself, dearie. So the Cat Club can't get the kick out of it they could if somebody told it on her. Still, it is funny.

[illegible] doing a little warbling herself! And what do you think she sang? Nothing less than that beautiful little classic, 'I Got a New Kind o' Man With a New Kind o' Love!'"

STELLA took a peek into her mirror ostensibly to see if the wave in her bob was still waving, but really to see who was at the table behind her, and she nearly fell off her chair.

"Shirley Mason and John Howard again! Well, that megaphonist certainly does admire Shirley, doesn't he? Oh, by the way, did you hear about Shirley being judge at a dancing contest the other night, and how she ruled all the pretty girls off the floor?

"That isn't all. The pretty girls were rather cross, of course, but they weren't nearly so cross as the two girls who almost won the prize, but not quite—there were only three girls left dancing when Shirley got through—because these two girls saw what Shirley was doing, and took it rather hard that she didn't think they were pretty enough to rule out! You just can't please people, can you?

"Well, if there aren't Patsy Ruth Miller and young May again—his papa owns that big department store, you know. They are always dancing together. He's awfully handsome, isn't he? They say that he and Patsy have been great friends ever since they, with a lot of other young people and a couple of chaperones, were becalmed in the May yacht between here and Catalina at night, and Patsy insisted on taking a small rowboat to get to San Pedro, in order to get home. The boat was leaky and nearly sank, and Patsy says Mr. May was both kind and brave. Now if that isn't an episode sufficient to satisfy any girl's desire for romance, I don't know it."

BERT LYTELL and Claire Windsor entered just then.

"Bert announced his engagement to Claire the minute he arrived from the South Seas!" began Stella. "So I guess the dusky beauties didn't make any impression on him, at any rate.

CONSISTENTLY GOOD.

No lover ever looked with more adoring eyes at his sweetheart than De Wolf Hopper, Jr., does at his mother.

THE BIG EVENT for both beau and belle is when son accompanies his mother to the picture theater. Mother generally considers him her best critic—of course, and son is very sure that the whole world will have to applaud his mother's every new achievement.

After all, though, for all the glamor of fame, there is nothing so different about the affection between these mothers and sons from such love everywhere in the world For more typical of the cinema than of any other art activity is the quality of home life.

YOU KNOW they're bound to be . . . mother's best beau! What mother could resist her son's charm when he commences to grow up; and what son could resist the fascination of a mother who is so celebrated and famous and who has so many fans as her admirers and his rivals, therefore, as various of the players in this group possess!

This is a glimpse of the intimate life of some of the feminine players, because in every instance the mothers and the sons are known to be so devoted to each other.

Little Billy, Claire Windsor's son, has grown to be quite a boy now, and in her new role in a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, Miss Windsor has transformed herself quite girlishly, so they make quite a fetching couple when they are thus photographed together.

Thoroughly romantic are the longing glances that Hedda Hopper and her son, De Wolf, Jr., cast at each other as they pose in front of the piano. Bill Reid, Dorothy Reid's son, is all boy and wants his mother to take part with him in his sports. Vola Vale's chubby young son, Albert William, feels that he must become a soldier so he can be the family protector and therefore he's going to a military school.

The Comedian's Hour of Triumph

Tremendous Advances Financially and in Prominence Made by Fun-Makers Indicate Vitality of Their Craft in Film Production

By EDWIN SCHALLERT

BATTERED and biffed and butted around they were in the early part of their careers. Now they are children of fortune, elect and envied.

The comedians!

This is their year of advancement and triumph. At least, for the leaders. And next season promises even bigger fulfillment of their prominent estate.

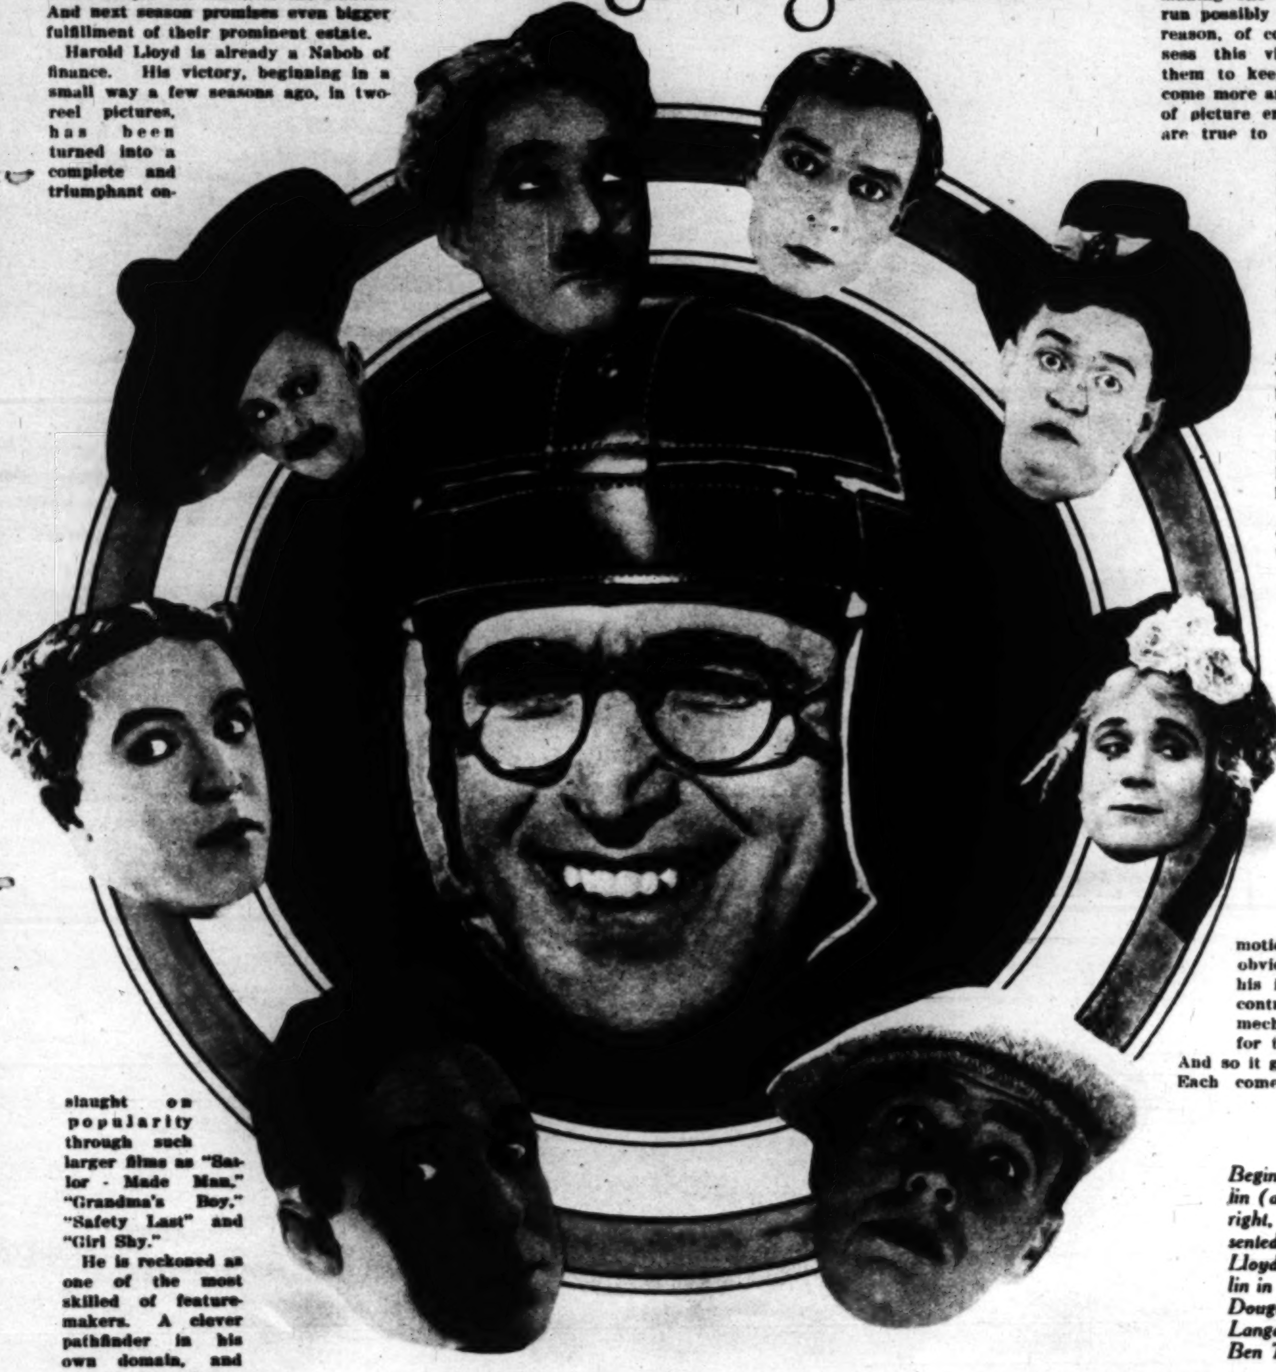
Harold Lloyd is already a Nabob of finance. His victory, beginning in a small way a few seasons ago, in two-reel pictures, has been turned into a complete and triumphant onslaught on popularity through such larger films as "Sailor - Made Man," "Grandma's Boy," "Safety Last" and "Girl Shy."

He is reckoned as one of the most skilled of feature-makers. A clever pathfinder in his own domain, and one of the primary best bets of the box office.

His income as compared with other incomes in the films, even, is considered exceptional, and his presence on a program is considered so much of an asset that there was probably the keenest competition for his services that has occurred in recent years just before he recently agreed upon the release of his pictures, or at least one picture, via Paramount.

Buster Keaton has burst into sudden fame and may soon be reckoned Lloyd's rival, thanks to the reception accorded "The Navigator." In this he seems to have definitely struck his pace as a feature comedian.

The production established a record of over $14,000 receipts at the opening at the Capitol Theater in New York, and the returns on the succeeding day, Monday, which is generally considered dull, were only a very little less. It played at the house for two weeks. It ran also for a number of weeks at one of the theaters in Los Angeles.



Beginning with Chares Chaplin (at top) and going to the right, the comedians represented are Buster Keaton, Lloyd Hamilton, Syd Chaplin in "Charley's Aunt" role, Douglas MacLean, Harry Langdon, Lige Conley and Ben Turpin. Harold Lloyd in center.

A History of Vitality

The thing is that comedies have had such an amazing vitality there appear to be no limits to their growth. Even now Charlie Chaplin is doing the unheard of and undreamed of thing of making one so elaborate that it will run possibly ten or twelve reels. The reason, of course, why comedies possess this vigor which has enabled them to keep on developing and become more and a more significant part of picture entertainment is that they are true to the picture form. They have said with action, ever since Chaplin made his first appearance shambling in trousers and derby, plus trick cane, with Keystone (and perhaps before that,) things that cannot be effectively put into words.

The nuance of humor and also of pathos with which Chaplin has imbued his films is a thing of the films alone. It is a personal expression, almost genius-like, that belongs quite uniquely to himself.

Lloyd, in his more mechanically devised pictures, so consistently made, has done the thing which can be imagined only away from the screen. The fears, the thrills, the elation that his pictures evoke are all fundamental, existing somewhere in everybody's consciousness and experience; but he alone, in the movies, seems capable of making them real.

Keaton's imperturbability of countenance in the face of all dangers, all risks, even when by motions and gestures he is obviously disturbed, make, in his instance, for a grotesque contrast that is, with his fine mechanics, chiefly responsible for the interest he arouses.

Each comedian needs some peculiarity of gesture, of facial trick or of prop (say, like the horn-rimmed glasses of Lloyd's,) to help make his appeal to the public. These things are the symbols of their craft and even they are in their essence pictorial.

Among the comedians taking part in the dramatic features none reveals more adeptly, perhaps, the knowledge of the gag technique than Sydney Chaplin. By his cleverness he has won an especially striking chance to display his facile talent in a starring role. As it happens, this may not be strictly gag entertainment, although on the screen it will probably border thereon.

The picture is "Charley's Aunt" from the old stage farce. Quite a departure in the comedy line will be Syd's impersonation of the roystering old dame who was supposed to hail from Brazil, "where the nuts come from.

For the most part Syd has been adding light humorous relief to feature plays, but the impression exists that his latest venture may possibly lead to comedy stardom.

From Another Sector

Douglas MacLean, working from an entirely different angle (for he did not begin as a slapstick comedian, but as a featured player in semi-serious productions) is arriving at a somewhat similar destination. He is attaining a vogue which, while not so noteworthy as that of Lloyd and Keaton, is nevertheless notable.

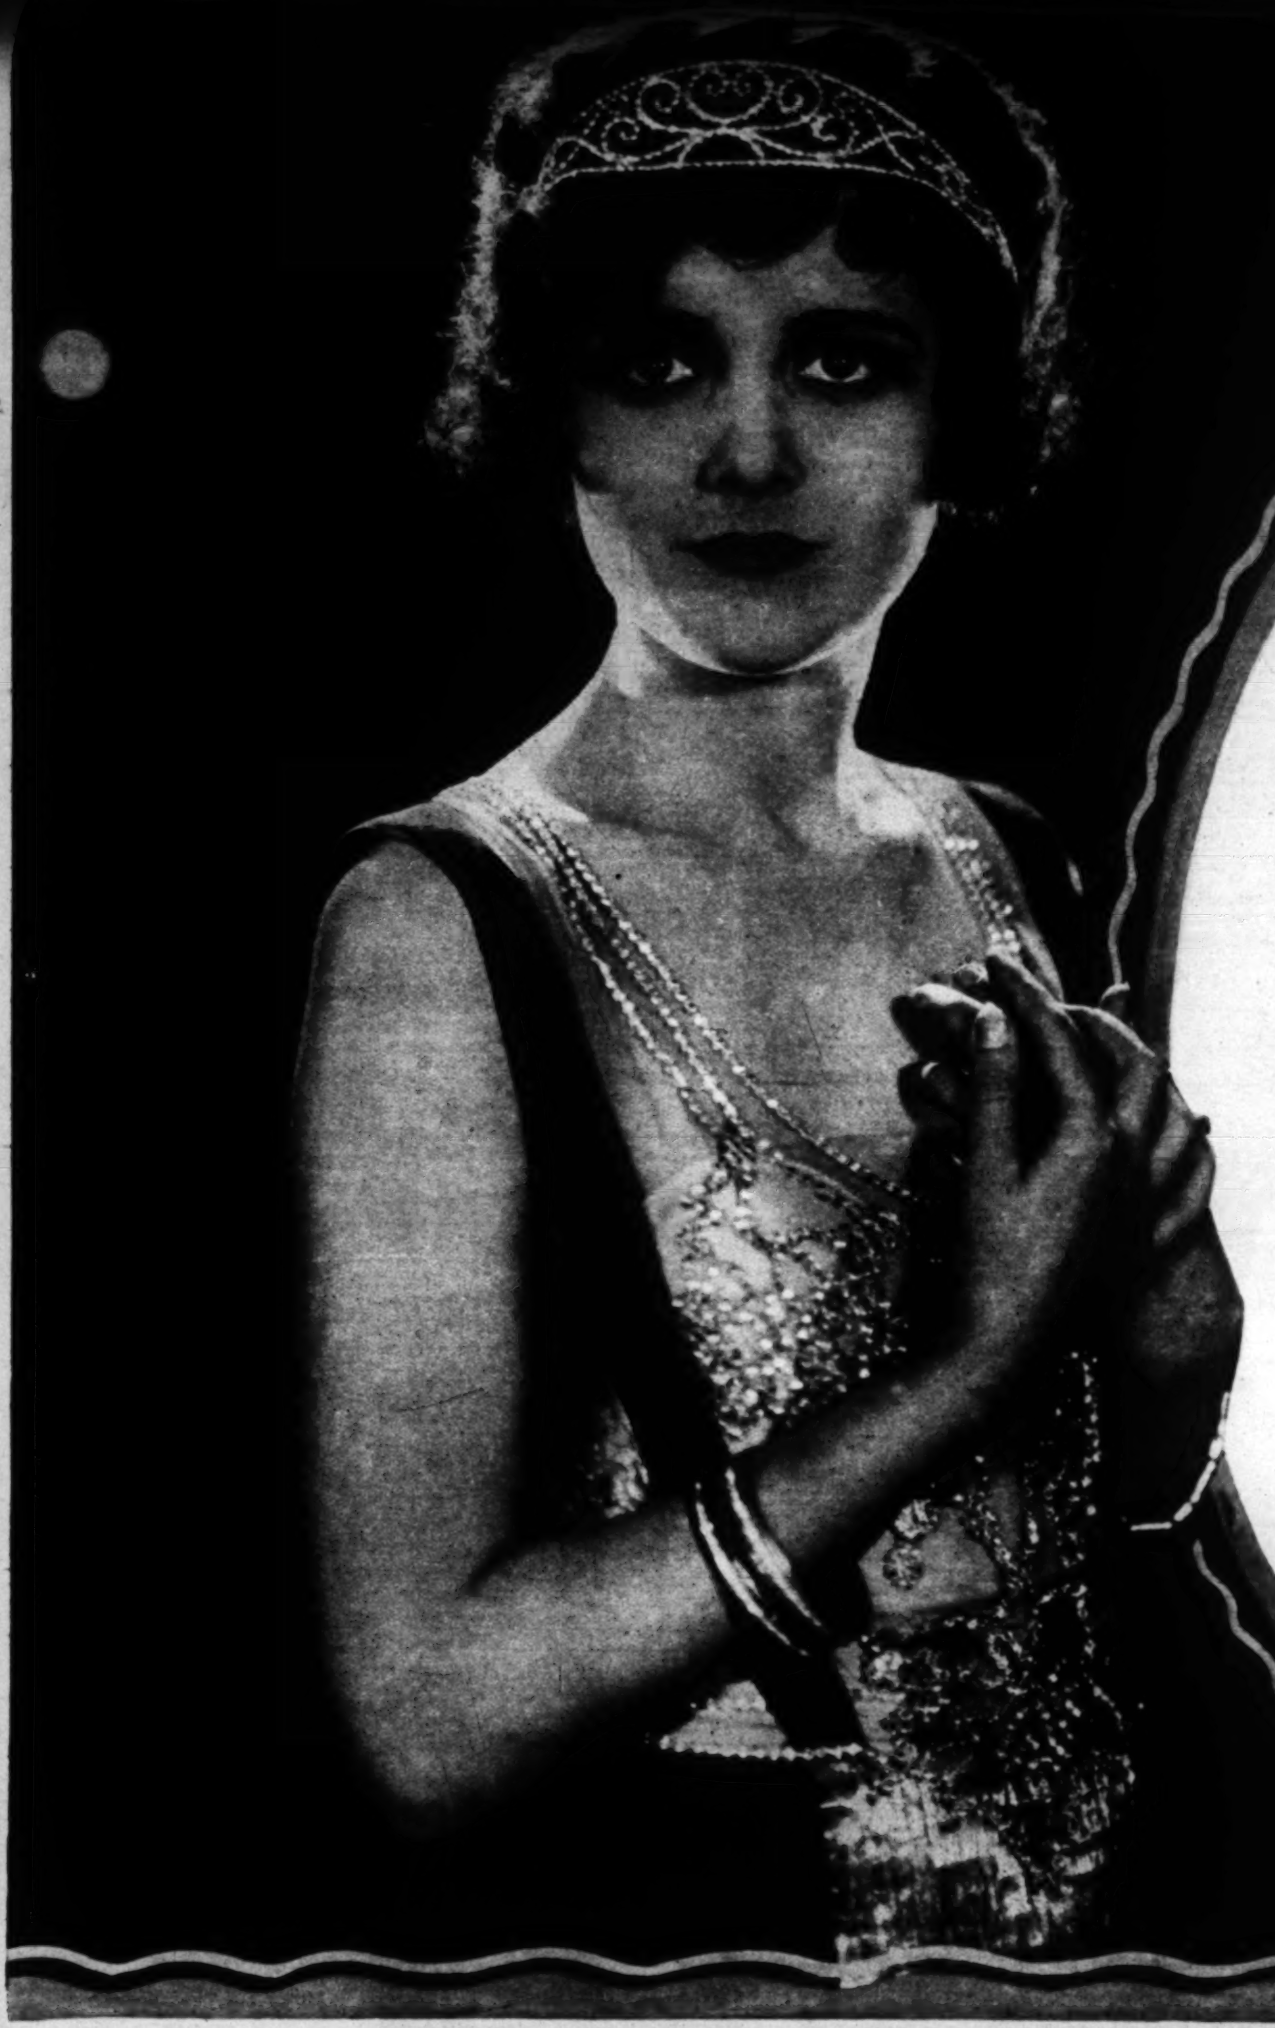
The impression exists, indeed, that at the expiration of his contract with Pathe there will be keen bidding for his talents and that his remuneration will jump exceedingly. At present he derives returns for his services principally on a profit-sharing basis with the releasing organization, and has been reported to be making very excellent money. His pictures, like "Going Up," "The Yankee Consul" and "Never Say Die," have had good runs and the more he has relied on gags to high-light his comedies the greater apparently has been his success. He is not so different, therefore, in ultimate from those who came by way of slapstick.

Harry Langdon, it is said, will be the next five-reel comedian. He has great dexterity and expressiveness, a background of training on the vaudeville circuits, not to speak of an inimitably funny face.

He has not yet reached the point of self-determination, defining his style clearly as a comedian; but when he does he will probably go ahead with a flash and bang.

Hovering on the outside of this circle are such personalities as Lloyd Hamilton, Lige Conley and a few others. Their future is problematical; but frequently they afford much interest in the two-reelers.

Then there is, beside, the always glorious Ben, the Turpin. Greatest of foils, perhaps, on the screen. He is star material, but to be used only judiciously, and that, apparently, in the burlesque.



Capture Crown of Brighter Recognition

THE COVETED goal of a big lead—the real acting part! How much that means to the player striving for more pretentious recognition! More, nowadays, than even conventional stardom!

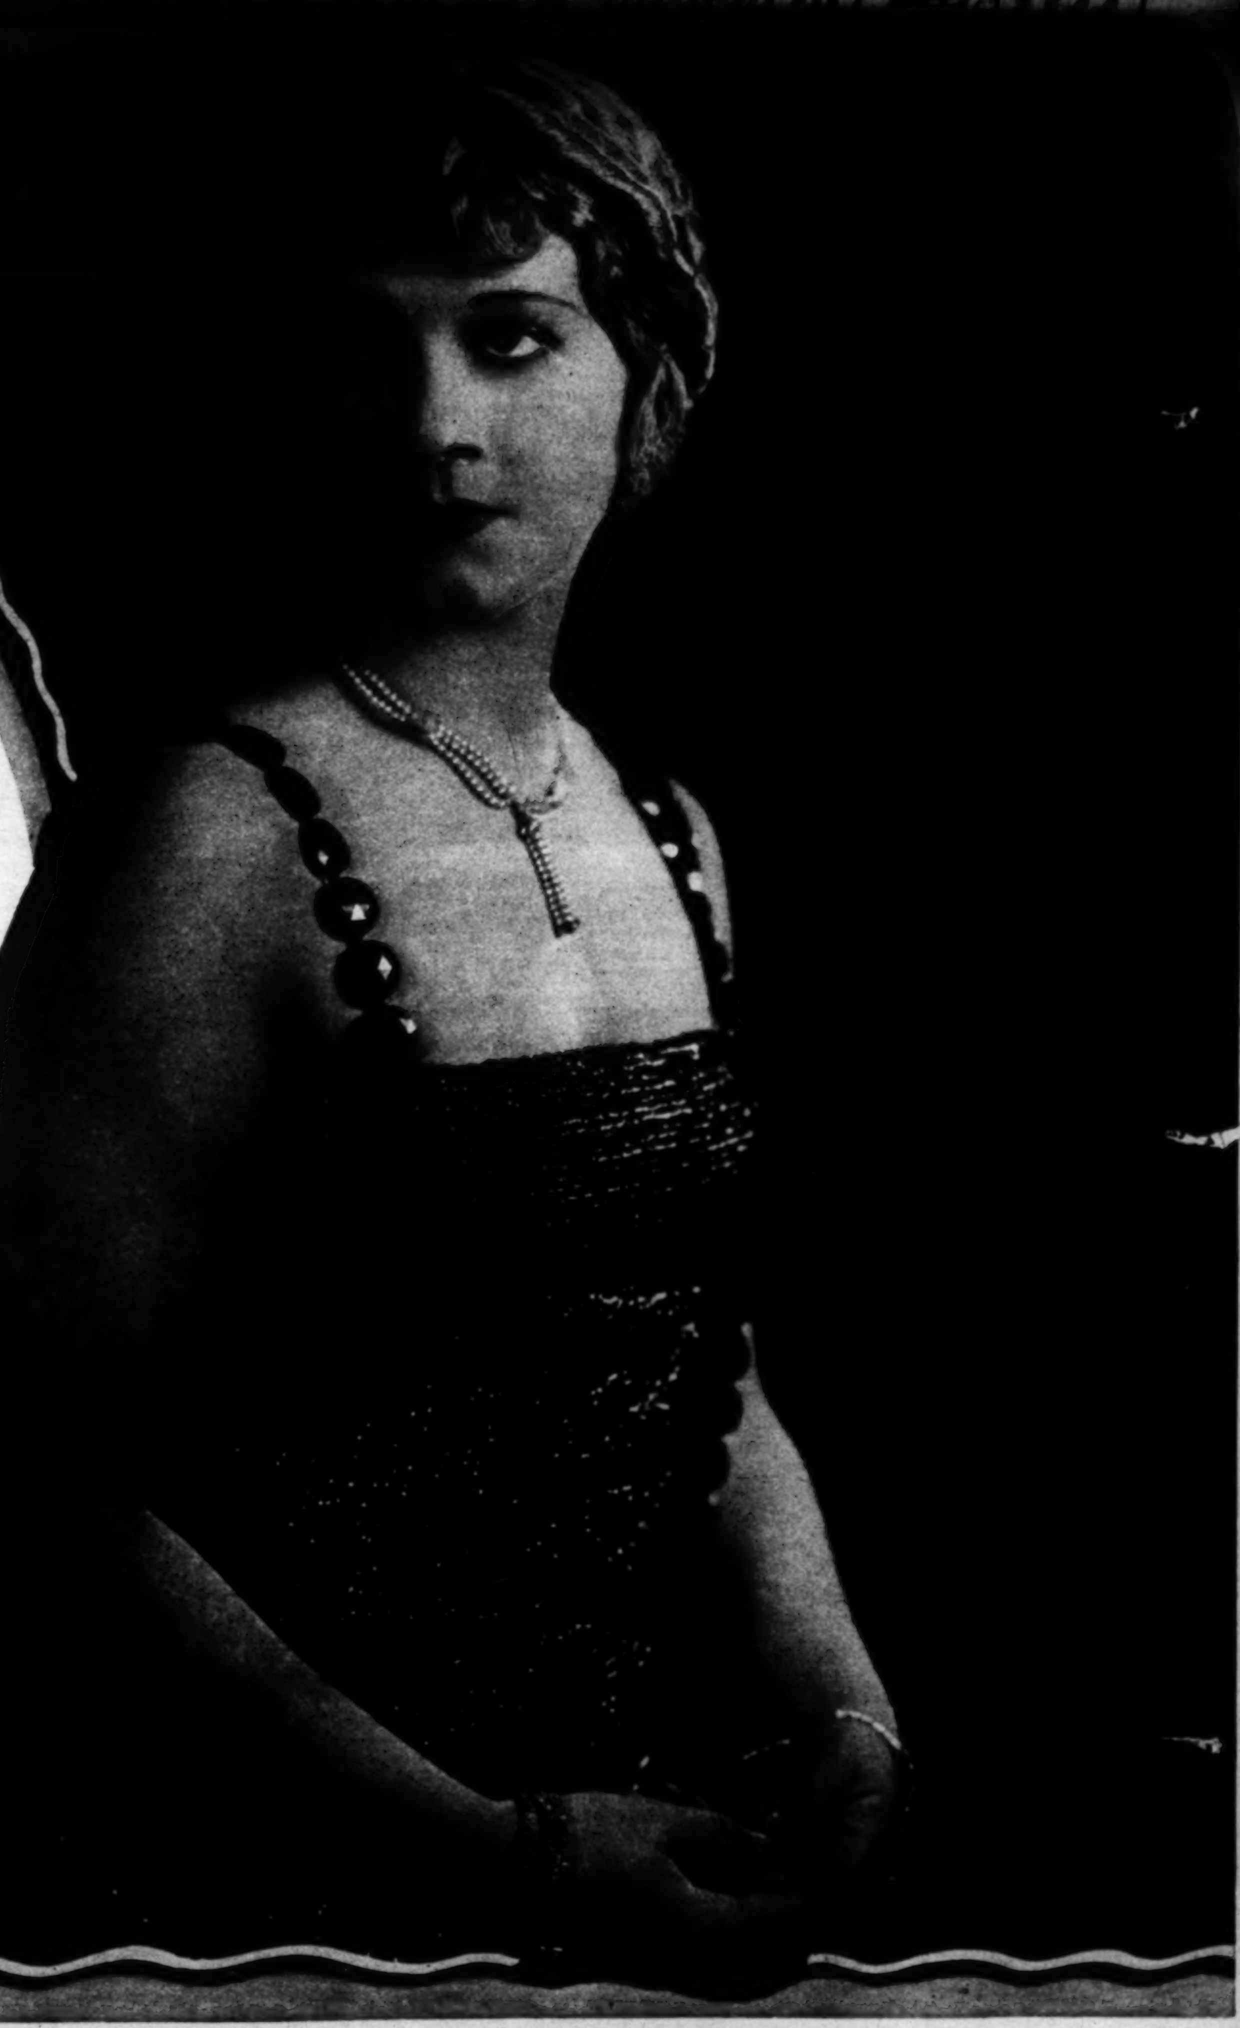
And, in entirely different ways, two of the younger girls in the pictures have suddenly attained that distinction, and with it visioned the glamor of arrival at an era of brilliant promise in their careers.

One is Lillian Rich, who has lately been selected to do a featured role in "The Golden Bed," one of the most lavishly bedecked society plays ever directed by Cecil B. De Mille. The other is Mary Astor, who has the outstanding opportunity in the Thomas H. Ince film, "Enticement," from the novel written by Clive Arden, author of "Sinners in Heaven."

Miss Astor has never had as prominent a role as she is playing in "Enticement" (for the entire story centers around the heroine,) nor one as grown up. Nor has Miss Rich ever looked more lovely than in that transformation which has been brought about in her presence, with the addition of a blonde wig and elegant and elaborate attire that she wears in the opus of De Mille.

Heretofore, Miss Rich has been playing chiefly in supporting roles, first in such pictures as those starring the dog, Strongheart, and later in the films of Douglas MacLean and others, where her opportunities were rather limited. Now she has arrived at the destination where she is to be bright-lighted equally with other members of a cast.

Since coming west Miss Astor has had only the slightest chance to demonstrate her talent in parts that were secondary at the best. Her most important was the feminine lead opposite John Barrymore in "Beau Brummel." Virtually she will be the star of "Enticement," because of the character of the plot, and the feature itself is to be made into a very pretentious affair.



A new Mary Astor will shine forth in "Enticement," from the novel by Clive Arden, judging from this advance glimpse of the character as she visualizes it. Her selection for the role was the result of a contest conducted among readers of the book.

On Lillian Rich has been conferred the distinction of playing one of the big featured leads in Cecil De Mille's film production, "The Golden Bed." This is regarded as notable recognition of the talent she has displayed for some time in supporting and incidental parts.
